Four Major Projects Require Senior Aid

Four city construction projects, ranging from the installation of a storm sewer to the provision of financial docks for Belleville's inner harbor have been approved for consideration in a Federal-Provincial winter capital projects fund for this city.

The objective of the fund is to stimulate growth in employment by accelerating municipal capital over what might have been normally planned.

Major project proposed for consideration by the senior governments is a storm sewer for the Wellington Street area at an estimated cost of $220 000.

Other projects suggested in a senior citizen centre at $100,000; floating docks for the harbor are estimated to cost $30,000 and a community centre structure for the East Hill Playgrounds, at $11,400.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said the storm sewer for the Wellington Street area was needed to provide service for the proposed senior citizen housing complex on Allcot College property on Wellington Crescent.

The mayor said the understood through a telephone conversation that the Ontario Housing Corporation would proceed with construction on the Wellington Crescent site.

Under the Federal - Provincial Winter Capital Projects Fund, the senior government provides financial assistance for municipal projects which otherwise might be delayed.

Scots Farmer Visiting Here

A young Scottish farmer, Jim Dobie, from South Cassleyerry, will be a visitor in Hastings county from May 12 to 25. Mr. Dobie is one of 10 United Kingdom delegates visiting Ontario under the sponsorship of the Junior Farmers Association and while in Hastings will be staying with Mr. and Mrs. Rod Ray, RR2 Roslin and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Ray, RR 4 Stirling.

The young Scotsman is a partner in a family farming operation, farming 470 acres in Scotland. The farm has 100 dairy cows, beef cattle and 80 breeding ewes.

Barley, wheat, oats and forage are grown on 250 acres while the remainder is used for grazing and hay crops.

$2,200 Damage

TWEED (Special) Damage was estimated at $2,200 in a two-car collision at the corner of River and Victoria Streets here. There were no injuries.

Tweed police Constable Barry Wallace said a westbound car on River Street driven by M. Peter Allen, 22, of Peterborough, collided with a southbound car on Victoria driven by Verle Olles, 50, of Don Mills.

In another two car mishap on the Sines-Marlbank Road — a pickup truck driven by Paul John Farrell, 21, of RR3, Tweed, was in collision with a car driven by Glen Phillips of Bancroft, Thomasburn, early today.

Northern Electric Negotiations Halt

While some 2,500 workers on strike at Northern Electric Co. Ltd. plants in Belleville, Kingston, London and Brantford, contract negotiations between the United Auto Workers and the company broke down yesterday afternoon.

The bargaining sessions, which began January 9, are expected to resume Thursday. Issues involved include pensions, wages and job evaluation.

In a three-year contract, Northern Electric Co. Ltd. offered a production worker an a 26 cent hourly increase in the first year with 10 cent raises in each of the next two years. Under the old contract, production workers averaged $3.05 in Belleville and $3.30 an hour in London and the latter on a publicity director, Gerry Hertfordt.

Mr. Hartford said office workers, who are bargaining separately, were offered a six per cent increase the first year and three per cent increases in the next two years for a three-year contract. He said it was difficult to link wages for office employees because of the numerous categories involved.

A company statement made this morning by D. G. Vice, president of the Belleville plant, said the company offer on production workers represented an increase equivalent to 40 cents an hour over the three-year term of the contract. Office employees, he said, were offered a 19.5 per cent equivalent increase.

"Inasmuch as the company's offer," said Mr. Vice, "were improved verbal arrangements providing for three weeks of paid vacation to employees with five years' service in 1974.

The offered rates are an adjustment to plant holiday provisions to permit a shutdown of operations during the Christmas period," he said. Other offers included an increase to $3.00 of company-paid life insurance coverage and a cost of living allowance based on one per cent per hour for every .42 change in the Consumer Price Index to become effective in 1974.

The statement said Mr. Vice

Scrap Patrol Cars To Douse Fires

TRENTON (Staff) — The decision to equip highway patrol cars with fire extinguishers was confirmed as a good idea by two incidents involving cars of the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police during the weekend.

Meetings of Committees Stay Closed to Press

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Town council has voted to continue to bar reporters from its committee meetings followed heated discussion at a meeting last night.

Mayor H. J. McFarland observed councillor Jack Evans, news editor of the Picton Gazette, occasionally receives information in advance of other reporters because of his council seat. He suggested that by attending committee meetings press representatives for The Intelligencer and the Kingston Whig - Standard might also glean background information on certain issues.

"I want the press to feel that we are not shying away from it in any way, shape or form," emphasized the mayor.

When his suggestion was debated later in the session it gained initial support from deputy - reeve Ross Cronkwright, who moved that committee meetings should be opened to the press. As discussion prompted strong reaction against the motion, the deputy - reeve withdrew it but it was moved a second time by councillor Jack Evans. The Gazette news editor in a council vote was the sole supporter of the motion.

Councillor John Kinney said he was opposed to it because the reporters' attendance at committee meetings could only hamper them.

Picton reeve James Bird remarked that "the fourth estate is a necessary part of our civilization" but felt discretion would be required by reporters covering committee sessions.

Councillor Bessie Ward, chairmen of the finance committee said Mr. Macauley strongly defended her action in releasing a statement to the Picton Gazette last week without providing copies to the other two papers serving the area.

"I feel I can give my report to whomever I like," she said.

The statement issued to councillor Evans by Mrs. Ward deak with the possible effects of the 1973 capital budget on the municipal budget under consideration.

Mrs. Ward said she did not feel that councillors could speak as freely during closed sessions covered by reporters and added she took full responsibility for releasing her statement only to Jack Evans. The veteran councillor commented that "It is the Picton people who should know what we are doing," not members of Belleville or Kingston who are unlikely to have any interest in Picton's mill rate.

Mrs. Ward also noted her statement was given to councillor Evans at 11 p.m., an hour when she could not have been expected to contact other press representatives.

Mr. Evans said he was "100 per cent in favor" of voting to allow reporters to attend committee meetings. "I'm game for it," he stressed.

Mayor McFarland at this point interjected, stating that newspapers seem to print only unfavorable news and sometimes even suggest that "the good things don't hit the press." He referred to several issues such as the substantial tax contributions of the Proctor - Redfern company to the town as little - publicized items.

Long-lived Lighthouse

Salmon Point lighthouse, erected in 1871, may survive another 100 years now that is has been surrounded by a breakwater. Built on a high foundation, the lighthouse is washed underneath by water. But high levels in Lake Ontario this spring were posing a threat, prompting the owners to construct the breakwater. The lighthouse is now occupied as a summer cottage.

Council Wants Planning Report

PICTON — Chairman of the Prince Edward County Planning Board, Bruce Hyatt, will be invited to attend the June session of town council to discuss progress with its members.

The decision to seek information from the board chairman followed criticisms by Mayor H. J. McFarland of monies spent for blueprints and plans while facilities such as the Prince Edward County Registry Office remain cramped.

"What in hell is going on that we don't get something done? Why is Jack Graydon (the registrar) being pushed around?" he asked.

Mayor McFarland claimed that the money spent in planning in the past four or five years would have paid for an addition to the registry office.

The town of Picton pays approximately 20 per cent of the planning board's budget.

Mayor McFarland noted a county planner has just been hired at a salary of $12,500 a year.

Picton deputy - reeve Ross Cronkwright said that when he has attempted to question planning board reports in county council, he has been told this body is not responsible to councillors. He remarked that he is told by council's property and supply committee that "everything is under control."

Mayor McFarland said, "I would like to be told why they should screw around $35,000 and what has been done about Centennial Park in the last four or five years."

Development Plans Heard by Council

PICTON — Glenlot Investments, represented at town council last night by Picton realtor Corey Fairwren, has forwarded a proposal for extensive property development in Picton. A spokesman for Glenlot, of councillors and the town's consulting engineers will be called to investigate his plan.

Mr. Fairwren is seeking permission to install sewerage services for 15 lots in the vicinity of Pitt and York Streets at his own cost. He also requires council's OK to construct certain roads at his own expense.

Permission to install water services to the lots in accordance with local and public utilities commission bylaws is needed. Representatives of the public utilities commission will be asked to attend the special meeting to be held by council regarding the proposed development.

Picton reeve James Bird said an agreement between the developer and the town should be the initial step and, since the project is such a large one, the length of time for its phases should be detailed.

Councillor Larry Richardson said aspects of the development is welcome but it would be wisest to proceed cautiously in planning and approvals.

Centennial Plans Full-day Festival

Insight into Canadian arts, culture, science and technology is the aim of Centennial Secondary School's Festival Canada Friday, May 11.

Activities will go on all day and will include assemblies, exhibits, fashion shows, plays, sports clinics, ethnic food tasting sessions and special guests.

The evening program for the public begins at 7 p.m. with a music concert, followed by ethnic dances, a play and a fashion show.

The theme, Canada and the World, will be on display in the library and Canadian films will alternate with Charlie Chaplin movies in the lecture theatre.

Sports activities will be conducted in the gyms and dance bands and folk singing will be presented in the cafeteria.

Through the day special programs have been arranged for the students. Dr. B. B. Cone will speak on The Myth of Mental Illness in the morning and Jim Staveley will discuss conservation trails in the afternoon. Peel Al Purdy will be available for conversations with students in the morning.

Students will present plays, a dress competition, a Mr. Immigrant contest, Indian dances and cheerleaders' activities. Outdoor events will include a ten-speed bicycle race, a tricycle race, a tug-of-war and a horsemanship demonstration. Representatives of the RCMP, OPP and city police will be present and Queen's University and Loyalist College will have displays.

Mayor Seeks Convention

PICTON — Mayor H. J. McFarland has sought council's moral support of his efforts to bring the 1974 convention of mayors and reeves to Ontario to Picton.

He explained it would represent "a great thing for the interests of everyone concerned" and said he regretted the town had not been the winner since a building of this size could have readily accommodated such a large gathering.

The mayor observed the town purchased it for $7,500, a sum that "couldn't even buy the light bulbs in it now." He said the basement of the building has been let in a 15-year contract at $4.85 a square foot and will eventually bring close to $1 million in revenue.

He suggested certain buildings at the site of the former Camp Picton remain and could accommodate visitors to Picton if the convention is held here.

Sentence Added

A Deseronto man serving a two-month jail term for assault causing bodily harm was sentenced in provincial court Monday to four more months for breaking probation.

Allison was originally convicted last December of another offence and placed on two years probation. But Jan. 16 he signed an agreement to keep the peace, he assaulted Lester Hamilton of Deseronto, leading to the three-month sentence and the charge of breaking probation.

Sidney Fire Hall-garage Building Contract Awarded

A tender accepted Monday night for the construction of Sidney Township's combination fire department - roads department garage has turned out to be a valuable bonus for that municipality.

The accepted tender submitted by Mirron Masters of Trenton undercut the estimated $106,900 cost of the construction by $10,000 and underbid the nearest tender by $8,000.

Council was jubilant over the unexpected low tender and have announced construction will begin within the next four weeks with the project scheduled to be completed by Oct. 31.

The building will be of brick construction to match the existing township office with both structures sharing the same site.

The building will include two bays for fire department vehicles and three for the roads department.

Reeve Gordon Willman said this morning $50,000 was raised from taxes last year and has been kept in an account for the job. He said the mill rate would not be affected this year with the balance to make up at year's end.

The placement of the fire hall had met much criticism in the early discussion stages, drawing the anger of Bayside residents who felt the hall should be situated in their area where there is a high density of population.

Township council countered the argument by saying a hall was scheduled for the area.

Reeve Willman today could not be too specific as to when that hall would come under construction but did say negotiations were continuing with Bayside Secondary School. The reeve said some land in the area of the school was to be acquired by the township and would become the site of the next fire hall.

Picton Mill Rate Reduced for 1973

PICTON — A drop of more than two mills was recorded by town council last night as it struck its rate for 1973 tax levies.

The rate for public school supporters, residential, this year will be 28.09 mills and for separate school supporters, residential, 27.41 mills.

Public school supporters, commercial, will be levied with a mill rate of 31.40 and separate school supporters, commercial 30.64 mills.

The total amount of real property - and business assessment in Picton for 1973 totals $23,240,415. Of this $1,582,780 is assessed as property of the Roman Catholic school supporters.

The public school assessment entitled to government grants for residential property is $14,756,875 and public school assessment not entitled to government grants for commercial property is $6,900,750.

Roman Catholic school assessment entitled to government grants for re idential property is $1,368,500 and the Roman Catholic school assessment grants The residential ment grants for commercial property totals $214,730.

Initial tax instalments must be paid by July 3, 1973 and the balance by October 2, 1973.

REAL ESTATE:

BUILDING PERSONAL EQUITY

Ed. Stevenson
R. Stevenson
Realty Ltd.

Last week we were shown an article in the "Canadian Lumberman and Woodworker" dated June 1st, 1920. The article bemoans the then steadily rising prices of labor and materials questioning when a plateau will be recorded and a levelling off occur.

The article might have been written yesterday and is as relevant to the escalating prices of homes today as it was fifty-three years ago.

The lesson to be learned is that the ownership of real estate is one hedge against creeping inflation. True, costs and prices today are higher than ever, but owners of property have experienced a steadily increasing value. If the past is any guide, then this will continue to be the case.

Inflation Rampant

Given these inflationary times there is nothing extraordinary about the fact that Belleville's 1973 municipal budget will exceed the $10 million mark for the first time in city history.

At the same time there is no justice — poetic or otherwise — in the fact that anticipated additional provincial grants, amounting to more than a million dollars will be cancelled out in part by increased education costs, as well as higher salaries for city employees, firemen and police.

There was a time some years ago when the federal government growled loudly over inflation. We recall during Mitchell Sharp's tenure as finance minister warnings about over-spending and that Ottawa would not hesitate to clamp down if necessary. Prime Minister Trudeau himself got into the act. But what do we find: simply that Canadians, in the classic words of the then Governor of the Bank of Canada, James Coyne, more than a decade ago, "are living grandly beyond their means." And that the Government itself is the leading culprit.

Today inflation is virtually out of control — beyond the power of Governments, economists or individuals to control. It is as if it were some divine right, along with all its ramifications: higher wages, rising prices and erosion of spending power.

The thought that remains is one which an economist gave voice to recently: that inflation of the kind we are experiencing inevitably leads to a crash. A depression then? Well, that is what the man says and no one seems to know what to do to prevent it.

Litter Blight

In Consecon one recent weekend a group of little girls played on the green hard by the historic plaque that tells of the Kente mission to the Indians back in the 17th century.

Nothing else stirred in the village and there was a sense of timelessness about this scene of childhood innocence and pure fun. Nearby the Stinson Block Road leads to various summer vacation areas and there are vistas of lake and sky as grand as any we have seen amid some experience of faraway places.

At the end — or what seemed like the end — of this road, it makes a sudden left turn and continues along the shore where, in these days of wind and high water, waves dissolve on rock and grassy slopes and holiday homes await their owners' coming.

Otherwise this could be the world at its beginning. There is only the sound of the surf, more urgent than the still waters of Consecon Lake behind us, viewed from a rural road we had not travelled previously, and it was to marvel at the considerable size of this body of water. Then finally, long past Bay View and Willow Grove and the other tourist places, there was this view of a church spire and it was only when we came close that we saw we had turned full circle and were in Consecon once again. Indeed too than a offshoot of this road in the not so far distant past led visitors to North Bay. It was back in 1965, we recall, and cars and people flocked to the park and beach and it was summer vacation area and there are vistas of lake and sky as grand as any we have seen amid some experience of faraway places.

Timeless Hours

Mayor Robin Jeffrey, like other citizens, has good reason to be shocked by litter. The problem is a singular blight on this and other communities and it is all the worse when it is considered it is not tolerated in Scandinavia for example. That is, the people there are much more tidy-minded in this regard and stiff fines for littering help them stay that way.

The Mayor mentions Great St. James Street, running parallel to Station, deploring the renewed build-up of paper and junk on the wooded escarpment there. Indeed we have drawn attention to this very area in the past and to the despoiling of the slopes in the manner described.

Quite rightly, Mrs. Jeffrey points out that the city works department and the students and other volunteers who have cleaned up the area in the past can only do only so much. The public must do its part. As Mrs. Jeffrey notes, it is the responsibility of children, youths and adults.

The problem is city-wide and the cure for it remains largely in the hands of each individual citizen.

Government Responding to Pressure

Pensions and Allowances in Canada Likely Will Improve

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Barring a serious recession or downturn it seems very likely that Canada's older citizens will enjoy a constantly improving system of pensions and allowances over the next few years.

While pressure for higher old age security payments has been constant for many years, there has rarely been a time when all parties in the Commons have been so united in basic desire and determination to better the lot of senior citizens.

In the past, the governing Liberal or Conservative parties have appeared slow to increase old age pensions and seem to have bowed, somewhat reluctantly, to the CCF-NDP pressure. This is understandable for it has been successive of Liberal and Conservative federal administrations which have had the responsibility of raising the large sums required to meet old age payments. The CCF and NDP have never governed federally, so it is comparatively easy for them to pose as the champions of those 65 years of age and over.

The concensus now in favor of still higher payments to the aged is just about universal and this has surprised some is that the Social Credit group, generally regarded as right wing and small "c" conservative in its approach to social problems has been increasingly vocal on the subject.

At a recent meeting of the commons' standing committee on health and welfare, it was the Social Credit members who attempted to introduce amendments to the most recent government legislation on old age security. One would have boosted the basic payment higher than it will be commencing April 1 this year and another would lower the eligibility age from 65 to 60 years.

Both amendments ran afoul of the rules in that private members are not allowed to introduce motions and amendments which would increase public spending. This is a prerogative of the government only. Committee members not of the other parties, including some Liberals, expressed sympathy with the Social Credit efforts while pointing out that their amendments were unfortunately out of order.

Finance minister Turner's recent budget provided for an increase in the basic old age security payment from $82.88 a month to a flat $100. This move drew general approval despite opposition charges of "too little, too late".

The other parties talked glibly of boosting the amount to $150 or $200 and this sort of figure seems almost certain to be adopted, probably in gradual stages over the next few years, providing the economy continues its present buoyant course.

Without the flat increase to $100, the payment starting April 1 would have risen from $82.88 to $86.61 as a result of the pension plan taking account of the full cost of living escalator. The new $100 rate will continue to be paid until the next cost of living adjustment on April 1, 1974. But there is also agitation to have this adjustment calculated more frequently than once a year.

Canada contends it has the best pension plan for older citizens in the world and the fact that it makes this basic rise true is the guaranteed income supplement, which is added to the basic security payment for those who qualify.

Older Canadians who have little or no other income than their pension can apply for all or part of the supplement. Starting this month a single person over 65 who qualifies for the full supplement will receive $170 a month, while a married couple both 65 or older, can get a maximum of $325.

The supplement scheme is costly but the mood of the politicians now is to hang the expense and do right by the Canadians, regardless of the cost. Old age security payments are received by about 1,800,000 Canadians over 65 years and over. Of these, over 1,000,000 also get some part of the guaranteed supplement.

The increase to $100 in the 1973 together with the cost of living adjustment to the supplement will be reflected in a cost an additional $400 million in fiscal 1973-74, bringing total expenditures for the year to almost $2.8 billion in the year.

The many proponents of still higher payments argue that older people need the increase to live in dignity and comfort at a time of rapidly increasing costs. They point out that the extra dollars are almost totally channelled back into the economy for the recipients buy more of the necessities and a few of the luxuries of life.

The history of the universal old age pension dates back to 1924 when everyone over 65 who applied was paid $40 a month.

Before the 1957 general election the Liberal government raised the pension to $46. In the fall John Diefenbaker's government gave it a further boost to $55. Subsequently it went to $65 and then $75 in 1963.

The guaranteed supplement was introduced in 1967. A year later a maximum two per cent escalation formula was added to take care of rises in the cost of living. In 1971 the special GIS rate for married couples was introduced.

A full cost of living escalation was introduced for both payments in 1972 raising the combined maximum to $150.

The future will almost certainly see an increase in the basic OAS and in the GIS if the cost of living continues to increase. And there is increasing pressure to lower the eligibility age from 65 to 60 years. This would probably be done gradually, perhaps over a five year span.

One other suggestion is to lower the OAS age for females to 60 or 62 on the ground that the average age differential between husband and wife has ranged from 2½ to three years at time of marriage.

Political Espionage Here Amounts to Little

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) Many reasons have been offered as to why there is unlikely to be a Watergate-type scandal in Canada. But one reason consistently overlooked is that the political parties in this country may not be worth the effort.

"You hear a lot of talk about secret strategy papers and things like that," says a Conservative. "But if a group of Grit goons were to ransack our headquarters during the campaign the most valuable discovery would be a list of Conservative supporters.

They would find some stuff about when the prime minister planned to enter "phase two" of the campaign, and let's face it, . . . No, I won't say it."

The most open comment of all came from Clifford Scotton, federal secretary of the New Democratic Party.

"If the other parties want to keep someone sitting in our library here during the whole campaign it wouldn't bother us very much."

He said the most useful information available from competing campaign headquarters would be the itineraries of party leaders, so all will not arrive in the same city on the same day.

"But you don't need to buy telephones for this information—you phone the various headquarters and simply ask."

The consensus seems to be that the Canadian political system—in effect, 264 fragmented campaigns—doesn't encourage espionage like the U.S. system where entire states must be organized on a bloc.

"And there is another thing," says Hugh Segal, defeated Conservative candidate in Ottawa Centre who now is on the staff of party leader Robert Stanfield.

"In this country there is no interest in the personal records of individuals that could be exposed through wiretapping. There was an attempt to smear Prime Minister Trudeau by some right-wing group back in 1968. No one paid any attention to that."

He thinks most political espionage in Canada is at the constituency level where a "volunteer worker might come on to the street and keep opposing candidates informed of campaign plans, such as the dates of mailing literature. All small stuff.

While the Conservative and Liberal party headquarters support a need for secrecy by checking for electronic devices and employing security guards, many workers think it is more apparent than real.

Parliamentary interns—political science students employed by various parties for a year—have been allowed to attend so-called secret strategy meetings and they are not necessarily loyal to any one party. Often they are involved with three different parties in a year.

The NDP had no qualms about employing the daughter of a Liberal senator during the last campaign and the Privy Council office—considered an extension of the prime minister's office—employed the daughter of an NDP member of Parliament.

The Conservative spokesman said that even if bugging devices were used, it might be difficult to get personnel to man them.

"Who would want to listen for two months to conversations consisting mainly of wives asking husbands to pick up groceries on the way home, or secretaries making luncheon dates?"

Tax in Effect Before It Is Law

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

It may have surprised you that the government started collecting its two cent increase in sales tax before the bill authorizing it had been approved in the house.

Traditionally governmental taxes imposed by law before they have the authority to do so.

Also retroactive legislation supposedly is repugnant to our system.

With the sales tax both principles are violated.

However, it has all been done before. We are now in the habit of taxing through retroactive legislation.

This has never been challenged in the courts. If it were the practice jazz might be condemned.

But until it is we follow the principle of payment now and law later.

The government has had its way in practically everything.

This is a notable shrill operation.

Bob thought if he brought women in from all over the province he might win some votes.

As happens with these things the government has continued it ever since.

Onions Costly Item

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

A friend of mine was having a barbecue on the weekend and found she couldn't get Spanish onions from her friendly neighborhood supermarket.

The reason given was that had they been available they would have been $1 apiece. For that kind of money you could probably get a ticket to a bullfight if you were in Spain.

However, this development adds a new dimension to Spanish onion shopping. Conceivably we may start buying them by the half or the quarter — like watermelons.

How about by the slice — or co-operatively with a friend? "Anybody want to go halvers on a Spanish onion?" It's another reason these days to feel nostalgic about Hula Hoops.

Visit To Ulster

From The Marmora Herald

On their return home recently from a three-week visit to Northern Ireland, Mr. and Mrs. Willy Hull reported that they enjoyed every minute because to find that damage to buildings was not as great as they had anticipated.

"People are going about their business as usual and the whole country seems to be prospering, although food prices are high", Mrs. Hull said.

"Small towns and rural areas have generally escaped bombings by the IRA so there isn't the same feeling of tension as there is in the cities of Belfast and Londonderry."

Australian and American ships joined forces to attack the invasion fleet bound for Port Moresby, the nearest New Guinea point to Australia. The battle was fought completely in the air, since the fleets never came within gun range. One Japanese carrier was sunk and others were damaged or put out of action so the Japanese withdrew.

Prices Board Will Report Only When Views Identical

OTTAWA (CP) — Reports by the proposed prices review board probably will be restricted to unanimous decisions, Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Grey indicated Monday.

Mr. Grey told Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield in the Commons that he will have to check further to determine the exact plan. But basically the board itself, not individual members, would submit reports.

He rejected a suggestion by Mr. Stanfield that the government is having trouble finding members to serve on the board but said he is not yet in a position to say when it will be established.

He told James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) the board will be able to release reports directly without reporting them to the government or waiting for them to be tabled in Parliament.

Mr. McGrath said this would mean the government is circumventing Parliament but Mr. Grey denied it, saying the board will be established under the Inquiries Act which is a statute approved by Parliament.

The act allows the board "very wide and deep powers" to investigate all aspects of changing prices, he said.

Mr. McGrath asked whether the government plans to make John Young chairman of the board so he "can manage something" from the now-defunct Prices and Incomes Commission which the university professor headed.

Mr. Grey told Mr. McGrath to wait and try to "salvage something from his very negative approach" to the review board.

Tensions Created At Prison

OTTAWA (CP) — "A lot of tensions" were created for staff and prisons when maximum-security prisoners were moved into the Cowansville, Que., medium-security prison, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Monday.

He was commenting in the Commons on a series of breaks from the institution, involving 12 prisoners.

The solicitor-general told Hewart Grafftey (PC—Brome-Missisquoi) there is a serious overcrowding problem at federal maximum-security institutions and prisoners had to be placed somewhere. There was opposition lingther when he said "we're not going to put them back on the street."

"Maximum methods" had been implemented at Cowansville, on a temporary basis, as a result of the breaks. He was anxious for the prison to return to a medium-security rehabilitation operation as soon as possible.

He said the prison now houses 130 maximum-security prisoners.

Vietnam Decision Unlikely Until June

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will likely wait until the end of this month before deciding whether to prolong involvement on the Vietnam ceasefire commission, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Monday.

He said Sunday's attack on a commission helicopter—the second in less than a week—was "part of the accumulating evidence" of the worsening situation in Vietnam.

Mr. Sharp told the House March 27 that the government will decide by May 31 whether to stay on the four country International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS).

He said then that only if there were "substantial improvement" in the situation would Canada stay beyond June 30.

He said Monday there "has not been the kind of improvement . . . which I laid down as one of the reasons for staying."

However, "we have been urged to be patient."

Those urgings had come before March 27 from various countries, the minister told reporters outside the House. Since then no governments had pressed for Canadian involvement beyond May 31.

The minister did not say what countries have urged Canada to stay on the ICCS. But the government would continue to watch events and make its decision by May 31, as promised March 27.

Both the United States and North Vietnam have stated their determination to carry out the terms of the peace agreement, Mr. Sharp said.

But the treaty is "obviously being breached."

Potter Says OHIP Costs on Target

TORONTO (CP) — Tbh Ontario Health Insurance Plan cost Ontario taxpayers $38.12 million last August and $42.01 million in September, figures released Monday by Health Minister Richard Potter indicate.

Earlier this year, Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic member of the legislature for Toronto High Park, released OHIP costs for April, May and June, showing an increase of about $1 million a month. He predicted they would continue to rise at about that rate.

But by July the cost had fallen to about $37 million compared with $44.16 million in June.

Dr. Potter said Monday the over-all cost of OHIP for the 1972-73 fiscal year would be about $540.85 million, "accurately hitting the ministry's projection of $540 million as reflected in the estimates."

Originally, however, the estimates for 1972-73 referred to by Dr. Potter were $460 million. He sought $50 million more in supplementary estimates last December.

Free Vote Urged at Prison

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Two New Democratic Party members of the Ontario legislature said Monday a free election should be held at the Guelph Correctional Centre for positions on a prisoners' committee and the centre's prisoner population be reduced immediately.

Dr. Morton Shulman, Toronto High Park, and Patrick Lawlor, Toronto Lakeshore, visited the centre Saturday and talked to prisoners.

Dr. Shulman said previously that drug trafficking and homosexuality as well as strong-arm tactics by the prisoners' committee ran rampant in the institution.

Syl Apps, minister of correctional services, has promised an investigation into the charges.

Dr. Shulman said several prisoners have told him they would be in "serious trouble" if the prisoners' committee found out what they said to the MPPs.

Police Robbed

COPPER CLIFF, Ont. (CP) — Thieves who wanted weapons went to a good source here.

They broke into a regional police quartermaster's depot on the weekend and made off with 14 rifles and shotguns plus an assortment of handguns, handcuffs and billies.

But alert police arrested two men and recovered the loot.

Police Costs Push Tax Rate Up 12 Mills

PORT DOVER, Ont. (CP) — Increasing costs for police service have resulted in tax increases of 12 mills or about $60 for the average homeowner in this community 60 miles southwest of Hamilton.

Protection for persons and property costing $150,220 is the largest item budgeted for this year, an increase of more than $20,000 from last year.

The increase resulted despite attempts to cut municipal spending by reducing the size of the police force by one.

Second Child's Body Shipped To Parents in Cardboard Box

EDMONTON (CP) — The body of a little Indian girl was shipped in a cardboard grocery box from an Edmonton hospital to her mother in northern Alberta, the second similar case in the province in six months, the legislature was told Monday.

In addition, an autopsy was performed on the girl's body without the permission of her parents, said Health Minister Neil Crawford.

Art Dixon (SC—Calgary Millican) said this was the same kind of "disgraceful situation" that occurred last fall.

In november, the body of an Indian child that died of a congenital disease while only a few months old was sent home to the parents in a cardboard box from a hospital in Fort Vermilion, Alta.

The body had first been placed in a plastic bag.

Officials at Fort Vermillion said later no coffins were immediately available. They were anxious to get the body on transportation that was about to leave for the girl's northern community.

Mr. Crawford said the latest case is different "in that it involved a major metropolitan hospital."

Edmonton has lots of undertakers and it could not be argued that no coffins were available, he said.

The minister said outside the legislature he believes the hospital involved is the Royal Alexandra Hospital.

Squabbles Highlight Mayors' Conference

TORONTO (CP) — Civic heads of a group of Canada's largest municipalities agreed unanimously Monday to ask for a bigger slice of federal and provincial revenue and then fell to squabbling over how to deliver the message.

They also got into a long and confused wrangle over whether this first big-city meeting of its kind should have a follow-up next year in Edmonton, and eventually shelved this idea in favor of letting "the needs of the cities" dictate the next meeting.

The side-tracking of any form of a continuing organization for the self-styled "Cities for the '70s" conference appeared to remove any imminence, as feared by some mayors, that the big cities might set up a parallel organization to the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

Some big-city politicians feel that the federation is top-heavy with members for the smaller communities and devotes too much attention to their affairs.

"This meeting may result in the federation doing more in future to reflect the attitude of the larger cities," Mayor Robert Lockhart of Saint John, N.B., said to reporters after the meeting.

While there was ready agreement at the meeting with the theme of more federal provincial tax monies for the municipalities, there was sharp division over how the senior governments were to be informed.

The tax-sharing resolution as originally drafted and moved by Mayor Ivor Dent of Edmonton, proposed that the mayors make immediate representations to both the provincial governments and the federal government.

But Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal objected to the municipalities—which are constitutionally creatures of the provinces—dealing directly with the federal government.

After, considerable wrestling over the point, the meeting fell in with Mr. Drapeau's suggestion that representations be made directly to the provinces and that they be asked also to convey the resolution to the federal government.

Mayor Drapeau brought peace to the meeting during a second hassle while delegates were arguing over setting up mechanism for a 1974 meeting, at the invitation of Edmonton, and for continuing its work in the interval. He got this move discarded.

After hearing occasional sniping at the Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, Mayor Victor Copps of Hamilton also suggested that no steps should be taken by the big-city group until the federation has met in Charlottetown next month.

"There seems to be machinery to set up a rival organization," he said. "If the federation is doing such a terrible job, the place to discuss this is in Charlottetown."

Hydro Inquiry to Take 10 Days

TORONTO (CP) — Hearings into the conduct of Ontario Hydro and the provincial government in the $44 million Canada Square Corp. development should last about 10 days, inquiry chairman Allan MacBeth said Monday.

Mr. Davis bowed to opposition pressure last week in setting up the inquiry to investigate allegations of political patronage in the Canada Square contract to build a new headquarters for Ontario Hydro, near the Queen's Park government buildings.

Mr. Davis has admitted that Gerhard Moog, head of Canada Square, is a friend. He has denied that the friendship had any part in the contract.

Another charge, denied cy Mr. Moog, was that Canada Square had information on the project nine months before any other firm.

Judges Agree Government Had Right to Ban Mine Sale

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and former energy minister J. J. Greene were acting in good faith in the performance of their public duty in 1970 when they blocked the sale of Denison Mines to the U.S.-controlled Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd., the Supreme Court of Canada ruled Monday.

In an unanimous judgment the court rejected an appeal by Roman Corp., and Stephen Roman, owners of Denison, who sought an award of $104 million arising from the government action.

Roman Corp. alleged conspiracy intimidation and unlawful interference with their economic interests arising from statements by Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Greene that the proposed sale would not be allowed under the government's foreign ownership policy.

Lower courts threw out the action on grounds the policy statements referring to the proposed Denison sale were either made in the Commons or contained in press releases and thus could not be used as a base for a court action.

The Ontario appeal court said it was the essence of parliamentary government that the elected representatives should be able to carry out their duties in the best interests of Canada "free from any worry of being called to account anywhere, except in Parliament."

It said that a press release as an extension of the parliamentary privilege.

Mr. Justice Ronald Martland, writing the unanimous high court decision, said he did not dissent from those views.

But he also pointed out that the claim for $104 million was not based upon loss of profits but for the total purchase price of Denison shares.

"The appellants still own those shares," he noted.

He said Roman Corp. and Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas did not proceed to complete an oral agreement on the proposed sale because they knew legislation would be passed in Parliament to prevent Canadian uranium resources from passing into non-Canadian hands.

"If valid legislation for that purpose were enacted and its prevented performance of a contract for transfer of such control, there is no doubt that the parties to the agreement would have no cause of action arising from the enactment of such legislation," said Judge Martland.

In the Denison case the two parties had decided not to proceed to perform the proposed contract of sale because of government policy statements, said the judge.

Such statements, made in good faith, could not give rise to claims of inducing a breach of contract, he said.

To support its case, Roman Corp. noted that the legislation foreseen by Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Greene still has not been passed by Parliament.

However such legislation now is before Parliament.

Canada Mourns Frost

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Leslie Miscampbell Frost, for 12 years Progressive-Conservative premier of Ontario, was buried Monday afternoon on the banks of the Scugog River in his beloved Lindsay.

About 500 jammed inside the church, among them a former prime minister, two representatives of the Queen and former political friends and foes.

Most of the Ontario cabinet was there, many Progressive Conservative back benchers and a few members of Parliament from Ottawa.

Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener brought a simple red rose cross that was placed at the front of the church. Lt.-Gov. W. Ross Macdonald was also in attendance, as were representatives from both the Liberal and New Democratic parties.

Mr. Frost's coffin was draped in the red ensign of Ontario and on top was a purple cushion with the medals he earned during the First World War.

There was a hymn, a psalm, a reading and a prayer for the man who died Friday after a lengthy battle with stomach cancer.

Rev. Lorne Dorsch gave thanks "for a kind personality . . . and we remember with thanksgiving his contribution to government, the commonwealth, the armed forces and the church."

As the funeral cortege moved slowly along Lindsay's main street about 1,000 persons watched and an entire city seemed to pause.

Mr. Frost was buried beside his wife, Gertrude Jane, who died in 1970. Nearby, in the same cemetery, his brother, Colin, also is buried.

Charge Reduced

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Paul Smithers, 16, of Mississauga, originally charged with non-capital murder in the death of a 17-year-old youth, Monday had the charge against him reduced to manslaughter.

The Crown reduced the charge at a court hearing here, and a preliminary hearing was set for June 32.

Smithers was charged in the death of Barrie Ross Cosby, who died following a fracas after a midget league hockey game earlier this year.

A CRUEL HOAX

Nearly Six Months Ago, The Government Of Ontario In The Person Of Dr. R. T. Potter, Health Minister, Managed In The Face of Considerable Uproar And Debate To Secure The Passage of Bill 246, "The Denture Therapist Act". This Act Has Still To Be Proclaimed Law.

A Debacle

The manner in which this highly-controversial Bill was rushed through the legislature, in defiance of opposition to the Bill expressed publicly both by denturists and members of the public, has already been the subject of extensive editorial comment in major newspapers throughout Ontario.

Denturists contended from the outset that Bill 246, "The Denture Therapist Act" had as its primary intent the elimination of denturists who posed a competitive alternative to dentists in the provision of denture services to the public. We even went so far as to describe the Bill as an "ANTI DENTURIST ACT". This society emphasized again and again THAT:

1. The new dental health worker would be completely under the control of dentists; THAT.
2. He would have no say as to the fees he would be paid; THAT,
3. His being employed would be entirely at the discretion of dentists; THAT,
4. He would not be accorded professional status as Bill 246 implies, but would simply be just another dental auxiliary held in abject servitude to dentists; and THAT,
5. The licensing of denture therapists would not reduce the costs for denture services to the public, just as the public has not benefited from a reduction in costs for dental care when dentists have used the services of other auxiliaries such as dental nurses, hygienists, technicians, etc.

The Public Is Being Deceived

Denturists no longer entertain any doubts as to the full extent of the profession's control over denture therapists. The recent publication in the Ontario Gazette of the Regulations under Bill 246 makes it very clear that not only may a denturist, cum denture therapist NOT have any direct contact with a person for whom he performs his "professional" services except in a dentist's office, and under the "direct supervision of a dental surgeon", BUT, IT WILL BE DEEMED "PROFESSIONAL MISCONDUCT" AND, AS SUCH, AN OFFENCE UNDER THE ACT PUNISHABLE BY $2000 FINES OR SIX MONTH IN JAIL OR BOTH, IF HE ATTEMPTS TO ISSUE TO A PATIENT A STATEMENT OF ACCOUNT FOR SERVICES RENDERED, ANY AND ALL BILLINGS FOR ANY DENTURE SERVICES PERFORMED BY DENTURE THERAPISTS — EVEN REPAIRS TO DENTURES — WILL BE HANDLED EXCLUSIVELY BY DENTISTS.

SECTION 2 SUBSECTIONS A AND B OF THE REGULATIONS STATE:

(a) "Professional misconduct means, the soliciting of patients by a denture therapist;

(b) the submission of any accounts or charges to a patient or to any person legally responsible for the patients' debts for services rendered to the patient by a denture therapist;"

It is now very clear to us that control of the new dental health worker, for which the Ontario Dental Association lobbied the government so extensively, was motivated not by concern for the welfare of the public but for their vested interests only. Moreover, the abuses which have occured and are occurring, such as excessive charges by dentists for services rendered by auxiliaries, will likely continue unabated.

"Low Cost Denture Service" Provided by Dentists

The Ontario Dental Association has sponsored several advertisements in newspapers throughout Ontario listing the names of dentists in various areas who are allegedly participating in a "low cost denture service". The advertisements state that the dentists listed therein will provide dentures (full dentures only) to the public for $180.00. The "service" is on a voluntary basis only and any dentists may choose to participate in the scheme or withdraw from it with only thirty days notice in writing required by The Royal College of Dental Surgeons. It has been stated by Ontario Health Minister Potter that this commitment of the dental profession to provide a "low cost denture service" was "what really sold" him in his decision to legislate against denturists.

Officers of the Ontario Dental Association, however, have issued several conflicting statements as to the number of dentists they claim are participating in the scheme. At one time it was alleged that there was something in the order of 1,100 dentists prepared to co-operate. A later press release claimed that there was less than one-half this number — approximately 500. Another press release claimed that there were 607 dentists who were "volunteering" their services.

Aside from such obvious discrepancies, the question must be asked; how many dentists are actually participating and, how effective is the service that is allegedly being provided?

Misleading Advertising

The Denturist Society, through outside agencies, reports of private citizens and numerous letters from members of the public has ascertained the following:

A survey conducted in the Peel-Halton area indicated that, of the twenty dentists whose names appeared in an advertisement paid for by the Ontario Dental Association, nearly half of those listed had NEVER APPLIED TO BE INCLUDED IN THE SCHEME, OR HAD WITHDRAWN FROM THE PROGRAMME, OR WERE NOT ABIDING BY THE ESTABLISHED FEE SCHEDULE, OR WERE USING THE "LOW COST SERVICE" TO COERCE PERSONS APPLYING FOR THE SERVICE TO BUY MORE EXPENSIVE "PERSONALIZED DENTURES".

Typical of the many complaints that have been drawn to the attention of the Denturist Society, is this comment contained in a letter from a Georgetown resident to a Cabinet Minister in the Provincial Government, a copy of which was forwarded to the office of this Society.

"An advertisement re "low cost dentures" appeared in the local paper, and I was pleased that my dentist was a participant, consistent I thought with his fairness to patients in his practice. On my next trip I enquired again re the cost of denture plates, in view of this ad. I was told that the low cost dentures were intended for the benefit of those on welfare, etc., who previously had been unable to afford dentures, and of necessity would therefore be of cheap quality. I also learned that the participating dentists were not in agreement as to the charge for a single plate under the $180.00 per set fee. One dentists at least, intended to charge his patients $110.00 if they were only getting a single denture, rather than just the fair half of the $180.00 cost. I was advised that, personalized single dentures would cost me $150.00 for an upper plate only".

As the foregoing would indicate, many dentists are not honoring their commitment to reduce the costs for dentures and the Minister of Health should consider his agreement with the profession little more than a cruel hoax.

A Clear Alternative

The Denturist Society has recommended several changes in Bill 246 which would make the presently unworkable Act eminently reasonable and workable.

1. No Need For Supervision.

Denturists have contended that supervision of their work by dentists is completely unnecessary since their activities in no way constitute a public health hazard. Confirming this fact was a statement by Mr. Ian Cato, an official of the Ontario Dental Association that appeared in a leading Ontario newspaper in February of this year. Mr. Cato said that the O.D.A. had a file of "thirty incidents of malpractice against denturists". He conceded that:

> "not all the incidents were serious, nor was their number out of proportion to the amount of routine complaints the O.D.A. receives about Ontario's 3,400 dentists".

2. Public Health Safeguarded

Setting reasonable standards and requiring persons to qualify under these would normally be considered sufficient safeguards. With respect to denturists it is clear that the Minister of Health felt that these were not sufficient. Therefore we have recommended the requirement of an "Oral Bill of Health". This provision would require that any person who chose to use the services of a denturist for dentures would first have an examination of their mouth by a qualified medical practitioner or dentist. If the tissue and/or remaining teeth are diagnosed to be sound and healthy a person would then be given a medical clearance to go to the denturist of their choice to secure dentures.

As any reasonable person will admit, such an amendment to the Act would meet all the concerns, real or imagined, that Members of the legislature and officials in the Health Ministry have been moved to express publicly over the past several months.

3. Fees To Be Regulated.

Denturists have further recommended that the Act be amended to give government the power to establish and regulate the fees charged by denturists for their services.

The foregoing changes while few in number would satisfy both denturists and the public and this Society would be prepared, through its members, to support fully any legislation which would incorporate these recommendations.

To the Public

The Denturist Society of Ontario is extremely grateful to the many people who have taken the time and trouble to write to their Members of The Provincial Parliament expressing their support for the stand taken by denturists. We urge you to continue your very important efforts on our behalf.

Consumer Complaints Researched and Answered

A Consumer Information booklet describing consumer interest of interest to everyone will be available by the end of May. This is part of a LIP grant project, writers and researchers, May Holtshausen (left), Rosi Vodrey and Elaine Struthers have worked on. By the end of May, when the grant is finished, these women will also have a "Consumer Kit" available and visual displays for addressing interested groups

Consumer Researchers Ready to Talk

Three Belleville women visited consumer groups, compiled statistics and now have written a book on their findings.

This LIP grant project began in January for Rosi Vodrey, psychology graduate Elaine Struthers, a home economist and May Holtshausen, a social welfare worker joined her in March.

Not only have they compiled their book, they have also put together a kit which will be available the end of May to anyone at the United Community Services office.

The only problem said Rosi is that we have all this information, we're willing to speak to any group of any size about any part of consumer education—but there's no response.

"Everybody gets in the same hassles, rich or poor," adds Elaine Struthers. People say they didn't know their rights after they've had a problem.

In the beginning Consumers' Box 99, a consumer complaint centre in Ottawa was notified when these three women began their research. Consumer complaints from Belleville were requested.

The 17 complaints from December 1972 to March 1973 varied from soap prices, garment quality to defective automobiles.

These complaints and more were studied by the three women and consumer education began forming.

By the end of May, 600 copies will be published in a 100 page book.

General consumer education is what these three women want. A Consumer Kit with all information on consumerism is available to any person interested at the United Community Services building at 240 William St.

The six areas include: advertising, comparison shopping, guarantees and warranties, itinerant salesmen, signing a contract and owning.

The consumer education program which includes these women visiting groups of citizens to speak about consumerism is not succeeding as hoped for.

"Here we sit with all this information about consumerism. We've phoned and written letters to women's groups — to any group imaginable who use credit and may need assistance. We've talked to some and speak to them about consumerism. And there's little response," said the three researchers.

Part of the reason for little response accounted Rosi Vodrey, is the time of year. This is rather late and most groups are getting ready for their summer break.

All work for the LIP grant, Consumer Education has to be completed by the end of May.

That's when the books will be available. We'll mail them to the organizations we think will benefit most and hope people will read them.

"It's surprising," said May, "most of the information published in this book has been published before. There's government literature available, insurance policy information for home and automobile. Credit is not left out."

Elaine Struthers said: "there are a lot of young people around who can buy on credit easily and don't fully understand the terms that they sign.

"Credit is used by everyone. A large store here in Belleville told us that 50 per cent of its customers buy on credit with a two-year term to pay.

"We're proud of what we've done, in the short time we had," said May. "But we would like to tell people about consumerism."

They are willing to visit women in small groups during their coffee hours and discuss consumerism.

Anyone with a consumer problem can call 968-7702 from Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Facts For Consumers

The 100-page book on consumerism researched by three women who spent four months at the task will be released by the end of May.

Topics in the book are: advertising; comparison shopping, guarantees and warranties, itinerant salesmen, signing a contract and housing.

After interviewing Belleville businessmen and obtaining consumer information and government legislation, Rosi Vodrey, Elaine Struthers and May Holtshousen said their book has complete consumer reports for anyone.

The section on ADVERTISING includes why people buy what they buy, methods of advertising, cost and method of choice.

COMPARISON SHOPPING of interest to men and women is a short chapter that offers helpful suggestions for careful shoppers. Check ads, know what you want, plan expenditures, read labels carefully, try buying when sales are on, compare brands, find out about the service and know where to complain, are pointers to follow.

GUARANTEES AND WARRANTIES are defined and suggestions are provided including what to watch for in warranties and guarantees.

Sales pitches are described in the chapter, ITINERANT SALESMEN. Some salesmen ask questions during their talk and write down the information. Then, they close their pitch by saying, "Will you OK this?" Monthly or annual payments are another part of a "close". By knowing salesmen's techniques, consumers will be wiser.

The chapter on SIGNING A CONTRACT first advises consumers to never be embarrassed to ask questions. They should also remember that their signature is worth money. If any clauses have to be added they should be added in the contract before the person signs. Consumers should also make certain they know what they're buying. Check the full price, read the fine print, check guarantees and warranties, and ask someone else to explain the contract. Reputable dealers won't object to having someone else explain it.

HOUSING and the legalities involved—is the last chapter. Legal advice should be sought. Mortgages, public housing and landlord-tenant relations are discussed in a simplified way.

Pope Answers To Women

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul set up today an international commission to investigate ways to "liberate" women in the Roman Catholic Church and in society at large.

The youngest member named to the commission is an American school girl.

The pontiff instructed the 25-member commission to extend research to such controversial questions as whether the church should open the way for women deacons and women priests. But he reserved to himself all final decisions.

The commission, which has a majority of women, was asked to study what makes women "happy or unhappy, their aspirations and their frustrations."

A Vatican announcement warned, however, that the commission's research should be "conducted in the light of the Christian philosophy on woman and of the pastoral mission of the church in this field."

The commission has been in preparation for 1½ years. Information was among the recommendations submitted to the Pope by the third synod of world bishops in November, 1971, when George Cardinal Flahiff of Winnipeg challenged the church's traditional stand toward women and came out in favor of women priests.

BAAD CWL

Officers fr the new year of Read Catholic Womens League are Mrs. Adrian Callaghan, president; Mrs. Frank Coffey, first vice president; Mrs. Mike Durkin, second vice president, treasurer Mrs. Angus Gaffney.

"Why didn't I think of insurance?"

A businessman, must consider the risk of property damage, theft, vandalism, public liability, loss of valuable papers, business interruption and other insurance needs. A package policy from the Joyce Agency now can combine all essential insurance into one policy at 10% to 20% less premium.

'Jackie Jet' Saleswoman

PARIS (Reuter) — In her younger days, she crashed gracefully through the sound barrier and became the world's fastest woman flier. The only woman test pilot in France, they called her "Jackie Jet."

Today at 55, Jacqueline Auriol is the French aircraft industry's super-saleswoman. Now she smashes through the world's market in aggressive export drives—gracefully too.

At present she is busy helping in the organization of the giant Paris International Air Show, opening at Le Bourget in May. The show is the world's biggest shop window for sophisticated weaponry and aircraft from 18 countries, including the United States and the Soviet Union.

Jacqueline Auriol became famous during the early '50's for her duel in the skies with American Jacqueline Cochran —a 15-year fight that ended with Jackie Jet capturing the world speed title in a delta-winged Mirage 111 fighter in June, 1953.

The petite, auburn-haired French test pilot has since scouted round the world on numerous missions, the success of which has helped to make France the world's No. 3 arms exporter.

Jacqueline Auriol's well-sculpted nose is American, skilfully constructed piece by piece in New York—largely from the bone bank of Manhattan Hospital, after a terrible air crash into the Seine River in 1949.

Most of her former beauty she left on operating tables during 32 separate plastic surgery operations which dragged on for three years. Her grace today comes from a quiet dedication, an intensity and a devotion to flying and her family.

At the age of 30, Jacqueline Auriol was a qualified test pilot and also the daughter-in-law of France's first post-war president.

She gave up a dazzling social life to concentrate on flying after she learned to fly for fun in 1947.

Up to a few years ago, at the Centre Dessais en Vol (flight test centre) in Bretigny, near Paris, she was the only woman test pilot and on the field she is known simply as Auriol.

Her fellow-workers see nothing incongruous in "Auriol," dressed in greasy white overalls, repairing a defective undercarriage. Nor does she.

Ann Landers

Men—Start Whipping Up Meals Pioneer Cooking Rewarding

Dear Ann Landers: When you answered that lad from Plainfield who complained about his mother's cooking, you missed a golden opportunity. Instead of telling him that hospitality is more important than food, why didn't you tell him to learn to cook? Pioneering in the kitchen can be fun.

While punching cows in the West, I was amazed at the men who could whip up a meal in no time at all. We had sheepherders' spuds, sourdough biscuits, smooth, lump-free gravy, beautiful steaks and delicious coffee. When I started to cook my flapjacks were like linoleum squares, but when you begin like that, you've got to get better.

Please tell your teen-age readers a world of adventure awaits them in the kitchen. A guy who can cook is ahead of the pack for reasons that may not come clear to him for many years.—Bar U Ranch, Sublette, Illinois

Dear Bar U: These days a man who can't cook is in trouble. If he has a working wife it's darned near mandatory. Thanks for the testimonial.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I saw an advertisement in a respectable newspaper for "oils" that promised to awaken "animal instincts and arouse passion in males." I read the ad carefully. The "oils" are made from skunk glands.

For $10 plus tax you can get one-third of an ounce of each. The ad said the oils release some sort of mysterious odor that will "awaken the male's animal desires with a sensuous power of a wave crashing upon the shore."

Please tell me if the stuff will do any good.—Unlucky In Love

Dear Unlucky: The oils will do a lot of good—for the company that sells them. They will get rich from suckers who should know better.

Dear Ann Landers: I did not like your answer to the mother who was upset with her 12-year-old son just because he walked around the house with no clothes on. Anyone who thinks there is something wrong with it has got to have a dirty mind.

What's wrong with walking around naked in front of his own ma? She gave birth to him, bathed him, diapered him and clothed him when he wasn't able to take care of himself. So, Ann Landers, why don't you bug out!—A Hipster From Chicy

Dear Chicy Hip: A 17-year-old no longer needs to be bathed, diapered and dressed. He does, however, need a sense of propriety about his person and he certainly ought to show some respect for his mother's wishes. She told him repeatedly that she didn't think a full-grown man should be parading around the house naked as a radish—and I'm with her.

Successful Living

Popeye: I am What I Am!

By DORIS CLARK

If we are to make the best of life as we find it, we have to face ourselves very frankly, with our weaknesses and our strengths. Regardless of who my parents were or what physical attributes I have inherited, whether my I.Q. is plus or minus, "I am what I am," as Popeye used to say; this is the only material I have out of which to build some kind of life.

I may wish that I were beautiful or handsome, or that Aunt Susie had left me that million instead of leaving it of the home for stray cats, but I am what I am!

What can I do then to insure that I am making the best of what I have to work with? — The Rev. Dr. C. Andrew Lawson.

Dr. Lawson suggests that the first act is self-acceptance. And the second one to see what we can do to improve. He quotes Professor Thorndike: "We have discovered that mature people can learn practically anything they want to learn. In fact, the learning ability of elderly people is very nearly as great as that of young people at the highly favorable ages of 17 to 19."

Don't let the thought of age fence you in.

Dear Doris: Like "People Do Care", I too have hypoglycemia. I was told by my family doctor to eat lots of sugar and consequently I got worse instead of better.

I then went to another doctor, got on a no-sugar diet and am feeling much better. Many are not aware of the harm that can come from low blood sugar.

The symptoms are numerous and in my case I was treated for everything but. I hope this information may help someone. — Been There Too.

Dear Been There: My consultant agrees about those symptoms - but cautions people to make sure the diagnosis is right before beginning treatment. I am glad the no-sugar diet was right for you.

Dear Doris: Please help me I am bowlegged, and I HATE IT! I am very embarrassed in dresses and shorts in the summer, yet I just love dresses.

Also, I have a small bust. I am five-foot-six, 25 years old and weigh 110 pounds. — Bowlegged and Figureless.

Dear Bowlegged: You could stand to gain about 20 pounds, and that would round out the curves - both upper and lower. For rounded calves try jogging or on-the-spot running.

Two leaflets that will help are "Bowlegs and How To Minimize Them" and "Chart For Curves", a guide to gaining weight. For each leaflet, send 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, in care of this newspaper.

(There are Canadian resources to help solve your problem. Write to Doris for direction, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, MAY 8, 1973

The Work Never Ends

In a cluttered, backroom, William Street office Bill Hockley, Bert Gerling and Doug Gaebel carry on the business of the Citizens Bureau while a fourth staff member, Martin Lewis works in the field. It was a good morning and six of the more than 400 files were closed to mutual satisfaction.

Holding peoples' hand and fighting their battles is how Mr. Hockley sums up some of the business of the bureau which faces the end of the line May 31 if LIP funds cannot be extended or independent funding cannot be found.

Time Running Out on Bureau As Community Support Sought

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A product of its time, a machine to fight the machine, Belleville's Citizens Bureau is running out of time.

Two days before Christmas the bureau hung out its shingle with Bill Hockley at the experiment's helm. Perhaps in tune with Mr. Hockley's outspoken, incessant attack of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, the bureau in its early days was a clearing house for the resolution of claims held up in the red tape of the UIC.

The experiment, designed after similar agencies in Europe, was working. In the beginning wrinkles had to be ironed out. No file folders were available and cleaning house had carded. Now more than 400 files clutter the William Street office, sharing space with a maze of desks and a stove.

In the midst of it all is Hockley, angry on the telephone because he is getting the runaround from the UIC. He makes a second call with no logic. A third call to a federal minister's office and two hours later - after months of delays- the cheque is coming through, making Hockley suspect still. "It doesn't make any sense we should be able to get what man's money when he couldn't get it himself. - One call from a cabinet minister, and the money is coming through.

Another call comes in and is taken by one of the staff while Mr. Hockley (director of the program) runs his hands through his hair, frustrated about the problem of written endorsements needed for re-application for Local Initiative Project funding.

Time is running short for the bureau but there is a chance left. One desperate attempt to give the program new life.

Bureau staff wrote or personally approached every leading Belleville citizens and organizations including city hall for letters in support of the program.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey replied immediately, followed by Ald. Jack Ellis and Reeve. The mayor on several occasions has referred people to Mr. Hockley and his staff.

The others haven't had the courtesy to reply one way or the other with the exception of one senior alderman who did not endorse or criticize the program but acknowledged he had received the letter and wrote "the appropriate action had been taken."

Apart from the trickle of city hall support, the bureau has been swamped with letters of well wishes from every corner of the community, each letter to be relayed to the federal government as a lever for extension of the program.

Mr. Hockley is paid $120 weekly for the job with his staff making nominally less. For $5,000 the entire project could be carried on for six more months.

Off the phone again, talking between sips of cold coffee, he says he's angry at the injustice.

He talks of victories when a problem is solved. If need be we hold their hands and fight their battles."

He relishes one occasion when a fresh-from-the-showroom car wouldn't start with five miles on the mileage indicator.

"The owner tried all day at the Belleville auto dealer to have a service crew come to his home to start the car with no luck. He plooned the garage and after a conversation said we would be pleased to tow the car in for them if they were too busy. They jumped at the idea until we explained we would first tow the car all beer-town with a sign explaining the post-sale service.

"A little unorthodox, but a crew was at the home in five minutes with all the necessary equipment," said Mr. Hockley.

The staff here don't want $17,000 a year, they want bread on the table and to continue doing the job they all thoroughly enjoy," he said.

We all stick our necks out pushing for the answers and we're all running the risk of having our heads chopped off. We like the job."

Mr. Hockley took a swing once when an irate businessman called Hockley and his staff "unemployed bums living off the taxpayer."

That's the only one. The Belleville merchants are really terrific," he said. "We've got social workers but we try to speak common sense."

Until the end of May the calls can keep coming. If all goes as expected a board of directors will be arranged until a final decision is made by the federal government.

Beer Garden For Fair OK

Council approval was won Monday for a Bavarian Beer Garden at the 1973 Quinte Exhibition.

The Quinte Exhibition-Raceway made the application on the ground of public interest. Being the type of organization we are," said a letter to the city, "makes us very conscious of the nature of the people in the community where we are located and which we attempt to serve.

"Further, operating a beverage concession is not really a high item in our priorities, but we are obliged in order to the wishes of the majority who attend and support our functions," it continued. Proposed period for the Bavarian Beer Garden is August 7 to 11, 1973.

Alderman Joe Cox strongly opposed the application. He said he did not think it was in the interests of the community for alcohol to be served at the Exhibition which would be attended by many family groups and children. "There are plenty of other outlets," he said, "and it could lead to violence."

"We are living in a day when the population has swung from alcohol to drugs and now it's swinging back to alcohol," said Ald. Cox. He then called for a recorded vote. "I want people to know where I stand on this issue," he said.

Alderman Stu Meeks, speaking for the application, said he had attended the races since the beginning. "I've seen only one person in the whole 13 years ever removed because of drink and he had brought it in himself," he said.

Although the application was approved on the recorded vote, it was opposed by Alderman Cox, Keegan, Orr and Smith.

Donation Return Request Delayed

Belleville City Council is delaying its request for the return of an $8,900 donation toward the Royal Canadian Air Force Memorial Wing until further information is available.

The fund, which now stands at $19,000, was originally intended to provide a $3-million Aviation Museum and Memorial at Trenton. Since the city made its donation, Ottawa has been discussed as possible site for the memorial and a request was made last month for the return of Belleville's $8,900.

In a letter to Mayor Robin Jeffrey, Air Marshal C. R. Dunlap, president of the RCAF Memorial Fund, said to date no decision has been made on the location of the proposed memorial. "Admittedly the chances of its being located at Trenton have diminished," he said, "but it would be incorrect to rule CFB Trenton out as a possible site."

In response to concern expressed at Monday's council meeting by Alderman Joe Cox, Mayor Robin Jeffrey said she understood the balance of the fund, $170,000, was in a trust account and receiving interest. "Only $14.26 has been added in expenses in the last two years," she said. "If our request is proceeded with, the money would probably have to be returned on a pro-rated basis, perhaps 40 cents to the dollar."

Earlier, the fund spent larger sums on architects and design. Alderman Cox had argued for cessation the request for the return of the donation and said the fund "should be looked at closely".

"It is still possible the memorial could be in Trenton instead of Ottawa," said Mayor Jeffrey. Air Marshall Dunlap said he would keep Mayor Jeffrey informed of developments and that the request would be brought before the next meeting of the Fund's executive committee.

It was decided to delay further action until more information was provided.

Asphalt Bylaw Passed Over Builders' Protests

Despite claims by the Quinte Home Builders and by representatives of the Rollins Construction that the move would increase the cost of houses by from $150 to $180, Belleville city council Monday approved the recommendation of City Engineer William Purcell requiring a new roadway asphalt in new residential subdivisions.

The engineer's recommendation is for 3½ inches of asphalt laid in two courses rather than the two inches currently required.

Mr. Purcell estimated that the additional asphalt would cost $60 per lot or $360 on a six-lot but Mike DeMark, president of Quinte Home Builders put the figure at up to $180.

This additional cost would have to be passed on to the home purchaser and if, smoothened over the life of the mortgage, could cost up to an additional $200, he said.

He said his firm had three subdivisions planned and had already sold some of the homes. The retroactive aspect would be unfair as his company could not now go back to customers and ask for more money, he said.

In answer to questions from council, however, the city engineer assured the additional asphalt was needed in the same areas the two inches now required was not piled up.

Asphalt pavement is guaranteed only for one year, following which maintenance is paid for out of the general city rate.

Alderman Dr. John Stock suggested there would be a taxpayer outcry if new roads broke down in a couple of years and heavy maintenance costs had to be paid out of the general rate.

Alderman Ben Corke suggested the additional $36 cost estimated by the city engineer was needed if a relatively small item when it was considered the cost of new housing had increased 11 percent in the past year as a result of inflation.

In the end, council passed the engineer's recommendation but without the retroactive clause.

Market Will Stay Put

This is the feeling of city council which Monday turned down a Quinte Exhibition and Raceway proposal that the market be moved to the fairgrounds.

The Quinte Exhibition-Raceway proposal was received by council March 26 and was referred to the city parks board and the Belleville Downtown Association for comment.

Parks Board had no official objection to the market being moved to the fairgrounds but members indicated the proposal would not get their private approval.

The Downtown Association, however, voiced strong objection to the proposed move on a number of private individuals also voiced their opposition through letters to The Intelligencer.

When the proposal returned to council Monday, a recommendation to leave the market where it is was passed without discussion.

Alderman Stu Meeks noted that the proposal by the Exhibition - Raceway had been aimed at finding a year-round use for fairground buildings.

He suggested that the possibility of using fairgrounds buildings as a day care centre and practice place for the

UCS Probe Voted Down

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

There will be no investigation into the operations of the Belleville United Community Services as requested by Alderman Arthur Keegan.

This was the almost unanimous decision of council Monday when, by a 10-1 vote, it turned down a motion by Alderman Keegan for a complete investigation into the UCS.

In speaking to his motion, the alderman, consuerded UCS volunteer workers for their efforts but said stories are being heard around the city that suggested many persons were displeased with UCS operations.

He said people must have complete confidence in the UCS or its money - raising campaigns would be unsuccessful.

Also, he said no UCS should be self - supporting without a city grant.

Alderman Stu Meeks seconded Alderman Keegan's motion but made it clear he was doing so only to open the way for discussion.

"I don't agree with everything in the motion," he said, Alderman Jean Smith said the motion calling for an investigation was an affront to the UCS board members. Rather than an investigation, she said board members should be encouraged in their work.

Without meaningful participation by volunteers the UCS operation would have to be taken over by government and cuts would be prohibitive, she said.

Alderman Paul Russell also spoke against the motion, claiming that it was designed to embarrass rather than discover.

"I will not take part in an inquisition," he said.

Alderman Arnold Orr said he had full confidence in the UCS members who were giving their time and doing a good job. He admitted there may have been mistakes made but said there was no evidence of malfunction and members should be encouraged.

Later in the meeting, Alderman Meeks introduced a notice of motion asking that a committee of council sit, down with UCS board members and discuss the organization's program for the next year.

Dogcatcher Elusive

PICTON — "Where or where has the dogcatcher gone?" was the query from one ratepayer at last night's session of town council.

Picton building inspector Morley Brooks addressed council to ask why he has not been animal control officer Donald Tucker of Stirling.

Councillor Jack Evans praised Mr. Tucker's work since he was on duty on Good Friday, a statutory holiday.

Councillor Bessie Ward told Mr. Brooks it is part of the dogcatcher's strategy to arrive unannounced in order to apprehend pets that would be tied up if their owners suspected he were on patrol.

Mayor McFarland instructed the town clerk to inform him of Mr. Tucker's next visit to Picton since he intends to meet with him for a discussion of the job.

City Float Support Asked

At the suggestion of Alderman Stu Meeks, Belleville Council is passing on to area service clubs and minor sports organizations a invitation to enter a float representing Belleville in the Parade to Oshawa Week parade, June 24.

The invitation came from the Mayor of Oshawa, J. H. Politeary. The Fanfare for Oshawa Week, June 24 to July 2, will culminate in the first Ontario Summer Games. Mr. Politeary said 26 marching bands would be participating in the June 24 parade.

Fire Levels Body Shop

STIRLING — Fire today gutted a schoolbus body repair shop on the "outskirts of this village.

Cause of the fire, which broke out shortly before 7.30 a.m., was not immediately known, said Graham Mouck, chief of the village fire department. The fire started in the paint shop section of the building, he believed.

Volunteer firemen from here and Rawdon township fought the blaze on Highway 14, just north of here. When water from tankers at the scene ran out, hoselines were joined to hook into a large hydrant 1,300 feet away. But the blaze, fed by paint and other combustible materials spread quickly through the frame and metal building.

Mr. Jones also sold schoolbuses in the area and was but recently disposed of his dealership.

Rezoning Approved

City council Monday gave its approval to a rezoning application which would allow construction of a seven-storey condominium complex on South Front Street across from Victoria Park.

The application was before council some months ago and was referred to planning and then city boards for comment. No objection to the rezoning was received.

Council yesterday approved the rezoning application and amendment to the official plan and developer's agreement.

Principal in the proposed development is Lamplighter Realty Ltd.

Trial Date Set

Boomhower was taken into custody after seven shots were fired at 352 Canadian Road residence in the early morning of April 29.

Truck Repairs Anger Mayor

PICTON — A repair bill of more than $1,000 for a recently purchased town truck has occasioned harsh comment from Picton mayor H. J. McFarland.

He said the truck, "bought before my council came in" was a demonstrator model and in Toronto for $14,420 with 2,900 miles already on it.

Mayor McFarland claimed the vehicle was supposedly bought in the name of a councilman and it is now impossible to have the truck serviced by the company that manufactured it. Reportedly, seven requirements for the vehicle are lacking and, according to the mayor, repairs on it during the next six years will almost equal its value.

"These are the things that are going to throw out our budget," said the mayor, mentioning the repair bill.

"I never saw this hit the press; I wonder why," he commented later as he discussed the purchase of the demonstrator vehicle.

Sidney, Bell Get Priority

Street lighting on Bell Blvd. between the Quinte Mall and Sidney Street, and improvement of lighting on Sidney Street will be given priority under the Belleville Public Utility's 1973 street - lighting program.

The proposed PUC 1973 program, calling for an expenditure of $46,000, including $18,100 in carryover work from last year, was approved Monday by city council.

Youths Held

Two Belleville area youths will go before a County Court judge next month to face a charge of break and enter.

Keith Jewell and Ruth Southwell, both of RR3, Belleville, were committed Monday by Judge J. L. Clendenning after a preliminary hearing in Provincial Court.

The youths were found inside a vacant house west of Belleville on Highway 2 in February by two Ontario Provincial Police officers. At the hearing, the officers testified Jewell told them he was in the house looking for antiques.

Jewell also pleaded guilty to possession of liquor outside his home and was fined $20. A drug possession charge was withdrawn.

Moira Canoeing Course Proposed

The rapids section of the Moira River inside the city, should be promoted as a possible site for development of a course for running of the 1976 Olympics canoe slalom.

This is the suggestion of Alderman Stu Meeks, who Monday noted that the Moira is considered by white water canoe enthusiasts as one of the best courses for racing.

He said Olympics officials should be consulted with the view of determining costs of developing a canoe racing slalom course and also what allowance such as attraction might bring.

The alderman said Munich, Germany, had spent a huge sum in developing a canoe slalom course for last summer's Olympics and suggested such a course might be developed in connection with the construction at the proposed control dam for inside the city limits.

Equipment Display Opens Wednesday

Equipment is moving from points across the province, converging on Belleville's fairgrounds for largest display of its kind in Canada. Up to 1,500 are expected to tour the site during the two-day display sponsored by the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities (Ontario) and organized locally by the Chamber of Commerce and the Public Utilities Commission. Opening ceremonies take place Wednesday morning.

Cincinnati Now A WHA Member

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati, tired of waiting for the National Hockey League to grant it a franchise, became a World Hockey Association member Monday.

WHA president Gary Davidson, who departed for the West Coast immediately after the announcement, said two other cities under consideration for franchises were Miami and Vancouver. The latter is already an NHL city.

Steve Arnold, WHA personnel director, said the Cincinnati franchise will begin operation in 1974-75.

Official Challenge Not Received

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League has not received an official challenge from the World Hockey Association for a playoff between the champions in the two leagues for the Stanley Cup.

Brian O'Neil, league executive director, said Monday it would be up in NHL president Clarence Campbell to comment on the challenge but he added: "I can't expect we are going to be accepting a challenge."

The challenge was issued by Howard Baldwin after Saldi win's New England Whalers whipped Winnipeg Jets 9-6 Sunday night to take the WHA final four games to one.

Baldwin said the Stanley Cup, now emblematic of the NHL title, remains a challenge trophy and called on this year's winner to engage in a one-game, match-for-playoff.

Montreal Canadiens lead Chicago Black Hawks three games to one in their best-of-seven NHL final for the Stanley Cup.

Portage Team Moves Two Up

BRANDON (CP) — Portage la Prairie, Man., Terriers scored four unanswered goals in the second period and went on to a 4-2 win Monday over Pembroke, Ont., Lumber Kings to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven Centennial Cup junior hockey final series.

Third game in the series will be played here Wednesday.

Al Hilton, Frank Leswick, Grant Parmentier and Bob Miller shared the Terriers' scoring while Murray Thrasher and Bill Ewasiuk replied for Pembroke.

Both teams started out cautiously, combining for only 15 shots on goal in the scoreless first period before Portage went ahead 3-0 at the end of the second.

2 USSR Squads

MONTREAL (CP) — The Soviet Union would like to send two hockey teams against Canada in the next hockey showdown between the two countries and they have no preference which National Hockey league team they play.

"The Canadiens, Boston, Chicago, an all-star team, it makes no difference to us," said coach Vsevolod Bobrov, who arrived here Monday night to attend today's Memorial Cup banquet.

"We'd like to play them all if we could the next time," Bbrov said however, the Soviet stars want to bring two teams over.

The city currently has a team, Montreal Sweets of the American Hockey League, a farm club of the NHL's Buffalo Sabres.

Brian Heekin, president of the Cincinnati Hockey Club Inc. (CHC) said his group decided to accept the WHA offer six weeks ago after the NHL confirmed a franchise for Kansas City.

"That was the turning point," said Heekin.

CHC said the NHL board of governors had promised it a future franchise. In Montreal, however, the NHL said Cincinnati had never been promised a franchise, nly that the league had promised to keep the city under consideration.

Price of the WHA franchise was $2 million, Heekin said. A proposed NHL franchise would have cost an estimated $6 million.

CHC, meanwhile, is working out details with Cincinnati city officials to build a $20 million, 17,500 seat arena adjacent to Riverfront Stadium.

Heekin said: "We are now looking for people to set up the franchise and build the team."

Cincinnati will draft 13th in the WHA June player draft May 18-19 in Toronto.

Heekin said the younger players will be sent to older WHA minor league teams until the franchise is ready and added he has no plans to draft players from the NHL. Cincinnati will be permitted to draft 20 players from other WHA clubs for its opening season.

Heekin said he had "no idea at this time," what CHC will do with major league players signed before 1974.

Meanwhile, the Sabres said they plan to continue operating their AHL team in the 14,000-seat Cincinnati Gardens.

A Sabres' spiesman said no problems or conflicts are foreseen since the NHL and WHA are separate. Had Cincinnati been awarded an NHL franchise, the Swords were to be withdrawn but for compensation, the Sabres said earlier.

Bordeleau Makes It A Fine Homecoming

Bordeleau, who played here with Montreal Junior Canadiens of the Ontario Hockey Association in 1970 when they won their second straight Memorial Cup, fired three goals and one assist to lead Toronto Marlboros to a 5-2 win over Quebec Remparts in the opening game of this year's Memorial Cup final.

Play for the cup, awarded annually to Canada's top major junior A hockey team, resumes Wednesday night when Medicine Hat Tigers of the Western Canada Hockey League play Toronto.

The round-robin series continues Friday with Quebec playing Medicine Hat and Saturday, the top two teams in the series meet in a sudden-death championship final.

"He played his best game of the season," said Toronto coach George Armstrong. "He was skating all the time."

"It's good to play here again," Bordeleau said. "All I was thinking about before the game was going out and doing my best. I had lots of chances."

Toronto also got goals from Gordon Gidlago and Brad Vlasion while Andre Deschamps and Guy Chouinard replied for Quebec.

Quebec, down 3-0 at the end of the first period, had some good chances in the second, only to be stopped by goalie Mike Palmatier, who blocked 30 of Quebec's 32 drives during the game. His team-mates had 46 shots at Quebec goalie Pierre Perusse.

Winner Won't Play Czechs

MONTREAL (CP) — The winners of this year's Memorial Cup will not be going to Czechoslovakia this year after all.

Joe Kryczka, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA), said Monday night the Czechs pulled out of the series because there would be no links available.

Kryczka said the CAHA received a telegram to this effect Friday and the CAHA tried to re-establish the series by offering to play two games instead of the original seven. The Czechs refused the offer.

"The Czechs said lack of attendance was one reason, but we haven't got to the bottom of it yet," Kryczka said.

The players on the Memorial Cup winning team will receive a financial bonus for going to Czechoslovakia and they will get the bonus anyway, Kryczka said.

Yvan's Stomach Pains

Bellyache for Hawks

MONTREAL (CP) — For a man who has been playing since last January with a large-size pain in his stomach area, right winger Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal Canadiens has provided Chicago Black Hawks with a bellyache of major proportions.

If a poll was conducted today among members of the Hawks as to which Montreal player has given them the most trouble during their current Stanley Cup final round, it's a safe assumption that Cournoyer would grab the most votes.

In the 15 playoffs games he has appeared in this spring, Cournoyer has become the leading goal-scorer with 12. He shares the scoring leadership with 9 goals, the same number as Dennis Hull of the Black Hawks, but the Chicago left winger has five fewer goals one more goal by Cournoyer will equal the record 14 scored by left winger Frank Mahovlich of the Canadiens in the 1971 playoffs.

The Hawks have paid particular attention to the 170-pound Cournoyer throughout the series and in the first three games used defencemen, converted to left wingers, to defend against him.

"I've played against (John) Marks, (Dick) Redmond, and (Jerry) Korab," he said. "They might not be as fast as Dennis Hull, but they sure can check and hit you when they get the chance."

But it was obvious from remarks made by members of the Chicago team after Canadiens won with 5-2 victory that the Hawks have had little success hitting Cournoyer.

"I haven't seen speed like him before," said Phil Russell the Black Hawks rookie defenceman. "I'm not used to that."

Ralph Backstrom, the former Canadien and now centering the Hawks third line, said "we'll have to break his ankles—both of them, I don't think one will be enough."

The Montreal team skated lightly for 40 minutes Monday in preparation for tonight's game. Defenceman Jacques Laperriere, recovered from a broken nose acquired in the opener here April 29, showed up for the first time since being injured, but said he was told by the doctor he probably won't get a chance to play unless a fifth game is necessary Thursday night in Chicago.

Cournoyer backs off when mention is made of the possibility of him winning the Conn Smythe Trophy.

Coates Hands Out Some Dandies

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter
(Second of Series)

Left winger Mark Coates may be on the small side as Bobcats went last year, but he managed to handle himself well enough on the ice.

The bigger players on some teams appeared to get a certain degree of satisfaction from greeting Coates into the boards, but as he said with a chuckle in his voice, "I handed out a few dandies myself."

"I'm not a sadist or anything, but I've flattened a couple guys. I broke one guy's jaw."

The 17-year-old started with the Cats after the Jr. B season opened as a result of his dissatisfaction with the style of play of the league the Western Tire Juveniles ran in.

"The juvenile league was really bush," said Coates, "I've played games in which you use sticks, hit every chance you get, and don't worry about the score. In one game against Napanee, I scored three goals and recorded four assists. I saw then that it wasn't as good a league as the Metro Jr. B."

"I wanted to play junior but when it came out in the paper that Moe (coach Hunter) said he was looking for 20 year old men" I decided to play a year of juvenile. But after I saw some of the juniors, I thought I was better than them."

MARK COATES
. . . Knows Beards

After talking with the team management, Coates signed with the Cats and ended hit 50 game season 29 goals and 40 assists the better.

Coates, also known as 'Coalsie' among other names in the dressing room, is eligible to return to the Bobcats' ranks come fall training camp.

With two more years left to play before he's over age, Coates said he's likely to hit the soccer pitches this summer in order to limber up his left knee.

The east he had been wearing for three weeks was removed yesterday and according to his doctor the torn ligaments he had suffered before Christmas have healed well. Coates is presently going through physical therapy to strengthen the limb.

George Ferguson Will Play Here

Augur Men's Wear of Trenton, the new entry in the Belleville Intermediate Softball League, is beginning to loom as a definite contender. And the team's latest player signings solidify what was already shaping into a strong squad, at least on paper.

George Ferguson, whose status was in doubt until only recently, has signed with the club. Coach Wayne Drake had hopes of getting the strong armed right-hander for his mound corps from the very beginning but whether Ferguson would be available for league play remained a question mark.

There is no longer any question about it. The Toronto Maple Leaf forward joins brother Al Ferguson on the Tren-

Also joining the club is shortstop Frank Tanner rated by Drake as one of the better men he sees at the key infield position. Tanner was with the CFH entry in the Trenton Softball League last season and impressed everyone with his range. Has also a long ball hitter.

Commercial League executive members have expressed satisfaction at the signing of Ferguson. They feel the presence of a NHL performer in the softball league will definitely be a help at the box office.

Early Bird Tournament

Early bird tournaments are kicking off the golf season at area courses and the first report in comes from the Belleville Golf and Country Club at Marysville.

Men and women got their first taste of tourney action on the weekend at the 18-hole layout in the annual mixed open.

Sally Lloyd posted the first low net for women followed by Sy Forman. Low gross was carded by Marg Cousins.

Low net honors for men went to Dennis Barrtage with Bob Benn next in line. Bob Mound checked in with the first low gross.

The Belleville Club's next event is an open mixed two-ball invitational tournament scheduled for Monday, May. 21.

Hunt and Thompson Winners in Tourney

TRENTON — Bea Hunt of Belleville led the women's section in the first Bowler of the Year tournament staged here on the weekend. The Quinte Classic League bowler hit for a five-game total of 1,229 to top her nearest rival, Marie Hood of Trenton by a wide margin.

Marie checked in with 1,168 while third place went to Trenton's Nancy O'Halloran with 1,149.

In the men's section, Len Thompson had little trouble rolling to the win with a parfall of 1,349. Second place went to Ross LaFleur whose 1,220 was just four pins better than the 1,216 recorded by Moe Mitts. Moe came from well back to take third place by coming through in the final game with a solid 340 score, All three are Trenton bowlers.

The top three finishers in each section received trophies donated by Molson's Breweries and presented by representative Jim Williamson. Bea Hunt and Len Thompson will have their names engraved on a special plaque put up for annual competition by The Trentonian.

Armstrong Champion

Belleville Archery Club member Carol Armstrong not only kept her standing date with old friend Bob Skelton in Kingston Sunday, but also with the Circle Archery Club's field shooting 'Ladies' top trophy.

"Bob and I plan to make it our 25th anniversary," said Carol, "but he said I'd have to push him around in a wheelchair."

The Belleville archer was dubious about that saying that for a man round the bend of 70 "he doesn't have a grey hair on his head. He dusts puff on pant. He's just in great shape for an old guy."

Carol's shooting form was a equally as good in her sixth visit to one of eastern Ontario's first outdoor shoots of the season. With 600 points being a perfect score over the 30 targets, Carol opened her tourney competition schedule with a 414 score and the Ladies championship for the fifth year in six.

In the men's barrow competition, Belleville's John Widdicks finished the day in the second place also while Bruce Thompson earned a first in the boys' Intermediate class.

Locust Don Ups Winnings

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — Locust Don posted the one mile Kawartha Downs oval in the fastest time of Saturday's 10 race card to increase the horse's money total for the season to $3,635.

The 5-year-old pacer sired by Don Parker toured in 2:05.4 under the guiding hand of driver Guy Larusa in the ninth race Invitational for the $1,000 purse.

The richest better return was marked in the 10th race as Silver Pick and Hoot Ban combined for a $281.10 payoff. Pointer Joy paced in third to pay $2.80.

Other winners were: Ivan's Lucky Girl in the first, Combat Ace (2nd), Pampions (3rd), Z. Yankee Laird (4th), Last Shot (5th), Moorelands Dan (6th), Gentry Mckylo (7th) and Horse Land in the eighth and last pace.

Hot Shooters

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least four players in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A league were in mid-season form Monday night, scoring four goals each.

George Chandler and Rob Cornwell scored four times each to lead Hamilton to a 13-5 victory over Oshawa Green Gaels.

In other action, Wally Cloxza scored four goals to pace Etobicoke to a 20-18 overtime victory over St. Catharines. John Howe scored four goals for the losers.

Fourth U.S. Win

The victory was the fourth for the United States in the six-game series. The final game is scheduled for Wednesday night in Baltimore.

Doubt's Secretariat's Quality

Jones Hard to Convince

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretariat's impressive, record smashing victory in the Kentucky Derby may have escorted some skeptics, but not Jimmy Jones.

The man who helped saddle Citation and seven other Derby winners insists he still has to be shown.

"I doubt the quality of the horse," he said Monday in a telephone interview from Monmouth Park in Oceanport, N.J., where the former trainer serves as assistant treasurer and director of racing.

"I haven't yet seen him do anything that would make me compare him with some of the great horses of the past.

"On this one day, Secretariat clearly dominated the rest of the field—you can't take that away from him—and, as I predicted, it was a two-horse race between him and Sham. But Secretariat now has a good shot at the Triple Crown by adding the Preakness and Belmont stakes to his Derby triumph, but he wouldn't bet on it.

One-thing Secretariat did was run the 1¼-mile in one minute, 59.2 seconds, the fastest the distance ever has been run in 99 Kentucky Derbys, records date to 1875.

"The time never meant anything," Jones insisted. "The time is always determined by the condition of the track. The track was hard and fast. That's the way they wanted it.

"I am amazed that with 25,000 or 30,000 new foals being registered every year we don't get better horses. "Secretariat is a nice horse, who can't yet be called a champion. I think there are not many good horses ready to challenge him."

Jones acknowledged—almost reluctantly, it seemed—that Secretariat now has a good shot at the Triple Crown by adding the Preakness and Belmont stakes to his Derby triumph, but he wouldn't bet on it.

Drapeau Promises

No Cost to Taxpayer

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau reiterated Monday that the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal won't cost Canadian taxpayers a cent—in fact, he said Canada's sons will be discussing how to spend the surplus the Games will create.

Drapeau told about 2,000 delegates to the annual meeting of the Association of Canadian Advertisers the Games will be self-financing.

He didn't elaborate on how the Games would create a surplus, but stickinandin his way around being asked about deficits by asking himself questions.

He said he'd outline how Montreal successfully bid for the Games and then answer questions from the audience "although I'll ask the first three myself."

The first question he asked was how much the Games would cost the taxpayer.

"None," he said.

Drapeau said he'd guaranteed the federal government he wouldn't ask for funds if the Games organization was allowed to raise money by selling stamps and coins and holding a lottery.

Later in his talk about finances he backtracked a little from his "surplus" remark by asking: "How can there be a deficit if all the revenues and self-financing programs run until the deficit is paid?"

In an interview he said the sale of stamps and coins and the lottery would be continued after the Games had ended.

The organizing committee has said it will raise $30 million through the sale of Olympic commemorative coins, $18 million through the sale of stamps and $32 million from a lottery.

Boston Wins Battle of the Sox

Rain Works in Pitcher's Favor

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston's John Curtis had some unpritiable things to say about the weather in Chicago Monday night, but the raid worked in his favor as the right-hander pitched the Red Sox to a 4-1 American League baseball victory over Chicago White Sox.

"I was cursing under my breath when it started to rain," Curtis said after some early-inning precipitation.

But the wetness turned out to be a blessing in disguise, soaking the artificial turf in White Sox Park just enough to cause the Chicago outfielders some fifth-inning grief.

Orlando Cepeda led off with what looked like a single, but centre fielder Ken Henderson slipped chasing the ball and Cepeda limped into second. With two on and two out, John Kennedy also hit what appeared to be a single. This time, right fielder John Jeter lost his footing and, by the time he recovered, Kennedy had a triple and the Red Sox had two runs.

In the only other American League action, Baltimore Orioles beat California Angels 8-2, New York at Minnesota was rained out.

In the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates edged Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4, San Diego Padres defeated Chicago Cubs 4-1, Houston Astros blanked Montreal Expos 6-0, Philadelphia Phillies defeated Cincinnati Reds 3-2 in 14 innings and New York Mets beat Atlanta Braves 7-6.

Houston stretched its string of victories to nine as Dave Roberts hurled a six-hitter in blanking Montreal.

The extra combined singles by Bob Watson, Lee May, John Edwards, Tommy Helms and Roberts with Jim Wynn's sacrifice fly for three runs in the third inning. Cesar Cedeno homered in the eighth and Wynn tripled a run home in the ninth and scored on Roger Metzger's single.

Pittsburgh unloaded on Los Angeles ace Don Sutton with solo home runs by Willie Stargell, Dave Cash, Richie Hebner, Manny Sanguillen and Al Oliver to beat the Dodgers, wiping out a 4-1 deficit in the process.

Sutton had allowed only one earned run in his previous 46 3-3 innings.

San Diego, which had beaten the Cubs only 19 times in 51 meetings, won with Bill Greif's two-hit pitching. Fred Kendall and Dave Campbell each collected a single and double and drove in two runs while Greif blanked the Cubs until Jose Cardenal's eighth-inning homer.

A strategical move by Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson backfired against the Reds. With two out in the 14th inning, Philadelphia's Greg Luzinski singled, Bill Robinson reached on an error by third baseman Bill Plummer—normally a catcher—and the runners moved up on a passed ball.

Anderson ordered an intentional pass to rookie Mike Rogodzinski, but reliever Pedro Borbon also walked Mike Ryan on a 3-2 pitch to force in the winning run.

The Phillies' other two runs also were unearned, coming on Robinson's single, a three-base error by shortstop Dave Concepcion and Terry Harmon's single.

The Lolich Slump Baffles Left-hander

DETROIT (AP) — Mention Mickey Lolich's name and almost everyone gets a clear image in his mind: pot-belly, World Series hero, All-Star pitcher; two-time 20-game winner.

But the image of this portly Detroit lefthander has been changing along with his wonlost record, now at 1-4, and his earned-run average up to 4.36.

"I don't know what more I can do," Lolich said after departing from the mound in the sixth inning of Sunday's contest against the lowly Texas Rangers; his fourth loss already assured.

"I know what people expect. I heard them booing me, and it hurts a little bit." Lolich said as he stared at the floor in front of his locker.

"But I'm throwing the ball good. I'm making good pitches . . . and I'm getting beat. They're hitting my good stuff.

"I've thought about changing a few things. You always do when you get in a streak like that but I really don't know what more I can do."

Everybody has a different theory on the cause of Lolich's decline. But one fact is inescapable: his "never-a-better arm" which has been called into service with as little as two days rest, has thrown a lot of pitches.

Leukemia Cure Aim of Student

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP) — Peter Doan, an 18-year-old high school student, has set a goal for himself — he wants to find a cure for leukemia, a type of cancer of the blood.

Peter, a Grade 13 student, has set up a laboratory in an abandoned manchine shop near his parents' farm where he carries tests with blood, white mice and various scientific equipment.

"I've always wanted to help people," he said. "It's as simple as that. I want to be a doctor and plan to enter medicine next year at McMaster University. I've dedicated myself to the purpose of finding a vaccine for leukemia — a horrible disease that killed 825 Canadians last year. It must be eradicated."

Peter said he goes to Toronto every chance he gets and talks with doctors and cancer research scientists at Princess Margaret Hospital. During the last three years, they have made him a special protege and shipped him samples of leukemic blood for his experiments.

"They also gave me 40 white mice," he said. "Now I have about 150. When I first started my laboratory, it had a dirt floor and only a wall-to-wall flooring and it's quite comfortable.

"I enjoy writing to my medical friends in Toronto and they write back long and encouraging letters.

"The Canadian Cancer Society has been a great help, too and during the last few summers, they worked as a research laboratory assistant at the University of Toronto.

Prostate Reached In Three Ways

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My question has to do with the "reaming" surgery frequently performed on the prostate gland of elderly men.

To my knowledge, the cutting area has always been approached exclusively through the urinary canal. But a friend reports that he just had this surgery and that entry was made through his abdominal wall. The gland, itself, was not excised.

Your opinion, please? — C.M.S.

The prostate is a chestnut-sized organ that straddles the urethral tube which leads from the bladder to the penis and the urinary canal. When enlarged, the prostate tends to crimp the tube, making urination difficult and sometimes backing up to the kidney, causing all sorts of complications.

Surgery is often required to correct these problems.

There are three general avenues of approach for the surgeon — suprapubic (through the abdomen), perineal (through the area between the legs), and transurethral (through the penis) and this latter method is the one you refer to as the "reaming" method.

I don't like your word because it has a needlessly ominous ring to it that can cause undue concern in the patient.

The method of approach is an absolute judgment call by the operating surgeon depending on the location of the enlargement and the potential extent of actual surgery.

Often, when the surgeon has reached the prostate area, a biopsy will be taken on the prostate to determine if it is cancerous and if complete removal is in order.

In the absence of such a condition, the extent of surgery is again a judgment call.

I suggest that, both in the conduct of entry and the degree of surgery done, the doctor's recommendations be followed.

Perhaps, in your friend's case, the doctor did not find the condition he suspected and decided no surgery was required.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please tell me why I wake every morning with pain in my back and side. I don't have any backache during the day or before I go to bed, but every morning I wake so I can't stay in bed. — H.P.

It could be some sort of defect in the back — but before you go running for serious trouble, try what often turns out to be a ridiculously simple answer.

Get a very firm mattress — or, much cheaper, try a bed board. That's a piece of plywood between the springs and mattress, but it takes the extra sag out.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had surgery five years ago for cervical cysts, having an ovary removed and both Fallopian tubes. What are my chances of having a baby?

I have read about having artificial tubes. My doctor would have everything set up for me if this was what I wanted, but he didn't recommend it. What do you think? — N.B.

I wouldn't recommend it either. It might work, but it might not — and unless a patient was thoroughly prepared to have the operation and then find that pregnancy still couldn't be achieved, I wouldn't want to risk the disappointment of a failure.

Opening lead—two of spades.

Let's say you're, in three notrump and win the spade lead with the ace. There is a question of how to play the hand, one possibility being to cash the ace of clubs, return dummy with a diamond, and try a club finesse.

The danger is that the finesse may fail, in which case you would automatically go down after a spade continuation. You would lose three spades, a club and a heart.

Another possibility is to lead a low heart for the queen in trick two. This would lose to East's ace, as expected, and back would come a spade. You would now be able to make the contract if the opponents' hearts were divided 3-3 or if the club finesse succeeded. But, in the actual case, both chances would fail and this time you would finish down two.

However, there is still another way of playing the hand and this, considering the bidding, is the proper plan to adopt. It is based on the virtual certainty that East, for his overcall, has the ace of hearts, and once this is conceded the contract is absolutely unstoppable.

At trick two you enter dummy with a diamond and lead a low heart back. This play presents East with a tantalizing dilemma. If he goes up with the ace, you have nine tricks without a finesse — three hearts, two spades, two diamonds and two clubs.

If he doesn't go up, you win with the six and speedily abandon the suit, shifting to the A-K and another club. That also provides nine tricks, namely, four clubs, two spades, a heart and two diamonds.

All roads lead to Rome.

Tomorrow, Larceny.

Comedy Writer Is A Paradox

NEW YORK (AP) — It's a safe bet that only a few greying former flyers and mechanics remember The Foggin Fullers. It played only twice and then only at a small United States Army Corps base in Japan during the Second World War.

It was a comedy revue. Its author and star was an obscure B-17 radio operator-gunner named Norman Lear. He's still writing comedy shows today, but earns a bit more than when he was a sergeant.

He's no longer obscure. He and his partner, Bud Yorkin, gave American television All in the Family, Maude and Sanford and Son, all hit comedy series that shattered TV traditions.

Lear doesn't look like a comedy writer, let alone an iconoclast. Jokes don't tumble out of him the way they do on his shows. He's a slight, soft-spoken guy who discusses almost everything seriously.

His life's ambition once was to be a New York publicity man, an occupation not exactly known for its seriousness except when the client won't pay off.

"That's all I ever wanted to be," said Lear, explaining that it arose from his Uncle Jack's munificence. The Lear family was poor, but Uncle Jack, a New York press agent, always seemed in the chips. When he visited the family, he flipped quarters to the kids.

After the war, Lear did in fact become a press agent—at a whopping $40 a week. He soon turned to writing comedy and made a success of it both in television and movies. He teamed up with Yorkin in 1958.

He now does most of their talking, particularly when viewers angrily roar about controversial themes in their shows—such as Maude's abortion this season and Archie Bunker' open big-gry the last.

It would be far easier to go for a safe laugh than a controversial one. Why doesn't he?

"No, I'm who I am," he said. "I'm not looking for applause on the subject or to be detracted for it. I don't think it's any reason to applaud or boo me. I do it because I know you'll laugh harder and care more."

Lear said the main thing he has learned in 12 years of comedy writing is "that I can make you laugh harder if I have you caring first."

He cited a Maude segment in which Maude' husband, Walter, suddenly realized he was becoming an ancient.

"When his 50th birthday was coming up and I wanted you to laugh, I first had to get you concerned about the way he felt about turning 50," said Lear. "So it was with Si.

"You start off with little things, like the fact that every time he touched the skin on his wrist it didn't snap back the way it did on his grandson."

Bartender's Duty To Protect Drunk

OTTAWA (CP) — Beverage room operators have a duty towards persons who become intoxicated on their premises, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled Monday.

The duty does not mean that a tavern owner must act as a watchdog for all persons who drink to excess but would vary with the circumstances, said Mr. Justice Bora Laskin in ordering Jordan House Ltd. of Louth Township, near St. Catharines, to pay $19,453 for injuries suffered by one of its patrons in an auto accident.

Evidence was that John Menow, employed on a farm about two miles from the hotel, drank to excess the evening of Jan. 18, 1968. Menow was a regular patron of the hotel and both the owner and his employees knew of Menow's "tendency to drink to excess," Mr. Justice Laskin noted.

When Menow began table-hopping, he was turned out of the hotel. On his way home, he was struck by a car, incurring severe injuries.

Menow was awarded total damages of $36,870 against the driver of the car and the hotel by lower courts. The hotel appealed the decisions to the Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice Laskin said that if the hotel's only involvement was in supplying the beer to Menow, it would be difficult to impose liability upon it for what later happened.

"The hotel, however, was not in the position of persons in general who see an intoxicated person who appears unable to control his steps," said Judge Laskin.

"It was in an invitor-invitee relationship with Menow as one of its patrons, and it was aware, through its employees, of his intoxicated condition, a condition which . . . it fed in violation of applicable liquor licence and liquor control legislation.

"There was a probable risk of personal injury to Menow if he was turned out of the hotel to proceed on foot on a much-travelled highway passing in front of the hotel."

In such circumstances it was not unreasonable to expect the hotel to take care that Menow was not exposed to injury because of his intoxication, the Judge said.

The hotel's obligation could have been met by calling the police or Menow's employers or calling a taxi to take him home. In the past too, said the Judge, the hotel had arranged drives home for patrons.

"The result to which I come does not mean . . . that I would impose a duty on every tavern owner to act as a watchdog for all patrons who enter his place of business and drink to excess," concluded Mr. Justice Laskin.

NEW YORK (AP) — Rudolf Nureyev of the British Royal Ballet was awarded Dance magazine's annual award for "foreign genius" Monday.

Nureyev defected from the Soviet Union's Kirov Ballet 12 years ago and has since danced with the British Royal Ballet while making guest appearances with other companies.

Bill Como, editor of Dance, said Nureyev has been secretive and on film by more people than any other living dancer.

William Christensen is the director and founder of Ballet West in Salt Lake City. Harold Christensen is director of the San Francisco Ballet School and Lew is the company's artistic director.

Mr. Como said the award to the Christensen brothers was for their "great and inestimable contribution to dance."

"They also have devoted their lives to teaching others to perform."

Chinese Medical Tour Impressive to Canadians

CANTON (CP) — A team of Canadian doctors flew home today with a basket of borrowed ideas from China about treating disease, pain, and accident cases.

But ...the departing doctors were frankly doubtful about transplanting to Canada the most impressive feature of Chinese medicine—the selfless enthusiasm and co-operation among medical workers of all kinds in providing health care, as they saw it.

After 15 days visiting medical establishments in four cities and the countryside, the 16-strong delegation was determined to pursue in a more thorough way various treatments and techniques that only a short time ago were regarded outside China as quackery.

Prominent among these is the ancient art of acupuncture, the inserting of needles in the flesh to relieve pain and, more recently, as a substitute in surgery for putting the patient to sleep.

Also an eye-opener for specialists such as orthopedist Frank Duff of St. John's, Nfld., were Chinese successes with reimplantation of severed limbs and fingers and the treatment of severe burns that in Canada would be regarded as fatal.

The visitors are eager to help the Chinese investigate a trove of medications in their catalogue of ancient herbal remedies that analysts and experiment have already proved contain drug treatments unknown elsewhere.

With such medical riches in mind, plans are already under way for more prolonged exchanges of specialists—Canadians to probe further into Chinese techniques here, and Chinese to bring their knowledge to Canada and pick up some there in return.

Embassy sources say negotiations are well advanced for the first exchanges that may well involve transfers of as many as 25 doctors a year, spending at least four months in the other country.

The Canadian team is already preparing proposals for government on Baffin it would like investigated in the exchanges. Subcommittees have been set up on different specialties and an Ottawa meeting May 21 will co-ordinate proposals and reports for publication in medical journals.

The Canadian enthusiasm for longer exchanges was reiterated Friday night at a banquet given by the departing visitors for their hosts.

But while most members of the Canadian team raised the enthusiastic motivation of medical workers among the most impressive discoveries of their visit, none was ready to see any application of that in North America.

Friday, during a visit to a farming commune outside Canton where mobile teams of top city doctors visit at least one month a year, sometimes twice, Dr. Peter Banks of Vancouver, president-elect of the Canadian Medical Association (CMA), remarked:

"We think that's a very good idea—medical teams learn from the people and the people learn from the mobile doctors."

The Canadians have seen how, especially since the cultural revolution against elitism in the late 1960s, China has mobilized an army of medical workers to treat the masses of the world's most populous country.

Among other things, they have wiped out many fatal diseases. The operatives cover a broad spectrum from highly trained Western-style doctors and so-called traditional doctors with experience in acupuncture and herbal remedies, through nurses and technicians—and so-called barefoot doctors, men and women with training or only a few months who provide basic diagnoses, treatments and, most important, attention and comfort.

Even scientifically trained doctors earn as little as $400 a year and a top surgeon earns just $3,000, compared with the average gross income of more than $50,000 annually for Canadian doctors, based on federal statistics. A factory worker may earn as much as a doctor in China.

Repeatedly during the visit, when Chinese referred to so many medical workers in a hospital and Canadians tried to get a clear idea of how many of this type of doctor were in that number, the hosts appeared baffled about distinctions. All staff from the Chinese equivalent of an orderly to a top surgeon have roles to play in "serving the people," and hierarchical distinctions seem pointless.

As Dr. Bette Stephenson of Willowdale, Ont., remarked: "I understand China's people to well motivated to service of society without apparent conflict."

But she and others saw little possibility of achieving the same kind of enthusiasm in North America without a transformation of the whole society as in China.

She said it is impossible to alter the motivation of just one person—the doctors—in a competitive capitalist society.

The best practical lesson she could find was that "we know now that if we doctors provide the real leadership we could provide, perhaps some of the ills of the population will come along with us" in providing thoroughgoing health care.

Specifically, she suggested that nurses have been more attractive to salaries than service.

Dr. John Evans, president of the University of Toronto, expressed concern that the type of training attended to Canadian medical schools currently may discriminate against the typical Chinese devoted to social service. He said restrictions on entry to the medical elite have raised university entrance requirements so high that the typical Canadian candidate is an aggressive, ambitious person rather than one who wants to benefit society.

Dr. Stephenson argued on the contrary that most doctors in Canada want to do good and younger candidates are motivated by the ideal of social

Medicare Economies Aimed At Extending Plan Coverage

TORONTO (CP) — A two-edged scalpel is being applied to the fat in Ontario health insurance with a view to paring off enough to get the province started on free dentistry and prescription drugs.

The trade incomes of doctors are being curbed, both through a provincial health ministry ceiling on the total cost of their service and by restrictions imposed by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons on payments to doctors overworking the insurance program.

Hospitals have been placed under stiff financial constraints for the coming year with a freeze on capital projects and a tight rein on budgets. A longer-range project for decentralizing administration is aimed at large-scale economies through better use of facilities.

Dr. Richard Potter, the Belleville physician who heads the health ministry, said in an interview that if the immediate economies pan out, he hopes in about a year to be able to recommend a start on putting dental care and prescription drugs into the insurance package, in that order.

As a private member of the legislature, Dr. Potter in 1969 headed a legislature committee which recommended extending insurance to drugs and dental care.

"I haven't changed my view, but you have to be realistic enough to know that we have to pay for it, too," he said.

"But once we get what we have going now under control, I think we'll have enough money to institute those programs on a priority basis and I think dental care is the No. 1 priority, starting with children.

"Drugs, of course, is another one, and that has to be carefully controlled. But eventually the program to be complete has to include drugs, dressings, appliances and dental care."

Ontario residents at present are covering for hospital and doctors' bills, dentistry work done in hospitals and a limited amount of optical, chiropractic, chiropodist and osteopath work. The program will cost an estimated $1.7 billion in the current year—not including administration costs and other spending such as public health—of which less than a third is met by premiums.

Doctors' bills paid by the government jumped $38 million in the fiscal year ended March 31 and for the current year the minister has budgeted for an increase of just half that amount with a total of just under $900 million.

And, he said, that's the absolute ceiling on what the doctors are going to get.

Last winter at the end of the accounting year approached, the ministry found it had underestimated doctors' bills by $30 million and Dr. Potter had to go to the legislature for the additional amount amid a political furore.

"I got sucked into something," he said, "but there's no way that's going to happen again—no way."

Meanwhile, the Ontario Medical Association, which sets the scale of doctors' fees of which insurance meets 90 per cent, is working on a revision of the scale. The last two revisions raised fees in 1969 and 1971, but Dr. Potter said he hopes this one will merely effect some equalization among the doctors.

"There won't be any increase—at least, if there is it won't be paid," he said. "I've told them on various occasions, 'Boys, there's no way there's going to be any increase.'"

A veteran practitioner, Dr. Potter suggested the fees should be going down instead of up.

"The fee structure derives from a day when we didn't have medical insurance and we were happy to collect 80 per cent of our accounts. 'Under these circumstances—and many doctors in the province think the same thing—there is no reason why we shouldn't review the fee schedule and make it more realistic."

The College of Physicians and Surgeons, which polices doctors' billings under the insurance plan, has just launched a scheme to cut down on payments to practitioners who run up such a volume of fee work that their "quality of service is less than desirable." The formula was effective May 1.

In the longer run, the whole system of paying doctors may be revised basically.

"That might be the answer," Dr. Potter said. "I think it's a combination that somewhere along the line we may have to go for."

Over the next five to 10 years, Dr. Potter said, the government hopes to see the province split into a series of local districts with individual planning councils integrating regional health facilities under guidelines from Toronto.

The province is being divided into five large areas under "coordinators" and as a start is being made on local health councils at Ottawa, Hamilton, Sudbury, St. Catharines and Thunder Bay.

Both PCs, NDP Unhappy With Anti-bugging Measure

OTTAWA (CP) — There were indications Monday night that Conservatives and New Democrats might strike a temporary Commons alliance to force changes in the proposed privacy protection act.

Neither party is altogether thrilled with the government bill, which would outlaw electronic eavesdropping except by police in certain cases.

But they've said they'll give it second reading just to get it into the House justice committee. There, they could rip it apart and send an amended version back to the Commons.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin suggested during Monday's debate that Conservative and NDP agreement on amendments would force the minority government to accept the changes or face defeat.

The suggestion brought some NDP desk thumping.

Mr. Baldwin said it was an admirable opportunity for all members to be non-partisan and create a better bill.

This is the third time around for the bill, which was before Parliament, but not passed, in 1970 and 1972. Now, however, its importance has been heightened by the Watergate wiretapping scandal in the United States.

It would make it mandatory for police to get court permission before using bugging devices in investigations. They could work without a permit for a 36-hour period but would have to get one before using in court any evidence gathered by bugging.

Also called for is a prison term of up to five years for individuals convicted of electronic eavesdropping.

Watergate is a graphic illustration that cooperation in Canada because there is no effective legislation to prevent it, said Gordon Fairweather, Conservative justice critic.

The bill is a positive step, he said, but needs changes concerning police use of wiretaps. He cited a section lumping "any other subversive activity" with espionage and sabotage as reasons to justify bugging by police.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) said Canadians have been shocked and stunned by Watergate. Legislation was needed as much to prevent abuses by police as to protect individuals.

Mr. Lang said the bill recognizes, for the first time, the importance of privacy, and MPs should not get mired on details.

One of these details, said Ed Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby), was that he solicitor-general could initiate political bugging similar to Watergate.

The bill would allow wiretapping in shoplifting and tax evasion cases, said Ronald Atkey (PC—Toronto St. Paul's). It should be reserved for serious crimes only.

He said final permission for wiretapping should be given by cabinet ministers accountable to the public rather than judges.

The debate was to continue today, with second reading expected before adjournment tonight. Further word on a Conservative-NDP alliance was not expected until the bill reaches committee.

Convinced

BRAMALEA, Ont. (CP) — Reeve Robert Williams of Chinguacousy Township didn't believe the claims of rural councillors that some township roads were in bad shape.

But after a heated debate last week, he agreed to go on an automobile tour of some rural roads.

On the first leg of the tour, Mr. Williams' car hit a pothole, and the muffler was ripped off.

Mr. Williams and council now are trying to decide where to find funds to put additional gravel on the township's rural roads.

Trudeau Will Probe Report Benson Gave Firm Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday he will investigate a report that Edgar Benson gave his former accounting firm a contract to audit Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) while he was a cabinet minister in 1968.

Mr. Trudeau told the Commons he would need more information about the case to know whether cabinet rules on conflict of interest were violated.

He was replying to questions from Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

The Canadian Press reported April 26 that Mr. Benson granted the auditing contract for CMHC in the spring of 1968, while he was minister responsible for housing.

Fifth of Ontario's Doctors Discouraged About Work

TORONTO (CP) — About one-fifth of the doctors answering an Ontario Medical Association (OMA) questionnaire would actively discourage young persons from entering the profession, an OMA-sponsored report said Monday.

Most of the approximately 1,500 doctors who replied they would discourage young persons were in the 35-49 age group, said the report, hardly indicating "a strong satisfaction in the rewards of the profession, particularly among the middle-aged respondents."

The $200,000 report, commissioned a year ago by the OMA in an attempt to assess the public's feeling toward the medical profession, was prepared by a six-man team of consultants under retired Toronto businessman Edward A. Pickering.

The study said the current "unilateral" setting of fees by the OMA "is anachronistic and no longer socially or politically defensible."

The report recommended a joint committee on fees consisting of three representatives of government, three of the medical profession and a mutually-acceptable chairman.

At present, the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) pays 90 per cent of the OMA fee schedule. For a full fee, a doctor must bill the patient direct for the portion not paid by OHIP.

The findings were based on a survey of 779 Ontario homes plus 204 written submissions from public hearings. The report will be discussed at the OMA's annual meeting next week.

However, the report found that the public's greatest concern was "fragmentation of medicine" which delays health services, not health-care costs.

A patient may have difficulty finding a doctor only to have long waits before he can see him. Next come laboratory tests or x-rays and sometimes the patient has to take the initiative to find out the results.

This fragmentary feeling leads to the desire for one-stop-service of neighborhood medical centres expressed by 95 per cent of those surveyed.

Thirty-one per cent said their most serious complaint was poor service, 24.5 per cent said poor human relations and 22.5 per cent had no complaints. The most frequent complaint was the lack of house calls made by doctors.

Two-thirds of the doctors surveyed felt public respect for their profession was decreasing and only 1.9 per cent said it was increasing.

Mr. Pickering said the profession as a whole is disturbed about its public image "but I don't think excessively disturbed."

Doctors are frustrated because the problems of cost, abuse and shortage of service predicted by the profession are coming all too true" and the profession "finds itself in the role of a scapegoat."

To keep up with the medical and scientific revolution, the modern doctor must subdivide into specialties, spending himself to criticism "with some justification, of being remote and impersonal and at times being inaccessible and even arrogant."

Meanwhile, the public "expected overnight an instant medical service on demand . . . and many today are justly dissatisfied with levels of service . . ."

And the government, which would have preferred an evolutionary development of universal health and hospital care, came under public pressure and "embarked upon medicare in most overnight without time for adequate preparation of services required to administer it."

Now the government has found it necessary to cut back on hospital and medical costs, the report said.

The public, the profession and the government "find themselves in a position which none of them deliberately planned or desired."

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch
Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids....and repair damaged tissue.
A renowned research institution found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.
One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and greatly relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.
And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months, Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.
In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stand cause of hemorrhoids.

CP News Roundup

Insurance Buyer Seen As Loser

TORONTO (CP) — The old controversy over which is best, term or permanent life insurance, matters little because the policy holder loses out both ways, Ontario cabinet minister John Clement said Monday.

"From the complaints received by my ministry, consumers are losing at either end of the argument," the minister for consumer and commercial relations said.

"Some people who have accepted the idea that term is the only way to go, have ended up uninsurable at 50, or with premiums that are just too high to bear.

"Others have bought permanent insurance and the result is too little protection for their liabilities and the limited money they have available for premiums."

His speech to the Toronto chapter of the Chartered Life Underwriters' Association was read in his absence by J. K. Young, deputy minister.

Mr. Clement said because of this and other complaints from consumers, the province intends to evaluate the industry's performance more closely.

FBI Hit

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal backbencher Eddie Sargent said Monday the United States television series FBI should be barred from Canadian networks because of the Watergate affair.

On Way Home

ASHDOD, Israel (AP) — About 450 passengers from the liner Queen Elizabeth 2 watched Israel's 25th anniversary celebrations Monday and then sailed for Britain aboard the tightly guarded luxury ship. The QE2 sailed to Israel for the anniversary two weeks ago, carrying 620 Jewish passengers on a special cruise.

Second Deficit

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Red Cross Society is faced with a large deficit for the second successive year because income from appeals has remained relatively constant in a period of inflation, a society official reported today.

J. G. M. Clark, honorary Red Cross treasurer, told the annual meeting of the society's central council that the Red Cross had a deficit in 1972 of $256,000, and in 1971 of $72,000.

Travel Trouble

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A Niagara Falls travel agent sent a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau Monday, protesting proposed modification of a long-established discount travel program.

Dennis Hinchliffe, operator of IHAC Travel Ltd., said in the telegram that hundreds, if not thousands, of visitors to Canada "are faced with cancellation of holiday arrangements if Air Canada and CP Air are allowed to discontinue the Discount 50 North America Air Fare without advance notice of warning."

Under the airlines' proposal, the 50-per-cent discounts on flights within Canada would be restricted to passengers who arrived in Canada on a regularly scheduled airline.

Hate Walking

TORONTO (CP) — A strong dislike of walking is the greatest deterrent to people using public transit, a survey done for Metropolitan Toronto shows.

Metro commuters hate walking so much they rate the distance to a train or subway station as twice as important as the time waiting for the train, the study shows.

'Hospitality Season' To Cover Twelve Months

TORONTO (CP) — A drive is under way to provide Ontario with world-class tourist and recreational facilities for all seasons of the year, Claude Bennett, provincial tourism minister, said Monday.

Mr. Bennett told the Travel Industry Association of Canada that a five-year plan envisages a 12-month "hospitality season" to lure United States and overseas visitors to Ontario in greater numbers.

More loans will be made available to help tourist operators...improve their facilities, and upgrade them for year-round operation. There are also plans for package tours, more tourist offices overseas, more research, and a new emphasis on regional attractions and "local dishes" to provide a unique flavor to the province's restaurants.

Twenty Students Stripped After Magnets Missing

PALMER RAPIDS, Ont. (CP) — School board officials are investigating an incident at the public school here in which 20 Grade 6 students stripped and were searched by teachers after an apparent minor theft.

The children, 12 girls and eight boys, stripped at Palmer Rapids public school last Thursday after some magnets belonging to one of the students were reported missing from a teacher's desk. Palmer Rapids is about 40 miles southwest of Pembroke.

Allan McKone, principal of the school, said Monday the children were upset about the theft and were anxious to "find the culprit" who had apparently taken the magnets.

The children volunteered, he said in an interview. "They seemed to want to prove they weren't guilty."

Mr. McKone, who explained that the idea and decision to strip the children were his, said he was surprised at the reaction among parents of some of the children.

McKone and A. T. Crutcher, director of the Renfrew County Board of Education, to complain after the incident.

Federal Offer No Hell: Potter

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario rejected the latest federal government proposals for health care financing Tuesday.

"They're no hell," Ontario Health Minister Richard Potter said in an interview. "We might as well have stayed home."

And Treasurer John White, after hearing the federal presentation, said he still favors a recent proposal by Quebec for a fiscal transfer between the governments, with an equalization procedure to protect the have not provinces.

Hours after it began, what was to have been a two day federal provincial conference to settle the intricate problem of financing health and education ministers from both levels of government agreed only that the problem should be left to their leaders at a first ministers conference May 28.

"If the horse is dead, there's no point beating it even further," Health Minister Marc Lalonde said as provincial ministers scrambled to get out of Ottawa a day earlier than expected.

Behind them lay the latest in a series of federal suggestions aimed at solving jurisdictional differences over the right to control money destined for health and education.

This one, outlined by Finance Minister John Turner and Mr. Lalonde at the beginning of the conference, would give provinces six additional cents from each income tax dollar for health programs.

As well, it would give them the right to use what now is garnered by the federal government in excise taxes on tobacco, alcohol, wine and beer.

Ontario Treasurer John White, however, echoing sentiments of most other provinces, maintained that an even larger share of income tax money must be given to provincial administrations.

Mr. White said Ontario wants 29 per cent of the federal government's personal income tax collection in the province, which would amount to $970 million.

"It would transfer the necessary fiscal resources for Ontario to assume full responsibility for health and post-secondary education financing," said the treasurer.

Both Mr. White and Dr. Potter emphasized that Ontario wants to opt out of the health-sharing plan.

Ontario continues to prefer the Quebec proposal, said Mr. White, "It's less complicated, administratively more efficient, cheaper and it's unconditional."

Dr. Potter complained that Ontario was being penalized for innovations in the health field because the federal government refused to share the costs.

"We've developed alternatives and they've refused to participate," Dr. Potter said. "Extended care-nursing homes, convalescent units, ambulance service—none of these are covered by the federal proposals."

Mr. White told Finance Minister John Turner "the time has come to go ahead with the opting-out reform, to agree on the programs to which it can be applied and to establish the requisite fiscal equivalences."

The Ontario treasurer then turned his attention to Mr. Turner's most recent budget.

"Your . . . budget did nothing to relieve the fiscal problems facing Ontario," Mr. White told Mr. Turner.

"First, the personal income tax cuts were designed in a way which prevents provincial pro-

Concern Mounts as Canadian Fired Upon in Mekong Delta

SAIGON (Reuter) — There is mounting concern within the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) over the increasing number of attacks on its vehicles and helicopters in South Vietnam.

Canadian officials reported that in the latest incident one of their Jeeps, clearly marked with ICCS stripes and flags, was fired on as it drove along Highway Four near the Mekong Delta city of Cai Lay Thursday.

The jeep was not hit and the uniformed Canadian warrant officer and his Vietnamese driver were unhurt. It happened only three weeks before the end of the second 60 day period, when Canada is to again consider whether or not to remain on the commission.

"Wherever we receive a complaint, and decide to investigate we always demand safety guarantees from the party concerned," said a Canadian official.

"But the incidents involving ICCS vehicles and aircraft on regular everyday business are somewhat alarming."

The Canadian in the vehicle was WO Wilfred Spellmeier of Ottawa and Brandon, Man. He was not injured and reached a police station where he spent the night. Spellmeier is a film-maker with the Canadian Forces.

PM Says Dreams Can Come True For Canadians

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday it now appears Canadian expectations can be satisfied "no matter how wild our dreams are."

But it is important that national values and quality and life not be destroyed in the process, he told a Canadian Club luncheon.

When he took office in 1968, it appeared that the "revolution of rising expectations", would present a danger—that the expectations were rising at a rate that could not be fulfilled.

"We would have to be very cautious unless our society be destroyed."

Denies Snooping

Mr. Allmand told Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds) that the advisory group of 14 persons has no operational capability in security matters and does not use electronic eavesdropping devices to gather information.

BEIRUT (AP) — The Lebanese army and Palestinian guerrillas dueled near the Beirut airport again today despite proclamation of a new cease-fire. Guerrilla attacks also were reported near the Syrian border.

Witnesses said guerrillas near the airport opened fire with mortar and rockets, and the army retaliated with tank cannon and artillery. There fires were reported burning behind guerrilla lines near the Shatilla refugee camp.

A senior army official said a joint ceasefire commission was making "desperate efforts" to stop the shelling.

Guerrilla attacks today also were reported against a number of army installation and villages in southeast Lebanon, near the Israeli border. There was speculation in Beirut that the attacks were made by Palestinians who had crossed into Lebanon from Syria, as they did during the fighting last week.

Alberta to Probe Cardboard 'Coffin'

EDMONTON (CP) — An investigation into the handling of a dead baby, shipped home to her mother in a cardboard box, was ordered Tuesday by Neil Crawford, Alberta's minister of health and social developments.

He told the legislature the Alberta hospital services commission will investigate the conduct of person responsible for the body of three-month-old Belinda Manybears, shipped last month from Royal Alexandra Hospital here to her mother at Slave Lake.

Mr. Crawford spoke before a statement by Grant Notley, Alberta New Democratic Party leader, that he had information about three similar cases involving residents of the Wabasca area about 225 miles north of Edmonton.

Outside the legislature, Mr. Notley said a child's mutilated body had been shipped to its parents in a cardboard box. Mr. Notley said he had no details on the other two cases. Mr. Crawford said he had no such information.

Tradeau Won't Tip Hands on Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — In the wake of a hefty hike in food prices and other living costs, the Commons erupted in jeers and shouts Tuesday as the opposition tore after the government for immediate action to halt further increases.

But Prime Minister Trudeau would not tip his hand on the government's contingency plans being held in the wings.

"We would not signal it in advance to permit everyone across the country to make increases before the plan was actually implemented," he said.

With the opposition appearing to ignite in indignation over the latest increases, the Commons slugged out a rousing question period, preceded by some unsuccessful motions to adjourn the House for a special debate and to implement a 90-day freeze on prices, incomes and rents.

They were not accepted. Then the opposition went on to blast Mr. Trudeau for allegedly not taking action and Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray for allegedly being too slow to establishing a prices review board.

When this was over, Progressive Conservative Leader Stanfield went outside the House to reiterate his party's demand for a 90-day freeze, while New Democratic Leader David Lewis called for a federal-provincial conference on selective controls.

Senators Offer Limited Immunity to Watergate Witnesses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators are said to be offering limited immunity from prosecution to obtain sworn and public testimony from as many as eight persons linked to the Watergate case.

The disclosure, from sources close to the Senate's Watergate committee, came Tuesday as the committee announced it will open long-awaited public hearings next week.

The committee said it may grant partial immunity to the man who has sought it the hardest—ousted White House counsel John Dean.

In addition to Dean, the committee is reported considering extending immunity to the four Miami men arrested in Washington D. C. and later in Jeb Stuart Magruder, a former Nixon campaign official, and to convicted Watergate conspirators E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy.

Dean has been quoted as saying he has information linking President Nixon to a cover-up of the bugging of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate.

As the committee prepared to "go public," other figures in the case were reported near indictment or under pressure to resign government jobs.

The New York Daily News, quoting "an unimpeachable source," says the Watergate grand jury believes enough evidence is in hand to indict former attorney-general John Mitchell. Mitchell called the report "irresponsible" and said he is guiltless of illegal involvements.

Meanwhile, former White House aide Egil Krogh was reported under intense pressure to resign as undersecretary of transportation because of his admitted role in the burglary of the Los Angeles office of a psychiatrist treating Daniel Ellsberg.

The pressure was said to be coming from Transportation Secretary Claude Brinegar.

Krogh, on indefinite leave from his $42,503-a-year job, headed a White House detachment seeking to plug security leaks. The leaks included one involving Ellsberg, now on trial for copying the top-secret Pentagon Papers and giving them to newspapers.

Krogh's affidavit, sent to the Ellsberg trial judge in Los Angeles, named convicted Watergate conspirators Hunt and Liddy as the men who actually planned the burglary.

His account led to the release of a separate statement by Hunt who said he got technical help including disguises and concealed cameras—from the Central Intelligence Agency.

CIA documents made available at the Ellsberg trial Tuesday said the aid to Hunt was authorized by marine Gen. Robert Cushman when he was deputy director of the agency.

Cushman has been ordered to return from a trip to the Netherlands and is scheduled Thursday to give an explanation to senior senators assigned to oversee CIA operations.

In other Watergate developments:

—The Washington Post says the White House has told the Justice department to recover nine documents said to be related to Watergate which Dean has said he placed in a safety-deposit box in nearby Alexandria, Va. The keys to the box have been turned over to Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

In another report, The Post says Attorney General-designate Elliot L. Richardson has been given authority by Nixon to decide whether to grant immunity to current and former government officials who are called to testify.

Egil Krogh Resigns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egil (Bud) Krogh, boss of the White House team that broke into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, resigned today as undersecretary of transportation.

Krogh had reportedly been under pressure from Secretary Claude Brinegar to give up the $42,500-a-year job since his involvement in the burglary was made known.

Playground Needs Land

ANGLICANSURGE! — A supervised playground for the 200 children of Rossmore will become a reality this summer provided council has its way and receives co-operation from owners of land in the east end of the township.

Council indicated last night the matter was being given top priority among items to be attended to in the immediate future.

Council's assurance that the wheels will be put in motion to secure the property in accordance with the parents' brief presented last night followed the presentation and exchange of views by both sides.

At present, part of the fire-hall property a mile west of Rossmore village is available. The site is not large enough but Mrs. Keith Osterhout, spokesman for the parents, was told an effort will be made to enlarge this piece before other locations are considerd.

Council favored the parent's proposal to engage mature, trained personnel for supervisory roles.

Council disclosed the township is able to budget for the expense of the playground and its operation through the active recreation committee.

The brief said that at least two specialized playground supervisor training courses are available in the Prince Edward and Belleville areas.

At a meeting with Belleville Y, the parents were offered the opportunity, free of charge, of taking the Y's leadership training course.

Guidance Workshop

Mrs. Elizabeth Ballerschefi, guidance counsellor at Benson Public School in Leeds-Grenville, was at Centennial Secondary School yesterday to outline elementary school guidance programs under her board. Harold Mott, (standing) of RCI and Sid Allnutt, chairman for the occasion, were among the secondary school guidance counsellors supporting implementation of guidance in elementary schools in this county. The team from Leeds-Grenville presented the model used in their county.

Reward Offer Vetoed As Search Continues

TRENTON — Provincial authorities have rejected application for payment of a reward for information about the attempted murder of a Trenton tree surgeon Jan. 26.

No reason for the rejection was given.

No new leads have developed since the shooting incident and it was hoped a reward would attract information.

Police at the time announced they felt the lone gunman was waiting for Mr. Brown to return to his trailer home, and was not just a burglar surprised in the act.

As the Hannah Park resident walked around the trailer, someone shot him with what is believed to be a .22 calibre rifle. The bullet pierced his lft upper forehead, missing through the middle of the forehead.

Falling to the ground, Mr. Brown, described by police as "an extremely strong man", managed to pack his face and forehead with snow. This revived him and he staggered to his feet. His assailant fled on foot.

- Police arrived at the conclusion it was attempted murder, not accidental shooting, because of physical evidence at the scene. Footprints showe the gunman had waited for some time in the area, urinating at one point.

Motive for the shooting is still not known at this time, more than three months after. Police have described the tree surgeon as a "friendly man ... well liked, with no enemies."

At th time, surgeons report ed if the bullet had varied a fraction of an inch in either direction upon entry, Mr. Brown would have died.

Investigation into the matter continues. Details and information to the Brighton OPP office at 475-1313, will be treated with strictest confidence.

Three Injured, Driver Charged

Cheryl Davidson of RR 2, Madoc, was northbound when a car driven by John Rae, 350 North Front St., careered from the Sun Valley Motor Inn parking across the path.

The cars collided, sending Mrs. Davidson to Belleville General Hospital with cuts and bruises and causing minor injuries to her passenger, John Parks, also of RR 2, Madoc, and Mr. Rae's passenger Edward Brown of Peterborough. Mrs. Davidson was treated and released.

Damage to her car was $1,200 and to Mr. Rae's $500.

Police charged Mr. Rae with impaired driving.

Regional Alternative Requires Planning

PICTON — If municipalities are to have a voice in their destinies, the pulse of the people must be published now as a regional government approaches in this area.

The urgency of this action was stressed to Picton Rotarians yesterday by Jack Brennan, mayor of Cobourg. He is town has been with six other communities to forward a proposal for a new regional municipality" called Greater Pine Ridge in an effort to retain local sparit found in Oshawa region.

Mayor Brennan, an investment consultant, observed, "Sometimes you get the feeling local governments and the people are very skeptical about Regional." He was referring to former provincial treasurer Darcy McKeough's early advice to municipalities to prepare official plans or to introduce zoning bylaws.

"Today we are faced with the complete restructuring of municipal government," he said.

Mayor Heenan read excerpts from news stories about regional governments printed in 1870 and referred to some that declared government by remote control would not be democratic.

Restructuring does not necessarily mean regional government. Municipalities can present a better case. A viable unit bringing back to the county unit some services, such as control of wildlife and conservation, could be accepted.

In researching people's feelings toward regional government, westerners must travel to communities similar to their own to create social dialogue. If this is not done "the very trend of your own people' is opposed.

Mayor Heenan remarked that planners often take a map and a ruler and ignore the human beings living within the boundaries they draw.

"Don't lose your municipality's identity. Don't go the way of living you enjoy," he emphasized.

"The mayor said he felt valuable growth at a sustained, open is healthy but observed that overnight development frequently dies as swiftly as it was created.

The Great Pine Ridge proposal for a regional municipality has been presented to government officials and Mayor Heenan is swalling the outcome of the presentation.

He observed the restructuring of a municipal government does not necessarily mean regional government. The mayor referred to heavy investments in land near Cobourg by Toronto subdividers and said it had occurred because they felt the community would become part of the Toronto urban sprawl if it were regionalized.

"Don't go out and argue unless you have something concrete and something better to offer," he advised residents interested in promoting alternatives in th restructuring of municipal government.

Trail Request Turned Down

Hastings county council Tuesday turned down a request from the Hastings-Addington Trail Association for a grant of $300 to keep its administrative affairs in order.

The request to council was in the form of a letter from James Staveley, president of the trail association.

Clearing of the trail, which extends from Lake Ontario to Algonquin Park, was accomplished through a LIP grant more than a year ago and a request for additional funds to further the project was directed by senior government.

Mr. Staveley in his letter said funds were needed to assist in removing windfall trees and for the erection of trail signs and provision of stiles.

But county councillors were not too sympathetic to the request with several suggesting that if the trail was not self-supporting to "forget it."

Faraday Reeve Jack MacKenzie said he always thought the trail was a private effort and he still thought so.

Tyendinaga councilor suspected administration took much of the grant money which went into the trail and suggested that Montealge Reeve S. J. Carr recommended that no action be taken on the grant request and the motion was carried. the same would happen to any county grant.

Madoc township reeve Cecil Wood said he couldn't hazard an anybody using the trail for hiking and commented that it wasn't intended for snowmobiling.

And anyone using it in the summer would be eaten up by blackflies and mosquitoes, he said.

moving in to take up this potential tax room. Second, the increased personal exemptions mean immediate revenue loases—in Ontario's case some $25 million in 1972-74.

Mr. Hellyer also said the proposal "to index the personal income tax will result in a drag growth in provincial income tax revenues."

"Far from improving the tax sharing imbalance, the federal budget has further impaired the provincial revenue position and more than ever forced the provinces to depend on a federal revenue guarantee."

Under the new health cost proposals, Ontario would get $876 million in 1974-75 and $1 billion in 1978-79.

Despite the federal government's intentions of increasing Mr. White said the tax reform is inevitable.

The idea is going to prove to be irresistible—whether it takes one month or three years. "I just don't know," the Ontario treasurer said.

Earlier, Jack McNie, Ontario minister of colleges and universities, said he found it hard to take the federal government's new post-secondary education proposals seriously.

"I was disappointed in that the proposals don't really provide an awareness of what's happening in the post-secondary education field.

He said he was impressed by the fact that all 10 provinces rejected the education proposals. Seven Newfoundland and British Columbia, the provinces who stand to benefit most.

He also said if the federal-Quebec tax sharing proposal is not acceptable to the federal government, he'd just as soon stick with the present method, in which Ontario receives what it picks up about half of the money spent in post-secondary education.

Ontario got about $401 million from the federal government for its 200,000 post secondary school students. Under the new proposals, the province would get about $439 million but Ontario officials from Mr. McNie's department were skeptical of the figures.

Mr. McNie said he wasn't aware of the new proposals until he got a letter last Thursday and some of his colleagues from other provinces weren't informed until Monday.

Sound System Turned Down

Hastings county councillors are not going to get any electronic gadgetry to help them be heard in the 47-member council chamber.

This was decided Tuesday when council turned down a proposal for the installation of a sound system.

Since the January session the finance and public property committee investigated the installation of microphones and speakers in the chambers after several members complained of being unable to hear.

But because of the size of the council and the amount of wiring which would be necessary, the committee ruled out the possibility of a complete sound system. However, the committee said it would be possible to install microphones for the warden, the clerk - administrator, department heads, and at the rail at the public gallery at a cost of $1,500.

Council, however, didn't feel the partial installation would do anything for communication between members and it was voted down.

Trenton Pet Food Processor Produces Million Pounds Daily

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — An elf-expecting cat or dog that could turn up its nose at the pet food division of Quaker Oats of Canada Ltd. here, would have to be one that prefers people food.

Bob Prentice, the manager of Quaker Oats, Trenton, since 1967, says one million pounds of assorted cat and dog food is produced each day. And that's a lot of fish (heads and all), beef, tripe, intestines, livers, cheese, kidneys and chunked up chicken.

Everywhere you look, tons of processed food is undergoing transformation from its original state to emerge in cans, as packaged dry meal, in burger style, or in biscuit form. It may not look appetizing to the human visitor, but to the millions of domestic pets in Canadian homes, it's enough to throw the most finicky pet into ecstacy.

During a tour of the plant facilities — operated since 1921 by Quaker Oats that bought the operation from Crusse and Blackwell — raw and processed food lay literally everywhere.

Men clad in blood and fish-scale smeared frocks were shovelling whole fish from a freight car at the rear of the plant. Some hadn't made it up the conveyor belt, and could be felt under foot. This would be cleaned up later.

In another corner of the vast plant, there were stacks of frozen meat from packing companies across Canada and some from the U.S. Mr. Prentice explained that every portion of animals is put to good use by meat processing houses. What doesn't end up on the family dinner table, most often in a round about way, ends up in kitty's dish.

But not just anything gets into the processing vats. A large stack of juicy - looking beef lay in the middle of the plant floor — enough to tempt any meat price - conscious consumer.

But closer inspection of the shipment by one of the company's five quality control experts, had revealed rancid fat. Instant rejection for that load.

When the whole meat products are put through the shredders, cookers and mixers, what emerges is rarely what one might associate with pet food.

One thing that's missing from the pet food plant, and that's horsemeat. At one time shredders, cookers and mixers here in Trenton at Quaker Oats. The method, as described in a recent Weekend Magazine article, is brutal and gory.

It's also less economic than to import dressed horse, Mr. Prentice said. He was the one who outlawed the use of horse meat shortly after coming to Trenton.

Quaker Oats employs 230 workers throughout the year. Back in 1952, there were only 24 workers producing Ken-L-Ration dog food and Aunt's Boots cat food.

Since then numerous additions and modernizing have upgraded facilities, and production levels. There are now 81 varieties of pet foods produced under several brand names incorporating the original ones used more than 20 years ago.

800 Cans per Minute

George Badgley, keeps a watchful eye on cans of pet food en route to Quaker Oats' recently installed $½ million hydraulic cooker. This machine cooks the pet food in the tins, returning them water-cooled, two hours later, ready for labeling. This extra machine, controlled by computer, has more than doubled the plant's output. Cans used in the Dufferin St. plant are made by Continental Can Company in a building owned by Quaker Oats. The tins pass through an adjoining wall by conveyor belt directly on to the pet food assembly line.

Cheeseburger Anyone?

Technological Gap

Soviet and Chinese advances in the build-up of their respective navies made interesting reading in a recent piece by foreign affairs writer John Harbron. The Soviet navy is generally regarded today to be one of the world's most powerful but it is China's which offers the most surprises in this regard, being big on manpower and, from being one of the lowliest in years gone by, now boasts a submarine fleet larger than either Britain or France.

Powerful as the Chinese military forces are however, not to mention its burgeoning economy, to western eyes it is still in many ways a comparatively primitive society. Last fall for example Alberto Wu of Trenton was in Peking for the Canadian trade fair there. The general manager of Pyrotenex of Canada Ltd., Mr. Ward contends that for all its great population — some 850 million — China is far from backhind the technology of the Western world. However he told Belleville Rotarians the other day that the gap is closing.

Meantime the Chinese do not recognise copyright laws or patents and they have become expert at copying Western and Soviet equipment. The Trenton businessman saw direct copies of British and Russian machinery. An auto plant he visited produces a "car" which is a jeep-style vehicle of the type used by the Americans and Russians. Available only to military and government personnel, the vehicle is turned out in a plant in which no western-style safety standards are observed and headlight alignment, for instance, is achieved by flashing them against a wall.

Mr. Ward said the Canadians had been told not to exhibit anything of a labor-saving character. But when Premier Chou En-lai toured the display he asked about snowblowers, the implication being that with more and more foreigners visiting the country, the Chinese want to impress them with such equipment rather than with unlimited manpower. And yet, manpower and jobs remain paramount in the Chinese scheme of things, Mr. Ward pointing out that the auto plant mentioned earlier employs 8,500 people in turning out only 10,000 vehicles a year.

For a society though which is still emerging from long years of insularity and before that, the conservatism of its people to war lords and emperors, the future holds no bounds. Here without any doubt is a nation of unlimited potential, a country to be reckoned with.

Pressure on Resources

The energy crisis in the United States, with energy gas stations being forced to close, and the need to conserve the use of air conditioners and appliances generally, is a foretaste surely of the worst prospects of mankind: an overpopulated world and nothing left in the way of food and all the other resources that we need to survive.

There is talk in the U.S. of gas rationing, and already some stations are limiting the amount per customer, as well as working shorter hours. Others, as we already noted, have been obliged to close altogether.

Hitherto the United States has been the prime symbol of a land of plenty, but all of a sudden it is dawning on the American public and ourselves that its resources are not unlimited. Considering the fact of a population of 200 million and the prodigal daily drain on resources of all kinds, not to mention the wastage (food, fuel and all the rest of it), the worst fears for somewhere around the year 2,000 do not seem all that far-fetched.

Rationing is something none of us would take kindly to, especially in peacetime, but if nothing else the lesson to be obtained from this writing on the wall is that wastage, at the very least, should be avoided. We could all do with a little less of everything and in doing so we would be playing a vital part in the husbanding of the world's resources.

Inflation Defined

The dictionary definition of inflation, in case anyone needs reminding: An increase in the amount of currency in circulation, resulting in a relatively sharp and sudden fall in its value and rise in prices; it may be caused by an increase in the amount of paper money issued or of gold mined, or a relative increase in expenditures, as when the supply of goods fails to meet the demand.

Science Council's Report

Regional Development: Too Many Are in on the Act

By HENRY HEALD

OTTAWA — The problem with the regional development areas is that it has gone only far enough to establish its failures. Success takes longer and the countries that have enjoyed success are less visible than the ones that failed.

That is just one of the insights into the problems trying to sort out Canada's regional disparities that appear in the latest report of the Science Council of Canada.

A long chapter on Regional Development Programs seeks to highlight the complexity of the problem than to propose useful recommendations, but it does come to the conclusion that the manufacturing industry has been asked to bear too large a portion of the responsibility for raising the standard of living in the slow growth areas.

It does not, however, give any clear alternatives. It concludes that: "Until it has been established what the Canadian manufacturing industry is to do in the longer term . . . no proper policy for manufacturing within the group activities best suited to foster greater equity among the regions of Canada will not be assessable."

"Much more attention should be given to the design of programs which put less emphasis on the role of manufacturing.

"The over-all aim of the regional development programs should be to make the slow-growth areas economically attractive to industry, but not by means of continuing subsidies. Methods for achieving this aim will require inter - government and interagency co-operation and understanding and a more effective division of labor between them."

That will be hard to translate into action by either industrialists or by the many government officials charged with the difficult task of trying to devise effective regional development policies.

But the chapter provides plenty of ammunition for critics of regional expansion policies as well as some good answers that Economic Expansion Minister Don Jamieson can fire back at his critics.

For instance the authors of the report debate the principle of providing regional development grants for American-based companies.

The government's interest is in the success of the particular development program and the track record and expertise of the industry at the heart of it is important to that success.

Another common criticism that development grants merely export unemployment from one area to another — is also derided by the report. As with the criticism that grants cause modernization of industry, the report says the blame really lies with the market for the particular product.

The report itself is critical of regional development programs from a variety of aspects. One is the tendency of the government to change the rules of the game from time to time.

"Companies that enter a program on the basis of one set of rules do not like the rules to be changed frequently or in mid-stream. There should now be enough experience in Canada that short-term regional development programs can give way to longer-term ones."

It also criticized the myriad of regional development schemes at the provincial and municipal levels which sometimes upset national goals by trying to fill in local gaps. This also creates competition between provinces, and sometimes within provinces, to try and land a particular industry. As a result the cost of attracting new industry trends to escalate as sometimes there just are not enough new plants to go around.

Within the federal government itself there are too many departments that are involved in the act and too few public servants with first - hand experience in manufacturing. Despite the fact that many of the agencies have been brought under the department of regional economic expansion, there are still at least 21 federal departments and agencies involved in regional development programs.

The statistics on industrial development in Canada show up the real problem. Eighty per cent of industrial output comes from Ontario and Quebec. British Columbia accounts for another 10 per cent leaving the remaining seven provinces to share the last 10 per cent. Since more than half of the goods and services produced by any business are used in its own local region, the problem of regional development becomes not merely locating a few industries, but establishing a total industrial infrastructure.

Finally, perhaps more in desperation than in hope, the authors note that moving people to more economically advanced areas is a difficult task and a person might prefer to work at a low paying job in the part of the country he prefers than move to a better paying one somewhere else.

"No one has yet developed a quality-of-life index which could be substituted for the per capita income," it notes.

Oil Wealth Allows Arabs to Maintain Arms Race

By DAVE THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Israel owes its first 25 years to its army but even its military commander won't guarantee the Jewish state's security beyond this decade.

Defence Minister Moshe Dayan said recently that the Israeli forces can count on unchallenged superiority over their Arab enemies until 1980 but, in one sense, the celebration of power at independence celebrations Monday exposed a vital weakness.

The screaming flypast over conquered territory was performed by French-made Mirage fighters and American Phantom jets, while many of the tanks rumbling through Jerusalem were refurbished Soviet machines, captured in the 1967 six-day war which more than quadrupled Israeli-controlled territory.

Observers say time and money are working against Israel in its arms race with the encircling Arab states and as long as it relies on foreign weapon supplies its long-term future is shaky.

Trained men and women and the latest equipment now give Israel its proven hegemony over the Arab military world but that superiority costs 30 per cent of the national budget. Its citizens are not only among the best-trained in the world, they also are the most heavily taxed.

The Arab states, on the other hand, grow more and more wealthy from their oil revenues and can more easily keep pace with the escalating costs of sophisticated weapons.

Oil will not only provide money; it could give the Arabs increasing political influence with their European customers, such as the United States.

It seems inevitable that Arab leaders will exploit the energy situation by demanding, a weakened American support of Israel in return for a more attractive petroleum deal.

Although Israel's resourceful domestic arms industry is building a home-designed jet fighter and an anti-aircraft missile, experts say Israel will be forced to rely on American willingness to sell arms for some time. Understandably it is worried about the new mood of economic self-interest in Washington.

It was such a mood that was partially responsible for France's sudden shift in the Middle East when it stopped delivery to Israel of a fleet of Mirage fighters and began selling them to Libya instead.

Any major oil buyers would have to think twice before cutting off supplies to the Arabs. If the Soviet Union, for example, decided to provide the Arab armies with ground-to-ground missiles, the important superiority of Israeli soldiers and pilots might be reduced by a small group of skilled technicians.

Scattered missile sites protected by the efficient Soviet anti-aircraft rockets already introduced to the Middle East would deny Israel the ability to repeat its spectacular 1967 destruction of enemy air power.

David Ben-Gurion, the 86-year-old former prime minister who declared Israel an independent state May 14, 1948, told celebrants that peace cannot be expected soon:

"I hope there will be peace, and in eight, 10 or 12 years there will be because the Arabs need it badly, but, for the time being, there will not be peace."

If, however, the Arabs do feel need peace because of their wealth and power in the 1980s, Israel might then be even further away from peaceful security than it is now.

So we have problems living next door to a world power? But never the problems facing Finland in her past and present, living next door to the Soviet Union.

The Finns, living in an independent northern European democracy have found out how to survive alongside the world's most powerful totalitarian and military state.

And within the memory of many Finns the crushing defeat which Russia experienced during the brief Soviet-Finnish War of late 1939 and early 1940, remains a legacy of Finnish bravery and determination to survive.

Our last shooting war with the Americans which ended in 1814 is historic and too far back in time to play a major part in the current development of Canadian nationalism. Not so with the Finns. It's true they ultimately lost the war, not to be annexed by the shattered Russians, but to lose a wedge of their national territory including one of the world's richest nickel deposits.

When Nazi Germany moved east on August 22, 1941 and invaded the USSR, Finland became an ally of Hitler. Field Marshal von Dietl, the Fuhrer's special lad in northern war, was commanded in Helsinki until the Nazi retreat. Again the Russians forced the Finns to pay tribute to them, this time by shifting about 20 per cent of Finnish trade to a badly exhausted Soviet economy.

Even out of this the hardy Finns made capital. One of Moscow's major requirements was new ships and icebreakers from Finnish shipyards, or an emerging Finnish shipbuilding industry trying to compete against its Scandinavian neighbors Sweden and Norway, the forced draft Russian business turned out to be a Godsend.

Today, Helsinki's Wartsila shipyards are the world's leading specialists in icebreaker construction; seven have so proposed new icebreakers for Canadian Arctic waters.

The products of highly artistic Finnish crafts in furniture-making, glassware, superb hunting rifles, home entertainment units, radios and record players are shipped by the hundreds to the Soviet Union where none of these skills have been developed.

The Russians with their constant emphasis on capital goods, hydro dams steels mills, aeronautic projects, have woefully abandoned the Russian consumer. Soviet home appliances of any kind are crude, usually unworkable and largely unwanted.

As a result, the Finns do a roaring Christmas business and gives Moscow's bureaucrats an opportunity to buy elsewhere since consumerism has even begun to affect the long-suffering Russian household.

But Finland's current big play is to maintain Helsinki as the peace-keeping site for the ongoing European security and disarmament talks. These have been under way since last fall and will get renewed emphasis with President Nixon bidding about "The Year of Europe," a closer American-European rapprochement based on widening relationships in a peaceful world.

Today's democracy of 4.6 million Finns owes a great deal to the shrewd diplomacy of Finnish President Urho Kekkonen who keeps relations with Moscow very sweet.

Another important powerful Finnish Communist Party is held by its opponents to be less effective than it should be because Finns have always known where to stand with the Moscow colossus without a home-grown variety of the party of Lenin to tell them.

Market Popular

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

May I express my concern and I feel sure that of hundreds of other good citizens of your town, as I read with horror, even in England that plans of the Farmers Market may be moved to an "inside" building. Surely NO, NO, NO, people of Belleville and friends of the country, let the municipal gentlemen take the character of your lovely town away. Should you be a wonderful people come to England on holiday and then on to Canada — what do we look for — MARKETS like yours. The friendliness of the farmers and their wives who we all know are the salt of the earth, we can see your home-grown produce, the vegetables, fruit flowers and dairy and of course the piles of golden corn, the eyes would be turning back -

I beg you citizens, go and see "your" market in the summer; in July-August I'll be there to pick up a warm sunkissed peach and a bouquet of Gladi. with the rest of my shopping.

"For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast." Ephesians 2: 8, 9

There is, absolutely nothing that you can do to bring about your salvation apart from freely accepting what Jesus has already done. Make no mistake about it however, there is work to be done after salvation. "Work while it is day, the night cometh when no man can work."

German Fashion Rivals Compete

BERLIN (CP) — Berlin and Munich are the fashion rivals in Germany as are Montreal and Toronto in Canada.

Berlin has the internationally known designer Uli Richter and the House of Schwerin specializing in large sizes. The German figure suffers from too many afternoon cream cakes and hot chocolate.

Munich has its Max Dietl, Heinz Queisser, an annual international fashion prize and the largest fashion school in Germany.

Of immediate interest is Uli Richter's recent first appearance in Toronto. He brought over his fall collection as part of the German airline Lufthansa's inaugural flight on its new Toronto landing rights. The gala showing was under the auspices of the Toronto Fashion Group. But his clothes have been available in some Canadian stores for years.

Richter makes two collections a year to show international buyers at the fashion fairs in Berlin, Munich and Dusseldorf. In 1965 he added ready-to-wear, as have so many haute couture houses. For fall he favors double-faced wool and is showing them especially in three-piece ensembles. Mango is a new favorite color. He showed it in a double-faced wool coat, with brown inside and as facings, and in a suit of a contoured, fox-collared jacket and an A-line skirt. For length, he prefers just below the knee.

Where Richter's haute couture clients are, select and well-heeled, Schwarm (the owner's name) is one of the biggest garment manufacturers in Europe. This 20-year-old Berlin house confines itself to dresses and produces one million a year. It employs 1,000 workers, owns a factory and has 68 smaller manufacturers working for it.

Max Dietl is the recent winner of the $1,000 Fashion Prize of the City of Munich. This award was started in 1955. Seventeen judges select several outstanding international designers and then see the collections. Last year they awarded the prize to the House of Dior.

Munich-born and 58 years old, Dietl started his apprenticeship in men's clothing. In 1945 he opened his own shop for both men's and women's clothes. In 1960 came his haute couture in an elegant salon facing the Opera House.

His early interest is evident here. The men's shop is in the front. Behind is the small elegant ready-to-wear for women, with dull gold velvet chairs and crystal chandeliers. Upstairs is for his private customers. And across a passageway is his accessory boutique.

Munich Heinz Queisser has a close tie with Ontario. Most of his furs are from Canada, made from his sketches by five Ontario furriers. But furs are only a small section of his large wholesale collection. As does Richter, Queisser likes double-face wools: The fall line includes an interesting combination of Loden green with beige inside in lined squares of green, beige and white. Another double face, trench-styled coat, ensemble features a Loden green skirt, long rust vest and a green patterned shirt. Loden is a heavy fabric, popular in Germany and in the green shade we call Loden green.

Blind Examined in Braille - But It Takes Longer

MONTREAL (CP) — Writing examinations takes Sandra Manley, Chris Theoret and Karen Maurer twice as long as their classmates but they don't complain about the extra work.

Sandra, Chris and Karen are blind students who graduated from the elementary school run by the Montreal Association for the Blind and are continuing their high school studies at Montreal West high school.

Examinations are written in the school library and supervised by Elizabeth Tate, head of the school's math department.

"If the questions are multiple choice they have to study each line and remember them all," said Miss Tate. "Others can see all the choices at a glance."

Association volunteers transcribe exam questions into braille or tape them prior to the exam and the students type the answers.

Recently Karen had two exams. Her classmates completed both in 2½ hours while it took Karen from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. with a half hour off for lunch.

The three girls live at the association residence, a 20-minute walk from school, and go home on weekends.

At school they do math in braille and use typewriters for other subjects. Class assignments are typed at night, turned in the next day.

Montreal West's first blind student five years ago, Charlene Webb, has graduated and now is attending Dawson College with a view to becoming a social worker.

As an adult woman, you probably think you no longer need to drink milk regularly. This worries us. Because you're wrong.

You may think you're eating a properly balanced diet. But if you don't drink milk, you might not be. Milk is Nature's most nearly perfect food—and you never outgrow it.

Here are five nutrients known to be factors in the maintenance of health. Milk is an excellent source of all five.

CALCIUM
VITAMIN A PHOSPHORUS

Nutritionists call milk "Nature's most nearly perfect food." And here's why:

In the box at top is a list of 5 basic nutrients: Calcium, Protein, Riboflavin, Vitamin A and Phosphorus. Milk is an excellent source of them all.

Very often, Vitamin D is added to milk as well.

All of these nutrients are factors in the maintenance of good health—in adults as well as in children. So you can see how milk helps you to maintain a balanced diet: indeed, no other commonly available food supplies so many nutrients.

On top of all this, milk is handy to use (just drink it). It is easily obtainable. And, especially considering its food value, it is extremely reasonably priced.

For a change, make hot cocoa, cold milk drinks, milkshakes, eggnogs, and so on. You'll find lots of ways to serve nourishing milk drinks in place of the usual coffee or cola.

And every time you (or a member of your family) drinks milk, you do yourself a real nutritional favour... instead of just consuming empty calories!

Cooking with milk is rewarding, too. Your whole family will enjoy, and benefit from, soups made with milk, creamy custards, rice puddings, scalloped potatoes, chowders.

And once you see how milk enhances your cooking, you'll think up many more ways to use it.

If the carton says, "Chocolate Drink", does this mean it isn't made with milk?

No, it doesn't. In order to distinguish between those chocolate flavoured drinks which are made with homo milk* and those made with 2% milk, the cartons bear different names.

If you see a carton labelled "Chocolate Drink", its contents are 2% milk, flavoured with chocolate. If the carton label says "Chocolate Milk", the contents are whole (homogenized) milk similarly flavoured. Both Chocolate Milk and Chocolate Drink are in fact milk drinks...and both are equally good for you.

Isn't milk too fattening for an adult to drink every day?

Indeed not!

Homo, or whole milk, contains only about 3½% butterfat. This surprises most people, who think whole milk has a much higher fat content.

2% milk is even lower in butterfat: 2%, as you may have guessed from its name.

And skim milk, which has had all its cream removed, has virtually no butterfat at all.

Now, which will it be? Homo, 2% or skim? You decide!

The value of milk.

Milk is more than just food value. It is another kind of value, too: value for money. If your family drinks much milk, it will loom fairly large on your food budget, and you may therefore think it is expensive.

But think again: about what you get from milk for every cent you spend on it! Every glass you drink provides calcium, protein, riboflavin, Vitamin A and phosphorus ... plus thiamine and almost always Vitamin D as well.

The value of milk—for you. No, you haven't outgrown the need for it.

That's right: as long as you live, your body goes on maintaining itself—your bones, teeth, nervous system, general health. This work does not stop with physical growth.

So get back into the daily habit of drinking milk. It will pay off, healthily, for the rest of your life.

Chicken: A Best Buy

Ever meet a chicken you didn't like?

Roasters or stewers, Grade A or Utility, chicken is one of our most versatile foods. Even now at sometimes record prices for cut-up frying chicken, birds are still a best buy.

Chicken buying tips: The bigger the bird the better the buy - remember the frame is essentially the same size. Utility grade poultry can be just as good as Grade A - often the difference is visual as in a missing wing or even leg.

Double your money: use every chicken twice. When serving chicken breasts, bone them (most cookbooks tell you how) and freeze the raw bones. When you've got a bunch, make chicken soup. (Boil the bones in water to cover, add anything you've got around - celery tops and leaves, carrots, onions, rice or noodles).

Save up bits from Sunday's roast chicken for pot pies; one to two cups cooked chicken bits, dash salt, pepper, minced green pepper or celery, minced onion to taste, cooked mixed vegetables about one cup and cream of mushroom or cream of chicken soup. Mix and place into pie crust and top with crust or heat in the over in a casserole, topped with mashed potatoes.

ROAST CHICKEN WITH RICE

Roast a chicken in your favorite manner, stuffed with rice: Steam or boil sufficient white rice to stuff a chicken. Saute in butter with thin cooked carrot slices, thinly sliced celery, minced onion, salt and pepper. You can also add mushrooms.

CHICKEN STEW

Dredge chicken pieces in seasoned flour. Brown lightly in hot oil in a heavy covered dutch oven. Add chicken bouillon or water to cover. Add to taste parsley, sage, rosemary and thyme. Simmer about 20 minutes. Add cut up carrots, onions, and potatoes. Add more bouillon or water to barely cover if necessary. Simmer until vegetables are cooked, about 25 minutes.

Good honey things, all, but try giving chicken the starring role at your table when guests are expected.

BREASTS OF CHICKEN

Bone chicken breasts, rub with cut garlic. Season with salt and white pepper. (One per person with a full dinner is usually sufficient.) Heat clarified butter in a covered skillet that can be placed in the oven. When butter is just at sizzling point, add salton bits to taste and quickly roll breasts in flour but not brown. Remove from heat, top with a round of buttered wax paper, cover with lid and place in 450 degree pre-heated oven for about 8 minutes. Remove breasts to heated platter. Place skillet on burner over high heat. Pour in ¼ cup dry red wine or dry sherry. Reduce to half. Add ½ cup 35 per cent cream. Heat. Pour over chicken breasts, sprinkle with chives or parsley.

CHICKEN BOURGIGNON

In a heavy skillet, saute chicken pieces in butter and oil until browned. Reduce heat and cook slowly for 15 minutes. Add small whole onions or onion quarters, whole fresh mushrooms. Saute until vegetables are cooked. Remove chicken and accompaniments to heated platter. Over high heat, add ½ cup red wine to skillet. Reduce by half. Add one cup beef stock or bouillon. Heat to boiling; add chicken and vegetables.

Ann Landers

'Life's About Love and Kindness'

Dear Ann Landers: I must take issue with your answer to the inexperienced girl who wanted to know how she (and her unminkiated females) can tell if a man is a homosexual before she becomes emotionally involved with him. Two of her friends had married homosexuals and the results were disastrous.

You were correct when you said there is no sure way to tell because some homosexuals appear to be straight and some straights have gay characteristics. One can no more distinguish a homosexual from a heterosexual than he can spot a Baptist from a Catholic.

Why didn't you tell the girl to stop looking for labels? Isn't it more important to be kind and loving, and to accept one another as humans? Isn't that what life is all about?—Reader in Schaumburg

Dear Readers: I also deplore labels, but when it comes to marriage, it matters a great deal to a heterosexual woman if she discovers she has married a side-saddle tenor or a switch-hitter. You are right when you say it's virtually impossible to tell from outward appearances, but on the big issue, we are miles apart.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 13 years old and I have two problems. My mother and dad. They are in good health, not crippled or anything. Yet they run me around from morning till night doing things they could do for themselves, if they weren't so lazy. It's "Get me this. Get me that. Go here. Go there. Find his. Find that." It's like I was a servant or something.

If I ask them to go get something for me, I get a dirty look. Why is it OK for parents to chase their kids all over, but kids aren't supposed to ask their parents to do anything?—Fayre Deer

Dear Deer: Yes. It's fair. In the Army it's referred to as R.H.I.P. (Rank Has Its Privileges.)

Children should be glad to repay their parents for all the big favors they got when they were babies. Who diapered you, fed you, walked the floor with you, stayed home with you, worried about you when you were sick, taught you how to walk and talk? So—you do find your dad's eyeglasses. Big deal.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for Miss 44D who hated to wear a bra because it's uncomfortable. Her weak line was, "Not every braless female is trying to be sexy, Ann. Some of us just want to be comfortable."

I have news for her. If she wants to be comfortable she should stop stuffing her fat face and lose some weight. The actual bust size of a woman is reflected in her cup letter. (A, B, C, etc.) The number along side it—38, 40, 42, etc., signifies how large she is.

I work in a bra factory and I'm up on these things. A 34 seems to fit the average frame of a 120 pound woman. Can you imagine how much a 44D would weigh? I've made bras in 32F. These poor girls should see a plastic surgeon. But that dame who wears a 44D has another kind of problem. Her mouth. —Up With People in Vermont

Dear Up: Not all 44's are fat ladies. Some are big boned gals with large frames. But you are right about the cup sizes. When madame's cup runneth over to an F, she should consider breast reduction surgery.

Successful Living

Pop's ... Poor Example

Dear Doris: My sister's husband is encouraging their children to be liars by telling them not to tell their mother when he does what he doesn't want her to know.

One Sunday night she was telling me on the telephone that they had gone to church when he does things he doesn't want her to know. Also, one day their daughter lied to her mother in front of our daughter.

I keep asking myself can I let this go on without saying anything. She knows exactly how he is but I hate to be the one to tell on him. —Grateful.

Dear Grateful: If your sister already knows, she probably works away at covering up for him. Which helps nobody in the end, and delivers the message to impressionable children that lying is sometimes the way to keep out of trouble. Such a message is in itself a lie. Also a neat way to produce mixed-up, unhappy adults.

Honesty counts. Let your brother know you won't go along with him in deceiving his wife or encouraging his children in something which can do lasting harm to growing personalities.

* * *

Dear Doris: My intended and I are both grandparents, lonely and quite compatible, and a bit in the dark as to procedure for a second wedding.

Should the bride have a diamond ring? Who should be invited to the wedding? Should there be a honeymoon? Is it correct to serve refreshments after the wedding? —Senior Citizen

Dear Senior Citizen: Congratulations to you and your fiance! Certainly you may have a diamond ring, and a honeymoon, too.

Invite family and friends, as many a you feel you can accommodate, and serve them refreshments. If you would like to send 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, I'd be glad to send you my leaflet, "The Second Wedding".

We've All Heard It Once . .

"All you do is mess around with diapers and dirt all day. What do you know about the world situation?"

"Can't you let me get at least halfway through my martini before you start telling me what a hard day you've had?"

"Yes, as plumbers we still make emergency house calls. We probably can get a man there by tomorrow afternoon at the latest. Incidentally, I assume you are familiar with our policy of requiring a $25 down payment in cash before we begin work."

"Mommy, our class in civics is adopting an Eskimo village. Can you give me $5, please?"

"Of course, I don't expect you to start taking out the garbage can all the time. But I tell you my back hurts tonight."

"Excuse me for being alive, your highness. What are you on your high horse about today?"

"My husband is stashing away every penny he can get his hands on to buy me a fur coat for my birthday. What do you think your husband will give you?"

"Mommy, the cat next door had kittens, and the lady said I could have two of them. Shall I try to get her to give me three?"

"You seem to think that money grows on trees. Why don't you get a basket and go pick a bushel?"

"What is the women's liberation movement all about anyway? What do they need liberating from? I hope you're not going to start spouting their kind of nonsense."

"No, we can't afford to have the house repainted this year. What if it does look rundown? I feel rundown, too, every time I have to make a mortgage payment."

"I didn't say you spent the whole day taking naps and watching television soap operas. All I said was—it's kind of funny how when I come home every night and touch the sofa, it always feels warm."

Government Grant Is Awarded But Volunteer Help Still Needed

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A trio of young Bellevillians is among the first student groups to receive approval of an Opportunities For Youth program this summer. She, for now, they hold the blueprint of their project with slightly crossed fingers.

What's needed is a helping hand from the community. And instant response hasn't been too encouraging, they say.

The project — providing a recreation service for mentally retarded children, was proposed for federal funding by Jim Burr, 18; Marie Joyce, 19, and her 16 - year - old brother, David.

It's one of the 4,334 OFY projects approved this year— and among the first 1,200 announced by the federal government this week. The aim is to create jobs with projects that also benefit the community.

After the initial thrill of success, the three Bellevilleites now find they may need up to $500 — or its equivalent in volunteer service to meet their original concept.

What happened was this:

Despite an OFY turndown in 1972 of a plan to help senior citizens and elderly shut-ins, the three evolved the project for the mentally-handicapped this year.

It was outlined and drafted during the week-long spring study break when Miss Marie were home from McMaster University.

The OFY formula standardizes pay rates at $90 a week for university students, $75 for high school students, plus 10 per cent of the wage total for expenses. This all worked out to $3,460 — including $310 for expenses.

That's where the problem is posed. Aside from administration costs, purchase of recreation material, there are rent, insurance and transportation.

Already $100 is earmarked for rent of the William R. Kirk school for the mentally retarded in the city's west end. Liability insurance — all the more expensive since it must include a clause "inner-service organization for help. So far, there have been no results, says Joyce.

However, they still have a little time margin in which to seek solutions. Officially, work begins on organizing the project next week. But the program proper doesn't begin until school ends and runs through July and most of August.

Although hinged on the school, it would also take the youngsters out into the community — involving them in track and field events, swimming, maybe movie shows.

There is a need in Belleville for such a program, says Marie, who also is a registered nursing assistant and, as a Loyalist College social service student, did some work with mentally handicapped.

There is "absolutely nothing" in organized, community programs for mentally retarded youngsters, in the summer holiday period, she says. Like anyone else, they can become bored, and frustrated.

But without the necessary transportation bringing the youngsters to a central location, the program would have to be trimmed and reshaped. Activities would be limited since the three students would have to devote time to fewer youngsters simultaneously.

The project won't fold, says Jim, because "we want to do something for these young people. We have a positive attitude and we'll do everything we can to make the program a success."

Even if the response is negative they will evolve alternatives, alone, he adds, all three believe "it's a very worthwhile program."

Seeking Solutions

Receiving Opportunities for Youth grant immediately meant solving a problem for these Belleville students. Marie Joyce, brother David, (centre) and Jim Burr are seeking ways of providing transportation for youngsters who'll be involved with their recreation project for mentally handicapped.

Quaker Oats Announces $1.5-million Expansion

TRENTON — The largest factory expansion program to hit Trenton's industrial scene in recent years was announced today by Quaker Oats Company of Canada Limited for their pet foods divis on plant here.

A $1.5-million building will provide much needed space for machinery now housed in cramped quarters. As well, the 129,000-square-foot building will provide warehouse space amounting to 1 00,000 square feet, a new bakery in 8,000 square feet of space, a 18,000 - square - foot packaging centre, new second storey offices and an ultra-modern cafeteria.

L. Robert Prentice, manager of the Trenton plant since 1967, said this morning the expansion "allows our plant to grow and allows for future expansion.

"It doubles the size of our existing facilities," he said.

In order to handle the daily flow of one million pounds of 81 different pet foods products, the company's contractor and Canadian National Railways will be bringing a spur rail line into the new building, providing room for five box cars. Also, 13 covered truck unloading docks will be built.

The Trenton plant, all still not equal in size or manpower other Quaker Oats factories across Canada, but Mr. Prentice says at present Trenton has the largest output of company products.

No new jobs will be created at this time, but the plant manager did hint at the possibility. Following Quaker Oats last expansion in 1971, 35 new workers were hired, and at least one pet food line added.

Construction of the new building that will replace present office quarters and warehouse on the south of the property, will begin immediately. Work is expected to be completed by January, 1974.

At present, the company rents space in four warehouses located at different points in Trenton.

As work on the new building proceeds, the entire Dufferin Street factory will be given a new facade.

Quaker Oats has expanded greatly since first coming here in 1932 and purchasing the old Crosse and Blackwell plant. It started with 61 workers, and now employs 230.

The plant at that time consisted of 25,000 square feet. In 1950, a 10,000 - square foot warehouse was added and in 1955 the company purchased the present office - warehouse building room to be demolished to make way for present expansion.

The next major expansion was by plant in 1960, with a $400,000 equipment expansion program, followed in 1971 by a $1.5 - million project. This brought the letal plant size to 45,000 square feet.

At that time, Quaker Oats constructed a factory on its property, leasing to Continental Can Company, that provide bins for the canned pet food lines.

Not connected to the pet food division, is Quaker's second operation in Trenton. In 1968, the company established a plant on Albert Street to manufacture Aunt Jemima frozen food products for human consumption.

What does the future hold? Mr. Prentice can't say as yet, but does admit there are 10 more acres at the rear of the Dufferin Street property ready for any possible future expansion.

Proposal Would Cut Municipalities, Council

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A proposal for amalgamation which would see the number of county municipalities reduced to 12 and six council members/help to less than half has been placed before Hastings county council.

The proposal, if carried through, would see townships in middle and north Hastings join with one or more of their neighbors and would see the disappearance of all villages as separate administrative entities.

Admittedly, the proposal is one aimed at warding off the introduction of regional government but in view of a changing attitude on the part of the Ontario government, in the words of Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen it "might be all the municipal reform we need for some years to come."

The amalgamation proposal was tabled by the Tweed Reeve as chairman of the county municipal reform committee who emphasized repeatedly that it was before council simply to spark discussion.

She anticipated the proposal would meet with objection and even admitted that she herself was not entirely happy.

"But there has to be a start somewhere," she said.

The proposed amalgamation of county municipalities is on the basis of population and assessment.

There would be no change in the boundaries of Sidney, Thurlow, Tyendinaga and Rawdon.

But Hungerford would join with Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, taking in the village of Tweed; Madoc and Huntingdon would join, take in Madoc village, Marmora and Lake townships would take in Marmora village.

Further north Wollaston, Limerick, Cashel and Tudor townships would become a single municipality; Dungannon and Mayo would be joined; Herschel and Faraday would be joined taking in Bancroft; Monteagle and Carlow would become one municipality, while the new amalgamated townships of McClure, Wicklow and Bangor would remain as at present.

The reorganization would reduce the number of county council members to 20 from the present 42. The county's courts fall now before the Ontario Legislature would reduce council membership to 12.

Reeve Allen noted that there were many other ways in which the county could be reorganized and said that even she was not happy with the proposal placed before council.

Also suggested by one of the committee members was the possibility of Belleville and Trenton joining in with the county.

The proposal placed before council Tuesday will now go back to the individual municipalities for discussion and a decision at the September meeting.

Warden Horace Casey noted that it was the wish of the provincial government to reduce the number of municipalities and also council membership.

He suggested there were three lines of action which might be taken: 1. allow the introduction of regional government which he ridiculous for Hastings. 2. amalgamate voluntarily, and 3. do nothing in the hope of the county remaining as it is.

Monteagle Reeve S. J. Carr, member of the municipal reform committee, admitted to much of the "blame" for the map showing the proposed amalgamation.

He was pleased with the reception the proposal had received even if there had been a bit of fault-finding.

With the proposal now to go back to the individual municipalities for discussion, he was certain council would get enough feedback to come up with something by the end of the year.

Meeting Requested

Smaller Municipalities Protest School Levies

The Hastings County Board of Education will be asked to have representatives appear at least once a year before county council to answer questions from the council body.

This was the decision Tuesday after council concurred in a resolution from the township of McClure, Wicklow and Bangor asking the provincial government to change its grant formula so that rural municipalities receive a more equitable break in school levies.

The resolution said the present grant system resulted in high mill rates for rural municipalities.

In support of his council's resolution, Reeve Felix Brown said the smaller municipalities had been "hit hard" as a result of the grant formula.

To illustrate, he said his municipality's education tax last year was $62,000 while this year it had jumped to $80,000.

And the same story was told by other reeves, who cited 1973 levies of from $6,00° to $12,000 over those of last year.

One northern reeve asked whether anyone had any control over "excess" hiring on the part of school boards.

He said that the county board recently had hired an assistant for the head of the transportation department.

"There are too many chiefs and not enough indians," said the reeve, suggesting that one man should be able to look after the approximately 230 buses operated in the county system.

Warden Horace Casey, however, said county council had no control over school board expenditures.

"They are an elected body — they make the rules and we pay," he said, adding that Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen agreed that board administration costs were too heavy.

"We hear of teachers being fired (to cut education cost) but we never hear of cuts in administrative personnel," he said.

Reeve Allen said that what had happened to school board levies were a further indication of the paradox between theory and practice.

"We were told that county school boards would help the smaller municipalities but just exactly the opposite has happened — something has to be done."

Council concurred in the Bangor resolution and also a following motion from Reeve Allen that county council have the director of education and the school board chairman come to council once a year — preferably before budget time — to answer questions.

She particularly wanted board representation from both the administrative and membership sides "so they can't pass the buck."

Peanuts Pay Off

Peanut and peanut butter sales earned nearly $1,000 for the Belleville Kiwanis Club in their annual Peanut Day Drive, May 3.

The money raised will be used towards park development projects in Belleville.

CNIB Meets Tomorrow

The Hastings and Prince Edward Advisory Board of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind will hold its annual dinner Thursday. The meeting begins at 6.45 p.m. in St. Andrew's Church.

PUC Says 15 Per Cent

TRENTON — The Public Utilities Commission, in a statement Tuesday, said it anticipates a 15 per cent increase in water rates to town ratepayers in 1974.

The statement was in direct opposition to a town report of an anticipated 20 per cent hike.

Official Opening Thursday Night

Official opening of William R. Kirk School for the mentally retarded will take place Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The new, 12-room school, located on the corner of Bridge St. West and Palmer Rd., adjacent of Centennial Secondary School, was occupied last November. It replaces the original school on Bridge St.

William R. Kirk, after whom the school was named, will be present for the opening and transfer of ownership. He was executive director of the Ontario Association for the Mentally Retarded from 1950 to 1967 and is now director of training at the Midwestern Regional Children's Centre in Palmerston.

Guided tours and an open house with refreshments will be offered to the public Thursday night. Eighty-five pupils are now accommodated in the school. It is one of three schools for the mentally retarded operated by the Hastings county board of education, the others are in Limerick and in Actinolite.

Amnesty? No, Not for Nixon

VANCOUVER (CP) — Marshall Van Deusen, a 24-year-old American draft-dodger who now calls Canada home, sees the amnesty debate raging across his homeland in terms of the world forgiving President Nixon rather than Mr. Nixon forgiving the Vietnam war resisters who fled.

"Amnesty? Impossible! Absolutely not! We will never give Nixon amnesty until he gets off his high horse, rolls up his sleeves and replants a cratered ricepaddy or rebuilds a bombed-out hospital."

The youthful, soft-spoken library clerk crossed into Canada four years ago rather than serve in his homeland's armed forces and is one of six similarly situated young Americans employed at the University of British Columbia library.

To a man, they refused to discuss details of their lives before they came to Canada, where they were from, or the exact circumstances under which they fled the draft. But they did talk, volubly and bitterly, about peace in Vietnam, the post-war United States and reported North Vietnamese atrocities against the recently-released American prisoners of war.

"I and others like me have committed no crime. If you really want criminals, look to Nixon, the American bureaucracy, the middle-class workers," said Van Deusen.

They are skeptical, suspicious of the United States government in particular, American society in general. And they insist they will stay in Canada even if the Nixon administration eventually decides to grant unconditional amnesty to draft evaders and deserters, as the United States traditionally has at the end of other wars.

Mr. Van Deusen spends part of his time counselling other young Americans in Canada under similar circumstances through an organization called the Committee to Aid War Objectors, formed by the Unitarian Church and a group of Quakers. The committee estimates there are about 5,000 draft dodgers and deserters in the Vancouver area alone.

Predictably, he simply doesn't believe the stories of North Vietnamese atrocities against the American PoWs returned from Hanoi.

"Most of the so-called atrocities are no more than politicking and propaganda, purposely fanned and encouraged by the Nixon administration," Mr. Van Deusen said.

He is convinced that President Nixon is trying to fan the flames of hatred for the North Vietnamese to smooth the way for a massive return of American forces to Vietnam.

Another of the six, Bob Koontz, said he came to Canada several years ago simply to escape what he views as the oppressive aspects of American society. He left the U.S. prior to being drafted and has, on occasion, returned south to see his family.

Mr. Koontz, 26, said he doesn't believe the war is over—"It has merely changed fronts." Now married with a family, he said he'll never return permanently to the U.S. He is pessimistic about the prospects for peace.

And he talks bitterly about his experiences with Canadian police, believing that the RCMP has on occasion conspired with the FBI to remove young draft resisters from Canada "in the dead of night" with no legal basis.

Bennie Sullivan is the attractive 24-year-old wife of a draft evader who crossed the border for keeps seven years ago. "The FBI wants my husband. He's afraid he'll be picked up if he tries to cross the border, so we take no chances."

Charles Tully described his American heritage as "an accident of birth." And he said he dislikes being identified as an American, adding that he is "deliriously happy" in Canada.

He said he does not put much credence in the torture stories recounted by the returned prisoners, suggesting they are grossly exaggerated or fabricated for propaganda purposes.

"Despite the civil rights legislation, being black in America is still just too heavy," he said. "I doubt if I will ever go back.

"I came to Canada with my family and I'm really in like two different worlds. We are happy here. America has nothing to offer us except discrimination, poor jobs and unhappiness."

Nineteen-year-old David Wanger, who crossed the border 18 months ago, said simply: "I am a draftdodger. As such I may not return to the U.S., nor do I have the slightest desire to do so."

All six men have acquired landed immigrant status and hope eventually to become citizens—consequently draft dodgers there. Canada does not recognize American draft laws, and deserters cannot be deported or extradited.

Hot-Head

BEXLEY HEATH, England (CP) — Eric Stadler spent months growing his hair to cover thin patches on top. But at a party a friend set fire to his locks. Infuriated, Stadler went outside and burned his friend's new sports car. "I don't know what came over me," he told Kent magistrates. He was remanded for reports.

College Foundering

Pestalozzi College, once hailed as the successor to Britain's famous Rugby, Toronto's Rochdale, is now on the verge of a brief foreclosure action brought by its major creditor, the federal Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. The college, named after an 18th century Swiss educationist, was modelled on the principle of making students responsible for their own education. (CP Photo)

You Are One to Blame For High Cost of Beef

OTTAWA (CP) — Next time you're looking for someone to blame for the high cost of beef, try yourself.

That's one of the messages in a recent 178-page study of the meat industry done for the Agricultural Economics Research Council.

The study, by Prof. V. W. Yergason of Toronto's York University, says the most important factors affecting beef prices are consumer demand and increased consumer affluence.

It also criticizes the government for what it calls inadequate efforts to reduce meat-price increases and says government tariff policy may make prices higher.

Businesses get off lightly. The study says chain-store profits have been excessive, but not mainly because of the mark-up which produces lower profits than other departments.

For the future, the study predicts increasing upward pressure on meat prices.

But it also says the prices paid to the producer will hold steady as he increases his efficiency.

The study examines the roles of consumer, retailer, wholesaler-processor and producer. It says of the consumer:

"The consumer is the dominating force in the market. By making his tastes and preferences known, and buttressing them with his income, he establishes a relation between the price of meat and the quantity he will purchase."

The study notes a sharp increase in beef consumption per capita—75 pounds a year in 1929-34, 87.4 pounds in 1971, and probably more than 112 pounds by 1980.

Consumption of all red meat rose from 116.9 pounds each in 1929-34 to 161 pounds in 1971. Pork and lamb had uneven consumption patterns, but demand for them was expected to increase at a more moderate rate.

The study uses 1969 figures to show that the more income a family has, the more meat it consumes each week: $5.70 a person for families with annual incomes of $3,000 to $4,000 and $9.65 a person for families in the $9,000 to $10,000 range.

Beachbum Millionaires Open Third Tahiti Hote

MOOREA, French Polynesia (AP) — Kelley, Muk and Jay, the millionaire beachbums from California, have just opened their third Bali Hai, and they're already planning two more.

It's almost like working, the beachbums say.

"I love it," says Don McCallum.

"Every person who gets off that boat is worth at least $10, even day trippers. It's like Christmas every day."

Actually, said Hugh Kelley later, "we're not in this for money—we had to stay in Tahiti some way. . . . Yeah, you can say we're worth more than a million now."

Kelley, McCallum and Jay Carlisle used to listen to Tahitian mandolins together in Newport Beach and work over the great American dream of a South Seas paradise.

One slow season, Kelley left his law practice long enough to sail down. He came back and lasted half a day in the Toffice. Not long afterward, in 1960, all three were in Tahiti looking for work.

"First we were going to plant vanilla," says Jay. "We had to write to find out if it was a bug or a potato. . . . We didn't last long at that."

They scraped up money in 1962 to buy a collapsing little hotel on Moorea, maybe the most beautiful island in the world, and the rest is legend wherever travel snobs meet. The Moorea Bali Hai, and the new ones on the other Tahiti outer islands of Huahine and Raiatea are jammed.

People know the trio in Rio, Mexico City and Bangkok where they show up for vacations with entourages of a dozen Tahitian lovelies, guitar players and drink pourers.

Muk has been known to order 75 drinks before lunch for himself and everyone else within shouting distance.

Sometimes the group loads grass skirts, bangles and money on a jet and goes back to California to watch old friends eat their hearts out.

"When we blow it," all admit happily, "we blow it."

But, in their remote tropical paradise, the three—all around 40 now—hustle harder than ever before.

Muk shambles bare-chested and barefoot through the dining room smiling at Ohio tourists, but he's up at dawn watering the lawn and it's after 8 p.m. before he gets home.

Kelley sneaks off to ride his motorcycle up Moorea's mindboggling mountains but more frequently he is conjuring up glass-bottom bungalows and hauling cement.

Jay spends hours in a cluttered back room counting deliveries from their egg ranch, a side project, and worrying about exchange rates.

"When we started we didn't know anything about running a hotel," Kelley said. "We just decided to make it like a place we would like to stay in."

The Moorea hotel, the biggest at 47 rooms, is still run like a giant bachelor pad with guest facilities.

One woman scream ed something at Kelley during dinner once and he rose to his feet and announced loudly, "Here she is, ladies and gentlemen, Miss Badmouth. . . ." When she got over it, he dumped the contents of an ice bucket on her head.

The three pour what they call the world's stiffest drink at far from its cheapest rate. And they sit and listen to guests, here or not.

"If you can make a guy feel like he is someone apart from the ordinary clown," Kelley says, "it doesn't make any difference what else goes wrong, and he doesn't notice the price."

A lot of extras are included, free, such as snorkelling gear in each bungalow and bicycles over the reefs.

Apparently the formula works. Three guys who were bums 10 years ago are doing all right.

Four-day Week Urged For School

BRADFORD, Ont. (CP) — The vice-principal of a high school in this community of 16 miles north of Metropolitan Toronto isn't going to give up his night to put students and teachers on a four-day week.

"We don't intend to give up," William Aikman of Bradford District high school said. "We'll keep working on it for next year."

Mr. Aikman's plan hit a snag because regulations of the ministry of education require all schools under one school board to operate within the same type of schedule.

Angus Mackay, acting director of the Simcoe County board, wants all schools under the board's jurisdiction, including the proposed one, not to adopt the four-day week. The board has rejected the proposal.

Mr. Aikman's original proposal was to alternate between Monday-to-Thursday and Tuesday-to-Friday weeks so that every second weekend would be a four-day one.

But after talks with parents and students, he said the plan was changed to a straight Monday-to-Thursday week.

Nashville Sound Wins Tanzanians

TORONTO (CP) — Nashville country music is popular in Tanzania, a country without its own recording stars, says Zubert Mkali.

He is one of 13 students from the East African country taking a special crash course in radio broadcasting at Humber College of Applied Arts and Technology.

In May the 12 young men and one woman are to return to their country to join the programming staff of Radio Tanzania, which produces three short-wave services in Swahili and English.

There is no television yet so radio is the sole national communication medium. Former CBC news broadcaster Larry Henderson last fall recommended that Humber teach broadcasting skills to the Tanzanian youths.

The students, financed by their country's government and the Canadian International Development Agency, will help Radio Tanzania evolve away from its mainly music pattern. Two of the wavelengths—one is commercial—receive talk programs from the United Nations and the BBC but the rest of the broadcast is filled with music.

Only the external service, on the third wavelength and aimed at "freedom fighters" in other African countries still under colonial rule, is mostly filled with talk.

Radio Tanzania operates from a headquarters in the capital of Dar es Salaam and has a staff of 300, only 70 of whom work on the air on la program preparation.

The country's only media stars are newscaster David Wakati and sportscaster Sam Nkamba—soccer is big in Tanzania—but stardom is reserved largely for the singers from other countries.

Charley Pride, Skeeter Davis and Jim Reeves are big names. So are the Beatles, Louis Armstrong, The Rolling Stones, Frank Sinatra and Elvis Presley.

When Zdda Williams, the lone woman in the group, goes back to Tanzania she'll have to leave her mini-skirts and slacks behind. They are taboo in her country as Tanzania stresses traditional dress in an effort to keep its culture from being lost in a wave of Western styles.

Environmentalists Winning Battle with Developers

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver biologist believes environmentalists are winning the battle in British Columbia against developers and promoters.

Howard Paish says he thinks environmentalists should realize they are winners, not losers. He and his colleagues at Howard Paish and Associates Ltd.—Helmuth Urbahan and Ron Peterson—say that when the environmentalist realize they are not fighting a losing battle they can move on to tackle the vital decisions that lie ahead.

They believe compromises should be made in the future to ensure that British Columbia provides both a pleasant environment and three meals a day for its citizens.

"I am as annoyed at the guy who insists on the wilderness cop-out route, telling society that that's the only decision, as I am at the bonanza-developer who argues his way is the only way," said Mr. Paish.

He emphasized that ecology really involves man and all his activities, the life style of the whole nation, and that is where personal sacrifice comes in.

"This personal sacrifice thing is the argument over the value of a river or a beautiful waterway as opposed to the number of jobs that could be generated by an industry in the area," he said.

Mr. Urbahan said the province is divided on environmental issues because most people in the north are pro-development whereas people in the south are not.

"In the south we've reached a level of technology where we can sit back and make comfortable decisions—do we want more growth or do we want to keep things the way they are," he said.

But the division between developer and environmentalist, city and rural dwellers, is not as wide as it once was.

Mr. Paish said a lot of people considered "nuts" a few years ago now are sitting down and talking to people whom they once considered to be mental dinosaurs.

"The men who were juniors in the forest industry 15 or 12 years ago have moved upwards and they are making sure there's an environmental input close to the decision-making process at least.

"But the interesting thing is that the environmentalists who are making responsible decisions and the people in industry and politics who are moving toward them are all being called Uncle Toms by the extremists in the various groups."

Tax-fighting Shoppers Refuse to Pay Levy

TORONTO (CP) — With opposition members of the legislature claiming the province can't collect a two-per-cent increase in 8a sales tax until the increase has been made legal, some Toronto shoppers are making life miserable for retailers.

The government announced last month when it brought down its budget that as of May 1 it was increasing the sales tax to seven per cent from five.

But Toronto shoppers with a yen to beat the government out of a few pennies or a few bucks—at least temporarily—can find stores that are persuaded that the extra two per cent tax is illegal.

The book department at the Robert Simpson Co. Ltd. is taking names and addresses of shoppers who demand to pay only the five per cent tax.

W. S. Fathlan, store superintendent, said although the store has been instructed to collect the full seven per cent, it will collect only five per cent if a customer refuses to pay the full amount. The customer's name and address will be turned over, if requested, to government auditors.

"We are in the middle," he said.

A clerk at Eaton's refused to accept a five-per-cent tax on a $24.98 item.

She said the company would take the full seven per cent and refund the difference if the tax bill was defeated.

Bill Theodore, a distant transfer of Tip Top Warehouse, was willing to sell a $4.98 shirt to a tax objector.

"It wouldn't be worth the government's effort trying to collect 10 cents more on a $5 shirt. On the other hand, if they have 3,000 people owing 10 cents, it's worth it to them, they (the government) may go after them."

Attorney-General Seeks More Court Sittings

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Dalton Bales said Tuesday he is trying to arrange for more court sittings, particularly afternoon ones.

He was replying to a question by Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Downsview) about a backlog of cases in the province's courts.

Mr. Bales said during legislature committee consideration of his department's budget estimates that delays of four to six weeks were common in getting a case heard in day court.

Delays were even longer in night courts hearing such cases as traffic offences.

Mr. Singer asked isn't such a delay "a little ludicrous" in a case where a person may be charged, for example, with making an improper left turn?

The attorney-general provided figures that showed that as of March there was a backlog of 15,000 Criminal Code cases in York County courts.

These included narcotics cases which had increased substantially.

More Jailed

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's prison population has increased 13.3 per cent in the last year, P.M. Pigeon, penitentiary service commissioner, said Tuesday.

There were 8,886 persons in prison on April 30, an increase of 950 prisoners in seven months.

A Few "Specials" Cannot Match The Total Savings You Get With MIRACLE DISCOUNT PRICES

miracle Food Mart

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN

Consumer Advisor for Miracle Food Mart

MORE RELIEF FOR MEAT LOVERS

Following its recent price reduction in pork, ground beef and certain beef hindquarter cuts, Miracle Food Mart this week has more good news about meat.

You'll find a 2 cent per pound reduction in beef short rib roasts, round bone shoulder roasts, blade roasts, Boston (Cross cut rib) roasts and prime ribs. Prime rib steaks also share a 2 cent a pound price reduction. Plate brisket is down 4 cents a pound and rolled brisket plate 6 cents a pound.

On the pork front, shoulder roasts, butt roasts and centre cut chops are down 2 cents a pound-and hocks 3 cents a pound.

Now's a good time to enjoy the easing of these prices. And perhaps you will want to freeze rib steaks, as well as loin pork chops, for the coming barbecue season. Remember that demand for all barbecue cuts increases with warmer weather and because of the increased drain on available supplies of cuts for barbecuing, their wholesale prices tends to increase during the summer.

Los Angeles Buildings Believed Quake-proof

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — If a major earthquake hit the centre of Los Angeles today, would the city's skyscrapers come tumbling down?

The consensus among seismologists and building design experts is that if a quake as strong as the 1906 San Francisco earthquake hit here; the tall buildings would ride it out, swaying like palms in a blustery wind.

But Martin Duke, professor of engineering at the University of California here, while generally agreeing with that opinion, says he still maintains reservations.

"I think all of us are a little uneasy because no such building has been through a very large quake," he said.

One of the reasons why Duke is uneasy is that when the Los Angeles earthquake struck in February, 1971—much weaker than the San Francisco quake—a new $23 million six-floor hospital, built to Earthquake Code specifications, came crashing down in ruins.

The remnants of Olive View Hospital now are being put up for sale, including 200 electric clocks which stopped at the exact moment of the quake—a few seconds after 6 a.m.

Duke says that collapse would certainly have been avoided if more cross ties had been used to bind together the steel rods that reinforced the concrete pillars.

The Los Angeles Earthquake Code has been unofficially amended since that disaster to ensure that lessons learned from the 1971 quake, in which 64 died, are incorporated into building standards, city officials say.

Until 1927, buildings in earthquake-conscious Los Angeles were not permitted to exceed 13 floors.

But in that year the height limitation was dropped and the city started to go the way of all other North American cities—up.

Los Angeles is 33 miles west of the San Andreas Fault, which stretches the entire length of California and is the longest charted earthquake fault in the world.

Duke believes that if a San Francisco-sized quake hit Los Angeles the tall buildings would suffer some damage but remain standing while 40,000 old buildings not built to the Earthquake Code would be left in rubble.

He estimates the death toll from such a quake hitting in business hours at around 10,000. Deaths would come from collapsing buildings and falling glass.

The San Francisco quake measured 8.3 on the Richter scale compared with 6.4 for Los Angeles in 1971.

At a recent state hearing on earthquake safety here questions were raised whether the main danger in skyscrapers might not come from fires with thousands of people trapped inside by blocked elevators and stairwells.

But David Leeds, a seismological expert with the engineering consulting firm of Dames and Moore, said fire is not the hazard it was in the days of kerosene lamps and wood stoves at the beginning of the century.

"We are pretty lucky in that the gas system is usually destroyed so we don't get gas fires, and power is immediately cut off."

Leeds says it is important that inner stairwells have emergency power for lighting and they should not be built with masonry that can split and fall.

Grain on Prairies

Almost 70,000 bushels of wheat, flax and rye spilled from 33 cars of a 105-car Canadian National Railways freight train four miles south of Three Hills, Alta., early Friday. No one was injured in the wreck which blocked the main Calgary - Edmonton line. An investigator stands astride deep in the spilled grain. No cause was established immediately for the mishap in which about 400 yards of track were torn up. (CP Photo)

Receives Big Cheque

TORONTO (CP) — Ottawa payments on cost-sharing programs to Ontario sometimes wind up in unusual places. Ontario Treasurer John White, in a discussion with the legislature's public accounts committee, said he received a letter in his personal mail containing a cheque for $25 million which "was addressed to me personally from John Turner, federal finance minister."

One Can Live in French In Present-day Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A French - speaking reporter during an eight - month stay here found out to his amazement one could live almost exclusively in French in the city he had once considered an Anglo-Saxon fortress.

Francois Aubin, a reporter with the Montreal weekly La Patrie, recently ended studies here under a Southam Fellowship at the University of Toronto.

He said in an interview he was delighted with his stay in this city where he found an important group of French-Canadians who felt quite at ease.

The Aubins lived in suburban Don Mills, where many French-speaking families reside because of the proximity of Ste. Madeleine elementary school and the secondary school Etienne Brule, which provides education in French to the end of Grade 13.

St. Louis de France, a French-language church, is also nearby.

"My wife, who had fewer occasions than I did to come into the city, was astonished to see that she could live almost exclusively in French here. We met many former Quebec families and French-speaking Ontarians in parents' reunion or other community events."

Mr. Aubin said his main preoccupation upon coming to Toronto was his six-year-old son's first year in school. But, to his pleasure, he found that a child was able to start his studies in French here and be at the same level as Quebec on returning to that province.

"My son had not yet started school," he said, "and I thought that living in Toronto would mean he would have to follow courses in an English-language school.

"This did not necessarily displease me but, on the other hand, since we were to return to Montreal before the end of the school year, I was delighted to see that he could do his first year entirely in French at Ecole Ste. Madeleine, which falls under the jurisdiction of the North York school board.

"And what is good is that almost synchronized with those in Montreal schools which means the boy, upon his return, will be at exactly the same level as Montreal children."

Mr. Aubin said his main inquiries at Toronto French School, a private school serving well-off Toronto residents, both English and French-speaking, who are ready to pay $1,000 a year to educate their children in French.

The majority of the teachers hired there are French-speaking Europeans or at least francophones who speak what is commonly referredto as "Parisian French."

However, at Ste. Madeleine where the teachers are almost all French language Quebecers or Ontarians, the education as well as the textbooks and other school supplies are free.

Mr. Aubin said he was delighted with the many French cultural activities he found here such as theatre, painting exhibits and social reunions.

"We also followed English courses offered by the education department, where we met many immigrants of various nationalities.

"The atmosphere was most congenial."

Dog Tired

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Alderman Thomas Clifford thinks there should be a law to do something about a neighbor's houseful of dogs "who bark all night and cause terrible smells. There is no law to control this sort of situation," he said.

Just Careless

SAANICH, B.C. (CP) — Police said thieves who stole a safe from a carpet company's office failed to get it open because they overlooked the combination which was written on a piece of paper attached to the safe.

Heavy Canoe

TORONTO (CP) — A concrete canoe built by University of Toronto students was launched recently—and it floated. John Tizzard, a professor in the civil engineering department, said the 130-pound canoe is made from concrete coated layers of steel-mesh cloth.

SILENT CITIES, SACRED STONES — Jerry M. Lauday.

In the sand and soil of modern Israel, the most exciting archaeological adventure of our time are taking place. Great empires rose and fell there, but their stories came down to us mainly in legend. Now with modern tools, archaeology uncovers the reality of Ashdod, the great waterworks of Ahab, the destructive trail of Joshua's army and a hundred additional treasures.

RHODESIA: LITTLE WHITE ISLAND — John Parker.

John Parker has told his story as it happened to him — the story of an English newspaperman who arrived with his family in Rhodesia in 1955 and was ejected 11 years later for his championship of African majority rule. He conveys the white middle-class way of life and shows the lengths to which those in power will go to maintain their position. The author is angry about Rhodesia but his anger has not prevented him from writing a clear and straightforward guide to the situation there.

THE PETRIFIED MARINER — Denys Val Baker.

Some years ago Mr. Val Baker acquired an old motor fishing vessel and set out on a series of increasingly ambitious cruise — to France, Sweden, the Mediterranean. With various members of his family as crew, he discovered that the sea is a fickle mistress. Adventures were many. Though told as personal anecdotes, these stories have a serious purpose. At the outset he says, this is a book by an amateur for other amateurs venturing out to sea on their own — and lesson number one is that a little experience is worth a mountain of sailing manuals.

THE PATIENTS — Jurgen Thorwald.

People who a few decades ago were sentenced to certain death, now live thanks to artificial kidneys, heart transplants and other medical wonders. Jurgen Thorwald has focused on the patients who were "firsts", the first "blue baby" operation, the first kidney transplant and of course the heart transplant which brought fame to Dr. Barnard. In all these developments there were fearful risks for patient and doctor. The book is based on interviews with survivors, recollections of their families, talks with doctors and nurses. Mr. Thorwald studied medicine and is noted for his meticulous research and dramatic presentation.

Figures Released

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics Canada recently released figures on the number and wages of federal workers for the year from September, 1971 to September, 1972. The number of civil servants increased in that year by six per cent—to 227,291. But in the same period their pay increased from $164.8 million to $184.9 million, an increase of 10.4 per cent.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

Not so long ago campers were thought to be rugged males who trekked into the woods to live on sourdough pancakes, pemmican and tea. With the modernization of campers, women's participation has risen in direct proportion to the development of sophisticated camping units, improved installation facilities and the increasing number of featured campground activities. Today camping is not only a family affair but a very social one. Look in at almost any campground and you'll find parents and children alike making new friends, swapping tales of their experiences, and exchanging names and addresses with fellow campers in order to "keep in touch."

One out of every 10 Canadians will camp this year. Statistics show that most families make one or two major camping expeditions plus several weekend junkets a year. While the number of campers has been increasing, the modes of camping have been shifting.

Tents, once the most common mode of camping, today face stiff competition as tent trailers, travel trailers and pickup campers portend the direction which camping is taking. While public camp sites are often undeveloped, private campgrounds offer a wide range of services and activities. Despite the shiny, new campground restrooms, the trend toward the self-contained camper unit is likely to continue, because of the change in the nature of today's camper.

Campers should not make an initial investment in a tent or trailer, travel trailer or any other variety of camper unit before having tent camped at one point or another. Since the time of our nomadic ancestors, the tent has been a basic form of shelter. In recent years tents have been constructed with greater concern for detail and engineering. There are now a number of styles and sizes available including umbrella, wall, cottage, pup, and car top tents. The appropriate choice will vary with each tenting family.

A travel trailer (sizes range upwards from 12 feet will entail a considerably larger financial outlay than a simple tent and it will not be moved into rough areas as easily. However, once situated, it permits the family to prepare a hot meal quickly and to bed down under a roof instead of under canvas. Breaking camp in rain is less trying, as gear and clothing are dry. And at the end of a day's drive when an established campground is still many miles away, it can be home for a night at a commercial trailer park, a farm, or (in some U.S. states) a roadside rest area. Figure the cost of licences, higher tolls, and somewhat increased gasoline consumption into the cost of owning a travel trailer.

Trailer owners should check their insurance. Usually, many automobile insurance policies cover liability and property damage to a trailer attached to a car, fire, theft and collision insurance is generally purchased separately.

Some families select a pick-up-camper because it simplifies parking at the campsite and is not subject to the regulations on speed that some states make applicable to towed trailers. On the bed or chassis of a pick-up truck, it goes conveniently into remote regions. Styles range from basic to deluxe.

Many businessmen and auto manufacturers have responded to the camping growth and popularity of the motor home. Not only living space but transportation is provided by the self - propelled vehicle. Self - contained toilet facilities air conditioning and swivel parking site are items commonly featured. Because of its high price, a motor home is often purchased by members of a large family addicted to the outdoors but who, nevertheless, still prefer the "comforts of civilization." Like travel trailers, most motor homes require a level parking site.

Campers headed to western U.S. will find that the national forests, while offering more space, privacy and natural elegance, provide fewer hot showers, automatic laundries and utility hook-ups. Here are some suggestions.

1. If reservations can be made (check listings from a tourist bureau brochure) write ahead, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for confirmation.

2. In laying out your itinerary, particularly where reservations are not possible, locate alternative campgrounds so that a "Campground Filled" sign at your first choice won't be too disappointing.

3. Try to arrive at a campground early in the afternoon. Campgrounds are usually less crowded Sunday through Thursday.

4. If possible, plan to camp before the last week in June or after Labor Day. There will be many more choice sites available.

5. If you plan to camp on a holiday weekend, reserve well in advance. Most campgrounds will require the full fee as non-refundable deposit.

Foreign visitors to the U.S., including Canadians, will be admitted free of charge to all National Park Service areas upon presentation of a valid passport. No identification other than a passport will be accepted as proof of citizenship. Driver's licenses, birth certificates, license tags, etc., are not acceptable. This regulation applies only to admission to the NPS areas; it does not cover any user fees incurred while in a U.S. National Park.

With constantly increasing numbers of Canadians using the recreation facilities in this country and the U.S., the co-operation of each individual is necessary if the delights of camping are to be preserved. The Ontario American Family Campers Association, Inc., advocates the adoption by all campers of the "Tic's" Code of Camping Courtesy, Cleanliness, Co-operation, Conservation, Common-Sense — for more enjoyable camping for everyone.

Finally may we suggest that you use one or more weekend shakedown trips prior to an extended camping expedition. These will provide valuable know-how and lessen the possibility of omitting necessary supplies or starting off overloaded. Having located prospective campgrounds on your itinerary with the aid of a camping directory and maps, you can anticipate a successful camping tour. Chances are that you'll be planning your next trip before you're home from the first one.

Pentagon Papers Defence Threatens Appeal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Defence lawyers in the Pentagon papers trial have served notice on the judge that they will appeal to a higher court immediately if he rejects their demand to throw out the case because of Watergate and White House involvements.

The defence acceded to the wishes of Judge Matt Byrne of U.S. district court to clear the trial record of all pending motions, and agreed to be ready by Thursday to argue the most important remaining trial motion—that for judgment of acquittal.

Byrne told defence lawyers Tuesday that after hearing arguments on their motions he will announce Thursday his decision on whether to dismiss the charges against Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo because of White House entanglements in the case. The two are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft.

No court session was scheduled for today, although the judge promised to summon lawyers if there are any new revelations in his investigation of the Watergate and White House links to a burglary of the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Byrne sent jurors home until next Monday without a hint of the week's explosive developments and indicated he will press his investigation further. But he expressed doubt that there is legal precedent to stop the case from going to the jury.

His demand for arguments immediately on the acquittal motion suggested that he might be thinking of ending the case on another basis—specifically that the government had not proved the defendants' guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

Judges may acquit defendants on their own motion if the evidence is legally insufficient for a guilty verdict.

The judge has not yet decided whether to hold a full-scale hearing to establish whether there was "misconduct" by the government investigation of the case.

Byrne has said he wants to get to the bottom of the burglary by Watergate conspirators E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy of the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist in 1971. He says such activities could have "tainted" evidence in the case.

The defence wants a hearing, outside the jury's presence, with testimony by numerous Watergate principals including Hunt and Liddy.

Ellsberg's lawyers said they will try to show that President Nixon personally is "liable for subpoena" at such a hearing. Defence lawyer Charles Nesson said: "We are actively considering calling President Nixon to testify if a hearing is ordered."

. . . He is among the potential witnesses because he injected himself into this case" by ordering a special White House investigation, said Leonard Boudin, Ellsberg's chief lawyer. The lawyer also cited reports alleging that Nixon had ordered efforts to notify the judge last month about the burglary.

There were also these disclosures at Tuesday's trial session.

—The defence said it will show that Ellsberg's psychiatrist had documents dealing with Ellsberg and the Pentagon papers in his office when the truders broke in. They say the records were either seen or photographed by prosecution.

—The judge revealed several Central Intelligence Agency reports corroborating Hunt's testimony before the Watergate grand jury. The reports said the CIA, on orders of its then deputy director and now commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps, Gen. Robert E. Cushman, gave Hunt a wig, false identification and a speech alteration device, among other equipment.

—The judge revealed that one of the four CIA reports, dated July 26, 1972, has a notation on it that it was turned over to then acting FBI director Patrick Gray on that date. Byrne noted it contained a strange reference connected with the CIA's destruction of films Hunt shot on a trip to case the psychiatrist's office.

The report says: "We developed one roll of film for Mr. Hunt of which we have copies a b w l n g some identifiable place, possibly RAND Corp. Ellsberg once worked at RAND.

The judge demanded to know why on July 28, 1972, there might have been suspicions this was the RAND Corp. if, as the government has said, the CIA and FBI were unaware the film was related to Ellsberg. If the agencies were aware, the judge said, they should have told him then. The judge was not notified until April 27, 1973.

Record Price for Cattle

GLANWORTH, Ont. (CP) — Domestic and export buyers paid $210,400 in a sale Monday for 127 purebred Holstein breeding cattle and set sales records at the Simcoe Sales Arena.

A Canadian herd dispersal record was set for the Lingwood Holstein herd of Kenneth Porteous of Simcoe, Ont. His 56 cattle sold for $211,300 and averaged $3,773. It included a $50,000 purchase for one cow by E. Gordon Atkinson of Barrie, Ont.

The previous herd dispersal record was established by the Romandale Farms of Unionville in 1970 when it was set at $3,757.

Six bulls averaged $13,075 in the sale while 31 milking females sold for an average $3,064. Five bred heifers averaged $1,980, five open yearlings $3,820 and nine heifer calves $1,804.

In another sale, an Italian syndicate bought a five-month old dairy female from Oak Ridges Farm in Oak Ridges, Ont. for $70,000, setting a Canadian record for a dairy calf and a world record for a heifer calf.

Eavesdropping Control Law Is Given Its Second Reading

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave unanimous second reading to a bill forbidding electronic eavesdropping Tuesday, then sent it to the House justice committee for detailed study.

What happens there to the proposed legislation will be up to the Conservatives and New Democrats, both of whom have said they are unhappy with parts of it.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin has suggested the opposition parties pull together and force the minority Liberal government to make changes. Stanley Knowles, the NDP House leader, said Tuesday night there is a "good chance that the combined strength of the NDP and the Conservatives in committee will force the government to amend sections that give too much power to the police."

"My guess is that when the government sees the way things are going, it will make the changes itself," he said in an interview.

Excluded from the bugging and wiretapping ban are police working on special cases. They would have to obtain a judge's order after submitting an application signed by the solicitor-general, a provincial attorney-general or someone delegated by them.

A fine of $500 for individuals using, possessing or selling electronic eavesdropping equipment is provided by the bill.

Opposition spokesmen have said parts of the proposed legislation could be used to develop a police state. They say a section citing espionage and sabotage and "any other subversive activity" as justification for police wiretaps leaves it up to the solicitor-general to determine what is subversive activity.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) asked Justice Minister Otto Lang Tuesday to withdraw a clause permitting police bugging for 36 hours before getting a court order.

"What an opportunity for a snooper to snoop!" the former prime minister told the Commons. "If he gets what he wants, good; if he doesn't, well, nobody has to know about it."

Mr. Lang said law or not, organized crime will continue to use electronic eavesdropping. Police needed access to the same devices if they were to match th efforts of criminals.

He said he is willing to discuss improvements to the bill in committee.

Royal Commission May Be Needed to Study Prisons

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Hairen Allmand said Tuesday it may be necessary to have a royal commission inquiry into problems in the prison system.

"I do not want to turn down this possibility," he told John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) in the Commons. "It may be necessary."

He agreed with Mr. Diefenbaker that there are staff morale problems in the penitentiaries.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked a royal commission inquiry is needed to stifle falling morale among prison officers. It should be composed of officials from the solicitor-general's department and provincial attorneys-general and make a report within 60 days.

Mr. Allmand, who has said several times recently that overpopulation is one factor in low morale and a rash of escapes, said a decision on an inquiry will not be made immediately.

Lewis Uses Official Table Showing Poor Hardest Hit

TORONTO (C) — The Ontario government cleared a major hurdle in its sales tax legislation Tuesday night but not before the Opposition used the government's own figures to demonstrate what it called the regressiveness of the bill.

The legislature in committee approved a key clause in the bill that increases the tax to seven from five per cent by a vote of 51 to 33 with the New Democratic Party joining the Liberals in opposition.

But prior to the vote NDP Leader Stephen Lewis used a finance department table to show that wage-earners in the $5,000-to-$7,000-a-year bracket "suffer most grievously the ifcidence of the sales tax."

A person earning between $5,000 to $6,000 pays the sales tax at a rate of 1.56 per cent of his income after the government deducts his tax credit. Those earning up to $7,000 pay at a rate of 1.38 per cent.

Mr. Lewis noted the table showed that persons earning $15,000 or more would pay sales taxes equal to 1.41 per cent of his salary after the tax credit had been deducted while the provincial average was 1.46 per cent of salary.

He told Treasurer John White that the increased sales tax hits the working poor" hardest and "there is no quarrelling with these figures—the case is now made."

"You should withdraw this clause Mr. Minister because it will hang your government."

Mr. White replied that t h e government chose to raise the sales tax because Ottawa blocked increasing income tax and the sales tax was "the next most progressive tax."

During earlier study of the bill at committee stage, members from Northern Ontario suggested the tax remain at five per cent in the North because goods are more expensive in that part of Ontario.

Revenue Minister Allan Grossman told Jack Stokes (NDP—Thunder Bay) that his suggestion would create "an ad ministrative nightmare."

Mr. rossman was shepherding the bill through the committee stage during the afternoon sitting because Mr. hite had not returned from the finance ministers' meeting at Ottawa.

Opposition members continued to berate the government for collecting a tax that still wasn't law. The legislation is retroactive to May 1.

Mr. Grossman reiterated that a vendor could lose his licence for failing to collect the additional two per cent in the sales tax, but denied he was threatening merchants.

Meanwhile, the bill remained stalled at the committee stage and must get third reading and royal assent before it becomes law.

Minor Hockey An Ego Trip

by

Doug Walsh

Sports Editor

At a recent speaking engagement, Vern McCallum is reported to have expressed the opinion that: "It's time we put the fun back into hockey."

The secretary - manager of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, he believes the salvation of minor hockey lies in the younger players coming up.

It is obvious to anyone who attends OMHA all-star games, at all levels, that minor hockey is in trouble, right enough. And if things are to improve, it will be the youngsters who provide the leadership.

We grownups have left little doubt that when it comes to conducting ourselves in a civilized manner at the games, we fall far short of the mark.

What is minor hockey, all-star style?

It's our young players looking on in open-mouthed amazement as we:

Curse the game officials.

Engage in wrestling matches and-or fist fights.

Manhandle a 12-year-old.

Encourage the players to use all the dirty tricks in the book.

Run down players on our own team.

Threaten players on the opposing team.

Push our boys until they decide they don't want to play the game.

And then we push some more.

Of course, if our team loses and our son is a forward, the defence and the goalie played a terrible game. It doesn't matter that the score was 1-0.

On the other hand, if it's a 12-11 score and our lad is a defenceman or a goaltender, the reason for the loss is quite simply explained. The forwards did not score enough goals.

Once there was an OMHA slogan that went: "Take your boy to the arena and stay to watch him play."

It is becoming increasingly more evident that the boy will play better, more relaxed hockey and at the same time enjoy himself more, if some of us don't heed the advice of that slogan. Many of us would be better off at home and the game would benefit by it.

Who needs our idiotic behavior? Certainly not our youngsters.

If, as Mr. McCallum says, the salvation of minor hockey lies in the young players, they must be allowed to do it without the interference of the grownups.

Sure, we're a well meaning group. We don't mean to lose control at the games. But we do.

Too many of us believe that unless we are there to bellow instructions, hurl criticism and abuse at the officials, threaten to punch out the coach of the opposing team (and any of the supporters of that team who might take exception), our kids just won't make the grade.

It's time we showed that we are worthy of the title grownups. We haven't been acting the part. Perhaps if we did, the fun would come back into hockey.

In many instances, coaches and managers of the all-star teams need to turn over a new leaf as well. Too many of them are placing all the emphasis on winning. And for whose benefit?

Isn't it a fact that minor hockey is an ego trip for the adults?

What's wrong with minor hockey?

It's you and me, brother. And until we get with it, our youngsters are facing an almost impossible task. Let's back them all the way. But somehow, let's find where to draw the line.

Chris Kalnay (left) and Mike Dallaire stand together at the starting line of the Redneersville Road Race, but come the end Kalnay had the number one spot while Dallaire tied with Steve Muldoon in second. Kalnay was the only cyclist of the five youths to win the top of Onderdonk's Hill on his bike. The others walked.

Soccer Players Not Out in Cold

The Bay of Quinte Soccer Association started their season planning with an ambitious program of two divisions of five teams each. But with three teams which were going to play in the second grouping out, the BQSA is now running with a seven team league.

However, with the demise of the three soccer clubs, Cliff Dell, president of the Belleville Minor Soccer Association, is worried that players who had planned to play for the second division will feel that they have no-where to play.

"If the players assume that because of the folding of the second division there's nothing for them in soccer, then we'll be losing a lot of players," said Dell. "There's a place for them in minor soccer.

"As long as players from ages 16 to 21 realize that 'minor' is only a designation, they are likely to come out to play.

The BMSA, along with G and B Plasterers and the Rovers, were forced to drop out of the 19 team BQSA loop for various reasons. The BMSA could not come up with the required number of players to fill a team while the Rovers were having similar problems.

With a large number of his players being of bantam age, Dick Edwards, coach of the G and B Plasterers was unwilling to have his team play against the older players in the BQSA. Financially, his club would have been unable to withstand the drain on their small resources. Travelling to centres such as Batawa and Cobourg also precluded G and B's membership in the association.

Conditioning Pays for Chris

The Redneersville Road Race by no means compares to the Tour de France bicycle race in distance or duration, but, nonetheless, the student in the best condition won it.

The Tour runs some 3,000 miles over 25 to 30 days across the national borders of Belgium, Spain, Switzerland and Italy. The Redneersville Race started at Tobe's in Prince Edward County, reached the halfway mark of the 18 mile course at the top of Onderdonk's Hill, and came back on itself to the Ameliasburg Fire Department.

Chris Kalnay braved the chill dampness and the 45 degree Onderdonk's incline at the half - way mark to win the first Nicholson sponsored bicycle race in one hour and one minute.

Kalnay, however, had an advantage over the other even cyclists three of them girls, who entered the race. The 17-year-old grade 11 student had run five miles every morning starting a month before the Ken Colling Road Race in which he placed 13th in the 6½ runner field.

With his conditioning to take advantage of, Kalnay started off the line quickly, took the lead, and did not relinquish it for the duration.

"I wasn't afraid of setting a quick pace," said Kalnay. "I like to get out front, that way, you know where everyone is — behind you."

"Besides there wasn't too much to race against. The other guys are either on the field lacrosse or the basketball teams. I don't think they have gone through any track and field training as I have."

Steve Muldoon and Mike Dallaire had no endurance building training but their second place tie just over three minutes short of Kalnay's time proved their stamina.

Dallaire, who checked into quarter - way mark in fourth, moved into second ahead of Muldoon before Onderdonk's Hill and held on to the spot until Muldoon rallied near the finish line.

Scott Couture moved down to fifth after checking in third at the first quarter, but came back to place third at the line seconds ahead of Gil Pilon in fourth.

Lynn Wood crossed the wire 30 minutes behind Pilon while Lorrie Sagriff and Mary Pope both arriving five minutes race time, failed to finish the 18 mile bicycle race.

Jim McArdle and John Kot, co-conveners of the first Redneersville Road Race, are hoping to run another bicycle race sometime in early June, but this time both agreed that it would be better organized than yesterday's event.

New Spot on Line Causes Trouble

By AL ZARAS

(Third of series)

Standing at five-foot-eleven, Ken Holmes didn't have the same difficulties as five-foot-three fellow left winger Mark Coates had during the past Jr. B season, but the 19-year-old did suffer with a recurring problem.

Because Holmes was switched from the centre spot he had played for two years with the Picton and Trenton Jr. B teams, he strayed from his wing after the puck.

"I found myself following the puck and going into the corners as a centre does," Holmes admitted. "It took until about Christmas for me to get used to playing on my wing instead of chasing it."

"It was a new position and I really didn't know where to position myself. It was due to a little bit of inexperience."

Despite his claim to inexperience, Holmes managed a fourth place point standing with the Bobcats and the 19th slot in the final Metro league standings. The winger scored 13 goals and assisted on 30 during the regular season while potting four with two helpers in the playoff series.

However, had Holmes not driven himself into the corner with the puck he would have served up a greater share of the prints.

"I should have been cutting in more to the net," said Holmes, "but it's a hard thing to get used to."

The Prince Edward County winger has another year of junior hockey remaining and he'd like to play it out, but said "I'm pretty sure I'll be going to school."

Whatever his future is Holmes said he played with "a great bunch of guys, though I agree with what Rick (Meagher) said that there were some favorites. I don't really know why. Possibly it was because it was a Belleville team and the fans were from Belleville."

Montreal Has 7 of Top 22

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens have acquired seven of the top 22 amateur draft picks in the National Hockey League's amateur draft next week via trades with other clubs and that could be bad news for Tom Lysiak of Medicine Hat Tigers.

Lysiak, a high-scoring centre with the Western Canada Hockey League champions, would rather not be chosen by Montreal, but he is high on their list.

It's unlikely that any team would pass up an opportunity to grab a forward who scored 67 goals and 96 assists and won the WCHL scoring title for the second year in a row.

Ron Caron, one of the top scouts employed by the Canadiens, feels that Lysiak and his linemate Lanny MacDonald will be among the top six draft picks next week.

It's not that he has anything against Canadiens, Lysiak said Tuesday on the eve of the Tigers first game in the Memorial Cup round-robin playoff series. The Tigers play Toronto Marlboros, champions of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series and winners of the opening game of the series Monday against Quebec Remparts.

"I would rather play in the States," Lysiak said. "It would be a bit more exciting and a bit more of a challenge. I'd like to come back in here and play against Montreal.

"I would rather go to an expansion team or an established team that needs centre strength."

New York Islanders have first pick in the amateur selections and indications are they will opt for Denis Potvin, the high-scoring defenceman with Ottawa 67s of the OHA. California Golden Seals would have had the next pick, but because of an earlier deal with the Canadiens, the No. 3 pick goes to Montreal.

Talk around the Forum during the Memorial Cup playoffs for the top prize in major junior A hockey is that Montreal will go either for Lysiak or Andre Savard of Quebec Remparts.

As far as Tigers' coach Jack Shupe is concerned, Lysiak and MacDonald are "the top two forwards in Canada."

"I don't think there's anybody better in the country," Shupe said. "I use them a lot. Both of them work the power play and penalty-killing units. In the tougher games, they work most of the penalty-killing shifts."

Which means that fans attending tonight's playoff game should see a lot of the Tigers' one-two punch.

"I think the extra work makes us play better," Lysiak said. "It doesn't really bother us.

"We think we can beat them (Toronto). We're not worried about them. I think our team is as good as the teams here. Hockey is hockey.

"You will probably see a rougher game when we play Toronto than the game Monday night. We like to hit. I think we can skate with them too."

Following tonight's clash, the Tigers will play the Remparts Friday with the final, pitting the top two teams in the round-robin, scheduled for Saturday night. It will be telecast by the CTV network:

If each team finishes the series with a 1-1 won-lost record, the two finalists will be decided on the goals-for and goals-against system.

The Prize

Battle of Mistakes Proves Spellbinding

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank Mahovlich probably said it best for both teams after Thursday night's mistake-prone National Hockey League final at the Forum, in which Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens set two Stanley Cup scoring standards.

"We were making mistakes and we couldn't just stop making them," the big Montreal winger said after Chicago hung on for an 8-7 victory to go back home for the sixth game at 8:05 pm EDT, Thursday, trailing the best-of-seven series three games to two.

Both teams made frequent technical errors and suffered defensive lapses that led to a scoring outburst unequalled in modern JNHL playoff annals.

The 15 goals was the most scored by both teams ever in a playoff game, and the eight goals tallied in the second period surpassed the previous standard by one.

"I've never seen a game like that before in the playoffs," said the Big M, who opened the game's scoring early in the first period.

Stan Mikita and Jim Pappin scored two each for the Hawks, the others going to Dennis Hull, Lou Angotti and rookies Dave Kryskow and Len Frig who notched their first NHL goals.

Maybe we took them too lightly," Frank Mahovlich understated.

The Canadiens went storming to the attack from the opening whistle, leaving Dryden unprotected through most of the contest.

The Hawks took advantage of the defensive lapses to hold the Montrealers to a 3-2 standoff after the first period and superb goaltending by Tony Esposito lifted them to a 7-3 lead going into the final period.

Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs scored 13 goals in a 1936 post-season game, won by the wings 9-4, to set the previous playoff high for a game. It was subsequently tied on two other occasions.

The same season, Toronto scored six in a second-period barrage against Boston Bruins. Seven goals were scored in that 20-minute session, equalled on six other occasions since.

The result left both coaches spellbound.

"I don't really have any explanation," said Montreal's Scotty Bowman.

"I never thought I'd see an 8-7 game," added Hawks Billy Reay. "I'm just happy we won it."

Reay was somewhat testy after the game and kept the Chicago dressingroom closed for nearly 20 minutes after the game to allow his players to cool off, despite appeals by NHL vice-president Don Ruck and about 40 writers and photographers.

Reay said he wanted to be sure the crowd was represending of the media and not just curious autograph seekers and well-wishers.

"I wish I could analyze it," said all-star defenceman Pat (Whitey) Stapleton, himself on the ice for two early goals in the Canadiens' blitz. "I couldn't even start to do it.

"An 8-7 hockey game? I can't say anyone was backchecking. It seemed all the sharpshooters on both sides were out in force tonight."

Angotti, who snapped in the winner and 16th of the game that broke the old record and gave Chicago an 8-6 lead at 4:06 of the third period, finished off a two-on-one break.

Remember Herb Score?

Injury to Matlack Brings Back Memories

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On May 7, 1957, a left-handed pitcher who broke into the major leagues by winning Rookie of the Year honors was hit in the head by a line drive and was never the same.

On May 8, 1970, a left-handed pitcher who broke into the major leagues by winning Rookie of the Year honors was hit in the head by a line drive and...

Memories of Cleveland's Herb Score were vividly recalled in New York's Shea Stadium Tuesday night, but it appeared that young Jon Matlack of the Mets suffered far less damage than Score did. The Cleveland star was struck in the eye and never recaptured the brilliance of his brief career.

Matlack, 23, got the left side of his forehead in front of a hard liner off the bat of Atlanta's Rodney Peres in the seventh inning of the Braves' 10-6 victory over the Mets but apparently suffered nothing worse than an egg-sized lump, although he wound up in the hospital for overnight observation and routine x-rays.

Elsewhere in the National League, Montreal Expos ended Houston Astros' nine-game winning streak 4-3, Los Angeles Dodgers turned back Pittsburgh Pirates 7-4, San Francisco Giants outslugged St. Louis Cardinals 9-7, the Chicago Cubs edged San Diego Padres 3-2 in 12 innings and Cincinnati Reds downed Philadelphia Phillies 7-1.

Pacers Edge Colonels

LOUISVILLE (AP) — George McGinnis, aside on rebounds and drove under for a shot in the final 23 seconds Tuesday night to clinch Indiana's 89-86 victory over Kentucky Colonels.

It gave the Pacers a 3-2 lead in the American basketball Association best-of-seven championship series.

While McGinnis supplied the last-second heroics, it was veteran Freddie Lewis who ignited the Pacers' last half drive. Lewis finished with 31 points, 20 in the second half.

Matlack sailed into the seventh inning with a 3-1 lead when the mishap occurred with two out and the bases loaded. The ball caromed off his head across the first-base line, landing on the fly near the Mets' dugout and rolling in for a ground-rule double.

Dr. Peter LaMotte, the Mets' team physician, said Matlack showed no signs of a fracture, concussion or neurological damage and never lost consciousness.

In fact, as he was being taken from the field on a stretcher, the 6-foot-3, 205-pound lefty joked to his teammates, "Don't drop me."

Reliever Phil Hennigan gave up a grand-slam home run to Dave Johnson after intentionally walking Hank Aaron to highlight a seven-run inning for the Braves.

Bobby Bonds drove in five runs and his second homer, a two-run blast in the fifth inning, broke a 3-3 tie and helped San Francisco send St. Louis to its 20th setback in 25 games.

Johnny Bench drove in four runs with his sixth home run and a double and Pete Rose singled home the other three runs to lead Cincinnati over Philadelphia.

Rookie Ron Cey slammed a three-run homer, highlighting a five-run fifth inning as the Dodgers defeated Pittsburgh despite two home runs by the Pirates' Willie Stargell.

Doubles by Don Rudolph and pinch hitter Joe Pepitone in the 12th inning gave the Cubs their triumph over San Diego.

Protest Disallowed

The protest was filed after Giant catcher Dave Rader, entitly won 11-9 in 12 innings.

Feeney upheld the ruling of Cubs' to score a run in the fourth inning. He said, even though umpire Augie Donatelli that the baseball remained in play as Rader scored from first base following a wild pitch by the Cubs' Milt Pappas.

"The play was a continuous one and no umpire called time dor did any Cubs player request they do so," said Feeney, who received a report from the umpires and studied films before making the ruling. Feeney also saw the game.

Rader broke from first on the pitch from Pappas to Giants' pitcher Jim Barr. Feeney said, and rounded second base when the ball went behind Barr's back and to the backstop.

"Catcher Randy Hundley retrieved the ball and threw to Barr," Feeney added. "The throw went into left field and Rader, who never broke stride, continued home and scored."

Barr started walking toward Pappas after the pitch and other players, including third baseman Ron Santo, also headed for the mound. Coming around third, Rader tripped over a Chicago player who had left the dugout, as the Cubs' runner clearly was trying to home plate.

Royals' Kirkpatrick Relaxes and Hits

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I'll send out that I can hit in the major leagues," says Ed Kirkpatrick.

Everyone else now knows it too.

The Kansas City outfielder, who had a .333 lifetime batting average before this year, raised his season's total to .389 with three hits Tuesday night that helped the Royals beat Detroit Tigers 7-3.

"I'm about the most relaxed I've ever been in the majors," added Kirkpatrick after a big night of two doubles and a single. "Each of those hits pitches I hit was a little different.

"I got in some bad habits and it has taken me years to come out of them," he said.

While Kirkpatrick played for the California Angels and Royals in a checkered major league career that started in 1962, he never had a 14-game hitting streak, which he has now.

In other American League games, Cleveland Indians stopped California Angels 2-0; Texas Rangers trimmed Milwaukee Brewers 5-3; New York Yankees crushed Minnesota Twins 14-4 and Chicago White Sox topped Boston Red Sox 1-0.

Kirkpatrick doubled in the second inning and scored on Paul Schaal's single. He tripled after Hal McRae's single to drive in the first of two runs in the sixth and then scored on a missiled squeeze play when fruit catcher Duke Sims dropped the ball during a run down. Kirkpatrick also doubled and scored ahead of Schaal's homer in the eighth.

Ron Blomberg drove in four runs with a 440-foot home run and a single as New York buried Minnesota under a 14-hit offense. Every Yankee in the starting lineup collected at least one hit, drove in one run and scored one.

Knicks Take 3-1 Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Knicks, riding the 33-point performance of Dave DeBusschere, built up a big early lead and held off a belated Los Angeles rally for a 108-96 victory over the Lakers Tuesday night and a 3-1 lead in their National Basketball Association championship series.

The Knicks, who lost to the Lakers in five games in last year's final after beating them in seven games for their first NBA title in 1970, can clinch the best-of-seven series with another victory Thursday night at Los Angeles.

DeBusschere, a rugged 6-foot-6, 233-pounder, poured in 22 points in the first half when the Knicks raced to a 52-44 lead. Jerry West and his 11 of 12 field goal attempts during that span.

But the final period when the Lakers ran off eight straight points, four by Jim McMillian, slicing New York's lead to 94-92 with 1:15 remaining. DeBusschere took no further chance. With 48 seconds left, he rebounded a missed Bill Bradley shot and was fouled on the play by Billy Bridges. DeBusschere hit both free throws for a three-point play and a 97-92 lead.

Bridges answered with a field goal for Los Angeles eight seconds later, but Jerry fouled Earl Monroe with 35 seconds to go. Monroe netted two free throws.

Jerry West, who shared scoring honors with Gail Goodrich—each with 25 points—for Los Angeles, tallied on a driving layup with 23 seconds to play. But DeBusschere sank two more foul shots with nine seconds left.

Rival Coaches Are Confident

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Doug Ecclestone, playing-coach of Orillia Terriers, says there isn't a senior A team that can defeat his club four games in a best-of-seven series on home ice.

But his counterpart, Gary Kwasnitza of St. Boniface Mohawks, had other ideas Tuesday.

"We can play hit and skate and that's the way I think we will win it," said Kwasnitza, also captain of the Manitoba team. "It's our style and I think the Terriers can be beaten that way."

The teams are tied 1-1 in the best-of-seven Allan Cup final in Orillia. The third game will be held tonight and the fourth Friday night.

The Terriers, winner of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A championship, won the opening game last Saturday 12-2 but the Mohawks bounced back Sunday with a 6-4 triumph.

Kwasnitza, 33-year-old defenceman, played seven years ago for another Orillia senior team before joining Winnipeg Maroons for one season. He has been with the Mohawks since their beginning, when they lost a best-of-five Canadian senior hockey final 3-1 to Victoriaville Que., Tigers in 1967.

"The Terriers play an exceptional positional hockey and their passing is right on the button," he said. "They are not as aggressive as Spanish but they make up for it in positional play."

The Mohawks advanced to the final by defeating Spokane Jets of the Western International Hockey League 4-3 in the best-of-seven Western series. The Terriers eliminated Thunder Bay Twins 3-2 in the best-of-five Eastern final.

The Mohawks, who had little trouble taking the Canadian Central Hockey League title this year, "have a solid defensive unit and do not give the puck away," said Kwasnitza.

"Stick-checking is not our style of play. We are here to win this series and I haven't seen anything from the Terriers that makes our aim an impossibility."

Dave Richardson has been the big gun, scoring four goals for the Mohawks in the two games against the Terriers. For Orillia, Gary Marsh and Gary Milroy each has six points on three goals and three assists.

Park and Stapleton Impressed Kharlamov

MONTREAL (CP) — Valery Kharlamov, star forward on the Soviet Union's national hockey team, said Tuesday he was impressed with the work of defencemen Brad Park and Pat Stapleton in the Team Canada-Russia hockey series last fall.

"Park is very brave and has good technique." Kharlamov said in an interview. He then noted that both Stapleton and Park saw "all of the ice very clearly."

Kharlamov said he was impressed with the three Canadian goaltenders-Ken Dryden, Ed Johnston and Tony Esposito.

He added that right winger Yvan Cournoyer was "a very good skater and is physically strong enough so that he can play all three periods and not be tired."

Kharlamov said the Russians benefitted from Team Canada's aggressive play-in the series.

"It is easier playing on our amateur teams back home now that we are more acquainted with this type of play."

Kharlamov also said the Soviet players would welcome another series with Team Canada.

Kharlamov and Vsevelod Bobrov and Boris Kulagin, the Soviet Union's top hockey coaches, are here attending the Memorial Cup championship. They attended the fifth game of the Stanley Cup final between Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks Tuesday night.

Cup Leaders

Dennis Hull regained sole possession of the individual scoring lead in the Stanley Cup playoffs when he picked up a goal and an assist for Chicago Black Hawks in their 8-7 win over Montreal Canadiens Tuesday night. The goal and assist gave him 23 points, one more than Montreal's Yvan Cournoyer, who tied a playoff record with his 14th goal.

5 in A Row for Bea

Bea Hunt is a Belleville five-pin bowler who spends much of her free time in area tournaments. And she does very well.

Before travelling to Trenton Sunday to win the Bowler of the Year title for women, Bea rolled to her fifth straight Bay of Quinte open championship at the Bowl-O-Drome in Belleville, Friday.

She lost little time establishing herself as the favorite here Friday, rattling the pins for a sparkling 362 in the opening game. At the end of the 10-game string, Bea had a 2,402 total.

Second place went to Kay Wilson who finished with 2,278 and third was Madeline James with 2,263. Both are Belleville bowlers.

Trenton's Lorraine Cassidy posted the second high single for the day when she chrilled up a 309.

In the men's under 215 average event, Greg Bellis showed the way with his pinfall of 2,384. The top four spots went to Belleville five pinners.

Bob Rochon was second with 2,281; Bob Richardson, the winner in 1972, finished third at 2,093 and Bill Cox took fourth place with 2,051.

PCs and NDP Favor Index-tied Bonuses

OTTAWA (CP) New Democrats and Conservatives indicated Tuesday they may be ready to gang up on the minority Liberal government to force early introduction of increased family allowances.

It started when Jack Marshall (PC—Humber St. George's-St. Barbe) asked Prime Minister Trudeau in the Commons whether he would agree to tying allowances to the cost-of-living index.

Stanley Knowles NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) then asked Mr. Trudeau whether the government would consider advancing the effective date of allowances it proposed recently to July 1 from next January.

Mr. Trudeau replied: "It is the desire of the government to have them implemented as soon as possible. I believe the reason for setting the date of Jan. 1 is later, due to the complexity of implementing the plan after Parliament has voted on it."

The new program announced by Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde would increase allowances to an average of $20 a month regardless of family income. This would be taxable whereas the present average allowance of about $7 is tax-free.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield was unavailable for comment Tuesday night but NDP Leader David Lewis, at a party meeting in Hagkesbury, Ont., had plenty to say.

"I offer our entire co-operation for quick study of such a bill," Mr. Lewis said, pressing for fast introduction of the legislation.

He said the new proposals are not flawless, however.

"It would be a lot more sensible to tie family allowances to the consumer-price index, at least, and escalate them on an annual basis to ensure that payments are always at an appropriate level."

Astronauts Will Monitor Earth's Natural Resources

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts aboard the Skylab space station will take on the job of monitoring the earth's natural resources from space for the first time.

They will use a $37-million array of six photosensors to evaluate actual or potential resources over a wide area of the globe.

A dozen countries have requested sensor studies of farmlands, mountain ranges, river basins and watersheds in search of everything from minerals to crop disease. Iran, Brazil, Sudan, Colombia, the Philippines, Italy and Greece are among the countries that asked for investigation of various areas. In Canada, Lake Ontario and Lake Michigan will come under scrutiny.

The Skylab is scheduled to be launched May 14, with its three-man crew joining it the following day.

The Skylab earth resources experiments offer an almost unlimited potential for near-term benefits affecting man here on earth," says astronaut Paul J. Weitz of Erie, Pa. He is the sensor expert on the Skylab 1 crew.

Weitz said that during five months the Skylab will be manned by three crews and will fly over 75 per cent of the earth's surface. The 128 targets selected for study range from farm fields in Michigan to a volcano in Italy.

Weitz stressed that the sensors are experimental, designed to find out which instruments can best be used by man in space and which can be operated on unmanned satellites.

Possible results could be scientific mapping of snow cover, assessing water run-off potentials and crop conditions, estimating timber volume, finding oil and minerals, and determining fishing grounds.

The major areas of study are oceanography, agriculture and forestry, geography, geology and hydrology.

Lake Ontario is included in both the oceanographic and hydrological studies.

Caledon Is Accused Of Bowing to Pressure

BRAMALEA, Ont. (CP) — Chinguacousy Township Reeve Robert Williams has accused neighboring Caledon Township of giving in to pressure by releasing lots of housing development to an associate of Ontario Premier William Davis.

The reeve said at a council meeting Monday night that the leasing of the land to Ron Webb of the Davis, Webb and Hollinrake legal firm—"an influencial lawyer in the area close to influencial people"—was against policies set out in the Toronto-centred region plan.

Mr. Williams said the plan allows for rural development only in Caledon unless housing lots in the township are related to existing villages and can be serviced.

Caledon doesn't have servicing of lots, as do some surrounding townships.

Reeve Ted Sibbald of Caledon denied Mr. Williams' charges and said that allowing lots for development in the township was in accordance with the official plan approved last year by the province.

Vernon Singer Challenges Whiterock

TORONTO (C) — Liberal Vernon Singer challenged Whiterock Industries Ltd. Tuesday to do "whatever they think is best" about his statements concerning the company's interpretation of a recent decision regarding land titles.

The member for Toronto Downsview told the Ontario legislature he had received a letter from Whiterock Vice-President Jack J. Walls, that if he repeated the statements outside the immunity of the house he would be sued.

Mr. Singer said he objected to this "attempt to intimidate a member of the legislature" and proceeded outside the House to read a half-page of Hansard it contained his statements to a legislature committee a week ago.

At that time he said clients of Whiterock may be "running some very serious risk" if they believe a circular distributed by the land development company claiming they have a clear title to their lands.

The Whiterock circular told clients that you will doubtless be pleased to learn that you may now proceed 'with your plans to build on your property . . . ' and . . . that your present ownership is no longer in question."

Mr. Singer, a lawyer, said he had "substantial doubts" that the decision by the Ontario Court of Appeal "goes anywhere nearly as far as Mr. Walls appears to believe."

Whiterock has used the so-called checkerboard system of subdividing land near Peterbrough, Ont. Under the system, lots are carved up in a way to avoid certain provisions of the Ontario Planning Act.

Last fall, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled that checkerboarding circumvented Ontario laws against unauthorized subdivision of land. The decision had the effect of invalidating the title to land held by thousands of purchasers.

But the Ontario appeal court said last month in answer to a series of hypothetical questions posed by the provincial government that purchasers of sub-divided land had good title under certain circumstances.

One circumstance was if the purchaser was not able to determine if he might be part of a subdivision scheme.

Nixon Is Afraid Developer Will Influence Land Planning

TORONTO (C) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon charged Tuesday that a development company could influence municipal land-use planning in an area near Brantford, earmarked for provincial/regional government expansion.

Mr. Nixon was unable to elicit much information from premier William Davis on the project, which Mr. Nixon said involved about 7,000 acres of land worth about $30-million.

The developers, who Mr. Nixon said are unknown and unnamed, have taken options on the land in the approximate area where a report is believed to recommend a new city.

The developers are using the legal advice of J. A. Kennedy, former chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board, and Robert Macaulay a former Conservative cabinet minister.

"Land-use planning in this particular instance is apparently being done by the investors' dollar rather than the area authorities in the area or even the province," said Mr. Nixon.

Outside the legislature, Mr. Nixon said there was a report, as yet not released, that is believed to recommend a satellite city for the area.

The city would be connected with Hydro and Steel Company of Canada plans for the area.

The danger, he said, was that government would adjust its planning to fit the developers land assembly.

However, Mr. Nixon said he was not suggesting that the developers or their counsel had knowledge of the report.

The Liberal leader noted that the assembled land could contain about 150,000 or 200,000 people.

Mr. Nixon said John White obviously couldn't handle the dual portfolio of treasurer and intergovernmental affairs.

"The treasurer simply can't come to grips with matters pertaining to land-use planning."

Premier Davis said the criticism of Mr. White's workload was possibly valid.

E. R. (Good (L—Waterloo North) suggested the government put a freeze on development in the area until the report on municipal restructuring is received.

Ownership Rule Said Breached

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morrell Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) charged Tuesday in the legislature that the provincial government's foreign ownership policy has been breeched by a firm that has former premier John Robarts as a director.

He said the insurance brokerage firm of Reid, Shaw, Osler has been taken over by a foreign, non-resident corporation.

"Does the fact that a certain John Robarts is on the board of directors have any connection with this particular case?" asked Dr. Shulman.

Provincial legislation states that 51 per cent of the board of directors must be Canadian residents.

Dr. Shulman said 51 per cent of the shares had been taken over by a foreign firm.

Premier William Davis said he wasn't familiar with the case, but said Mr. Robarts's position had no bearing on the matter.

However, Frank McGee, a spokesman for Reid, Shaw, Osler, said in an interview later that the Canadian company had merged with A. R. Stenhouse and Partners of Scotland and that there was no takeover.

Mr. McGee said Stenhouse controlled 55 per cent of the equity shares and Reid, Shaw, Osler controlled 45 per cent.

But Reid, Shaw, Osler controlled 60 per cent of the voting shares with Stenhouse controlling 40 per cent. Mr. McGee said this met provincial requirements.

He said seven of the thirteen directors were Canadians.

Equal Pay Ruling New To Minister

TORONTO (C) — New Democrat Leader Stephen Lewis told the legislature Tuesday that the director of the Employment Standards Branch apparently believes women should get equal pay only when they don't replace a man as a result.

He quoted from a letter he received from the director which said in part that the equal pay for women legislation only applies when women are working with men and not replacing them.

Labor Minister Fernand Guindon said he has always construed the Employment Standards Act to mean equal pay for equal work.

He said there were cases before the courts where the provinces was suing employers for not abiding by the legislation.

"This interpretation is new to me," said the minister and he promised to investigate the matter further.

Warm Welcome

LONDON (CP) — The Stock Exchange's youngest woman member, Jane Barrie, 25, was given a warm reception when she made her first appearance in the previously all-male chambers. Jane, an oil analyst, was greeted with cat-calls and cries of "get 'em off." One male stock broker said: "Business was a bit slack that day so we decided to liven things up a bit."

King John Started Wine Rules in 1199

SAINT-EMILION, France (CP) — Even the French have to acknowledge that an English king was responsible for a smart move in the French wine industry. In a charter in 1199, King John created the little town of Saint-Emilion into a district to be administered by an elected jurade or council for the purpose of control over the local wine production.

However King John wasn't meddling in something that wasn't his business. Saint-Emilion was part of the Duchy of Aquitaine. John was the Duke of Aquitaine by virtue of inheritance. His mother, Eleanor of Aquitaine, brought the duchy with her when she married Henry II of England.

Saint-Emilion is a delightful medieval town built on a hill, with narrow streets, ancient ramparts, the oldest subterranean church in Europe, cloisters and acres of surrounding vineyards.

There are some 85 individual wine growers who bottle and sell their wine under the Saint-Emilion seal and the controlled classification. The four classifications are Premier Grand Cru class, Grand Cru, all preceded by Saint-Emilion, with the fourth and least expensive called just Saint-Emilion.

Saint-Emilion is only a short drive from Bordeaux, the centre of what is considered France's best wine-growing area. It includes Saint-Emilion and the districts of Medoc, Pomerol, Entre-Deux-Mers (Between Two Seas) and Cotes de Blaye, all well-known names to wine drinkers. This Bordeaux area produces some 500 million bottles of wine a year.

Each wine has its own particular quality. Medoc is perhaps the best known. Its ruby red wine is said to have a "velvety nobility." Robust is the word applied to the Saint-Emilion vintage. The red wine of the Pomerol is considered to be "round, full-bodied and elegant." The Cotes de Blaye and neighboring regions produce red wines that are "supple and well balanced" and also some good white wine.

The Romans discovered the area and its wines became a favorite with the Roman emperors just as, in the 18th century, it was the fashionable wine for the French courtiers at their parties.

Today the quality of the wines of all the areas is controlled. But it was King John who created that first jurade with authority to regulate the yield, arrange the transportation and the starting of the wine. But even more important, the jurade determined the date for the harvesting.

Inspectors rode on horses on inspection tours through the vineyards, calculated the sunny days still needed and then proclaimed the harvest date. This not only ensured the best quality but prevented vineyard owners from stealing a march on each other by starting too early to be the first to market.

Today the vineyards are still inspected and the harvest date is still proclaimed on a Sunday, about the third week of September. This is the New Wine Festival in Saint-Emilion. Members of the jurade attend mass, dressed in their splendid scarlet robes, have lunch together and then go to the underground church where new members are received. Today there are several thousand honorary members of the jurade. Naturally they are wine appreciators. Then about 3 p.m., from the top of the Tour de Roi, the harvest is proclaimed and blessed. It's a cheerful sight and draws many tourists.

In the spring, about May 15, there's another festival when the first tiny flowers appear in the vineyards.

Tonnage Up

TORONTO (CP) — The port of Toronto has handled 17 per cent more tonnage so far this year—42,909 tons compared with 41,150 tons in the same period in 1972, a report said.

Car for Son

William Chambers looks at a gasoline - powered car he built for his 12-year-old son Scott, who suffers from muscular dystrophy. Powered by a lawn mower engine and controlled entirely by hand levers, the car has enabled his son to enjoy a feeling of freedom and independence other children take for granted.

Father Constructs Car For Son With Dystrophy

PORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — William Chambers used a great deal of ingenuity, some automotive knowledge and about eight weeks of work to give the precious gift of mobility to his son, who suffers from muscular dystrophy.

Mr. Chambers constructed a gasoline-powered car for his 12-year-old son, Scott, now attending a special school in Toronto.

Powered by a lawn mower engine and controlled entirely by hand levers, the car has enabled his son to enjoy a feeling of freedom and independence other children take for granted.

The car, a three-seater antique design now is being used as a model for similar cars being built for crippled children in Burlington and Hamilton.

Once finished, Mr. Chambers said it will be put on show at Sunnyview School for Crippled Children in Toronto.

One of the main reason for having the car on display, Mr. Chambers said, is to demonstrate to other parents what can be done to help crippled children.

"Too often," he said, "parents tend to work by themselves and hasn't been until quite recently that an attempt has been made to bring all of this knowledge together for the benefit of these children."

Mr. Chambers said the car is an ideal mode of transportation for many children who are unable to walk.

"They may not be able to use their legs but most are capable of working the hand controls and this is enough to provide them with the mobility they need.

"If a person is a good scrounger he can build the car for under $30 and give a crippled youngster as much independence as any child his age," he said.

Mr. Chambers said he also has the plans for an electric car, for which all of the parts can be purchased in a standard hardware store.

Muscular dystrophy was first discovered in his son about five years ago.

Mr. Chambers explained it was only after he was watching his son one day trying unsuccessfully to ride a tricycle that he finally got the idea for a small car.

Objibway Band Runs Recreational Complex

FORT WILLIAM RESERVE, Ont. (CP) — When the Queen visits here July 3, she'll find a million-dollar ski club, a trailer campground, a bar and a recreational lake—plus 70 Indian families who are doing nicely.

Should the Queen delay her visit a little, chances are she'd also have a motel and golf course to inspect, to say nothing of riding stables, cross-country ski and snow mobile runs.

"They thought they were giving us the useless land," smiled Chief Leonard Pelletier, a young hockey-player of local renown. "But as it turns out we're sitting on perhaps the most valuable real estate around here."

That's a far cry from 1801, when the Ojibway band moved here from Grand Portage across the United States border, received a 30-square-mile reserve under an 1849 treaty and in 1905 sold off the Kaministiquia riverfront section to what later became Canadian National Railways.

And that's how it remained —until tourism took a bold new thrust and camping made the scene in a big way.

Now the ski club has 1,700 seasonal members, the young discuss amortization plans and send their children to city schools, and Father Xara, the Jesuit who ministers to the reserve, says: "We have a bingo problem rather than a drinking problem."

Considering most of it has happened in the last two years, that's not bad going.

It was in 1971 that the young Indians bought out—with federal and provincial aid—a private ski club leasing their land.

This came only after they had persuaded the elders there was nothing to fear in the phrase "surrender" of land in the legal document setting up Ojibway Resorts Ltd. The "surrender" was from themselves to themselves via a corporate structure, bill the elders had balked at the project for three years.

To cover the $150,000 cost of the lodge, plus expansion, Ottawa provided a $200,000 Agricultural and Rural Development Administration grant, the province a $105,000 grant through the Northern Ontario Development Corp., with the Indian affairs department coming up with loans totalling $300,000.

Even with the poor snow this winter, we'll make a profit," said Howard Bannon, area manager for Ojibway Resorts.

The band received $7,000 last year from summer tourists hauled in the chairlift to the top of Mount McKay, $12,294 from its toll-gate ($1 a car) for the scenic drive to the top, and $860,000 from the nearby city of Thunder Bay for use of Lake Lomond water for 30 years.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, May 10.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): When you find arbitrary colleagues try patient consideration and detailed questions rather than being contradictory.

TAURUS (April 20-May 5): The more people care for each other, the more likely a conflict. If jet alone, the clash is short-term - talking it seriously risks permanence.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Schedules are jumbled by misunderstandings, perhaps jive-mile mischief. Disregard trivia with dignity but have something to do while you wait for things to straighten out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Positive personalities tend to enlarge, take more time and space than you're willing to offer them. Concentrate on answer.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Finances concern you today. Sudden outlays may require juggling of budgets, postponing of important purchases.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Getting agreement on anything is difficult--stay with things as they are rather than forcing issues.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can easily take on more than is comfortable to cope with now, with probability that temporary arrangements may become permanent.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Following friends' schemes sends you into awkward situations. You learn something of your inner nature by direct, tingling yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Soothing seeds of discontent, stirring up verbal battles can be accomplished as easily today. Seek the most cheerful environment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Stick to your schedule and budget, extra expense is unnecessary, let others squabble. You may be called on for trouble-shooting late in the day.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Alter about-face differences of opinion. With so much to do there's no time for gossip or bickering much as some provocations may demand.

Purity of French Defended

PARIS (CP) — Three years after declaring war on foreign ties in the French language, the French government has succeeded in publishing lists of French equivalents for the words that have invaded the language.

The lists point out those words that now have been banished from the language and those whose use is not recommended in order to avoid obligatory use of the French equivalents.

Words such as disc-jockey, dispatching, scoop, fair-play, and teleprinter have been replaced by animateur, distribution, extrafeuille, fringe benefits and telescripteur.

This is not surprising as the 15 commissions created to purge each government department of foreign words drew on all the resources of the French-speaking countries to establish the French equivalents.

Many of the foreign words now banished from use pertain to such areas as nuclear physics, space technology and the audio-visual field, where constant technological and scientific developments demand new words to express their achievements.

The Paris daily Le Monde said of the lists "the use of sidequate words by public servants has a good chance of getting these words into common use.

Another newspaper, Le Figaro, praised the government's "singular prudence" in making the use of some words obligatory and not recommending others.

In wandering through commercial sections of the city one can see how deeply foreign words have cut into daily speech.

No "terrain de stationnement" for Parisiens. They have been leaving their cars in a "parking" for lack of a better book and you will find many names listed under "hairdresser" as you will under "coiffeur."

Language experts say this invasion of foreign words results from ignorance and the necessity of finding new words for new things.

The government said that in publishing its lists of banished words and their equivalents, it is aiming to prove that the French language is capable of doing just that, finding new names for scientific and technological innovations and discoveries as well as providing new words whenever and where ever francophones have need of them.

To Your Good Health

Man, 80, Warned By Tight Chest

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you tell me why, after I walk two or three blocks, I get a tight feeling in my chest? After I rest for a few minutes, the feeling is more or less after each meal. I am 80 and still do a good day's work. H.P.

Congress or somebody should provide medals for people who still do a good day's work at 80. But at 80, you've still got to admit that you aren't as young as you used to be.

I'd prefer to examine you physically before giving you too glib an answer. It is why you have that "tight feeling" in the chest, but I'll hazard what seems to me to be a possibility that fits the fact you gave me.

Your heart, after 80 years has done a lot of work, and you can't blame it for getting a little tired. Well, maybe not "tired," but it doesn't have the zing it used to have.

Now hold on a minute! If you think I'm saying you have heart disease—I'm not! I'm just saying that we do get older, and we have to accept it. In your 80 years your heart has beaten something like three million times, and considering that, it evidently is pretty good shape still. Just—well, it's older.

It still keeps pumping blood around your body, but it doesn't do it quite as easily now. So when you walk two or three blocks, that tight feeling in the chest is a polite warning that your heart doesn't want to be pushed any harder than that.

You comment cannily that this happens particularly after a meal. That's not surprising. Additional blood circulation to the digestive organs is required after we eat. Think of it this way: digestion, food, separating it into the various nutrients and absorbing them, is work.

It's your heart that circulates the blood to nourish the organs for this work, so your heart is called upon for a bit more effort after a meal.

That's why you get this "tight feeling." That warning signal from your heart, after your meals.

I repeat: although it needs more rest than formerly, you evidently have a pretty good heart.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've always had trouble with my nose, but I've been bothered a lot in the spring, summer and fall. I don't think I will ever go on a bicycle again without at least two boxes of tissues.

The most irritating part of my problem, usually in the evening, is that one side or the other of my nose clogs up and I can't get any air through it.

Does this indicate some serious sinus problem? Is there medication that would help? — J.L.

Whether your sinus is involved is beside the point, although sinus-related congestion probably will affect your sinuses if it hasn't happened already.

From the sound of things, I would suspect that your first line of defence would be to put yourself in the hands of an allergist. You have the signs of being allergic to growing things — trees, grasses, flowers, plants. An allergist can readily test you for the more common offenders in these groups.

Note to H.S.: Your problem—about starting a suit—is a legal problem, so ask your lawyer instead of me. As to the medical aspects of the suit, I certainly am not about to offer any opinions without having first-hand knowledge of the case. Nor would a court be interested in my hearsay remarks.

Opening lead — queen of hearts.

Many contracts fail due to unlucky distribution, but some of them can be rescued by means not readily apparent. Let's start you off in six diamonds and West leads a heart. You win with the ace, expecting to make all the tricks, but when you lead the A K of trumps, West shows out and you realize that even the small slam is now in danger.

However, all is not yet lost, for East may have to follow suit when you now play the K-Q-10 of spades. If he does, you can discard a heart on the fourth round of spades and so make the slam.

Unfortunately, East ruffs the third spade, cashes a heart, and down you go.

This is certainly an unlucky result, since the trumps could have been divided 3-2 or East might have had the simple decency to hold three or more spades. Nevertheless, the fact is that the contract might have come home with a slightly different method of play.

After seeing the 4-1 trump division, the best play is to cash the K of spades and play the ten to the ace. When you next lead the nine, it becomes far from easy for East to ruff — because he may think West has the queen.

East is apt to discard on the spade lead from dummy, because he may think your lead looks something like this:

♠ K 10 ♥ 10 2 ♦ A K Q 9 8 ♣ Q 7

In that case, he would hand you the slam by ruffing the nine but defeat you by discarding on the ten.

If he discarded, you would make the slam by crossing to dummy with a club and discarding a heart on the jack of spades. Your conclusion might bother you for having given the slam you were not entitled to make, but that is a penalty you should feel happy to pay.

Tomorrow A valuable principle.

Tempers Running Short In Embattled Uruguay

By JULIO VILLAVERDE

MONTEVIDEO (Reuter) — Tempers are short in Uruguay as cycles started by a military revolt in February spread through the nation's political and business life.

The armed forces, politicians and organized labor are jostling for power, with increasing evidence that the military mean to come out on top.

Their bloodless uprising shook right-wing President Juan Maria Bordaberry and left him virtually friendless, but stopped short of formally ousting him.

Recent military criticism of politicians accused of "obstructing" reforms indicates that unless there is a drastic change of attitude soon, some senior officers will end Uruguay's traditional military aloofness from politics and take over, observers say.

Allegations of corruption in public life, which have led to prosecutions of several important public figures, prompted February's "coup in disguise" as some politicians called the revolt.

For two days tanks armed sailors and barricades obstructed the streets of this normally tranquil seaside capital, although no shots were fired.

Since then all sides have tried to take advantage of an unprecedentedly fluid situation.

Left-wing labor unions have staged strikes to try to force the president out of office. Politicians of all stripes blame rivals for the country's near-disastrous economic situation and for provoking opening for the military.

Ironically it was Bordaberry himself who first brought the military into a neo-political role when he unleashed them against the left-wing Tupamaros or urban guerrillas shortly after taking office a year ago.

The Tupamaros had been carrying out political kidnappings, robberies, "executions" of alleged police torturers and propaganda raids, almost with impunity, for several years.

Having crushed the Tupamaros, the military became more and more vociferous in their criticism of the government, culminating in their refusal to accept a defence minister who set out to purge obstreperous officers.

Having outlasted the minister's resignation, the military went further in dictating a reform program to the government, demanding, and getting, establishment of a military-dominated national security council" and appointment of an army officer as interior minister.

Even more ironically for the ruling Colorado party, some of the measures proposed by the military, such as agrarian reform, emergency help for the poor and workers' participation in managing industry, would not be frowned upon by the Tupamaros.

The commanders-in-chief of the three armed forces, in a statement read recently over the national radio and television, talked tough" in a manner similar to the initial stages of coups by officers in other Latin-American countries.

They spoke of "manoeuvres by certain privileged sectors who do not wish to change a situation which has given them power and personal benefits for a long time."

The warning was clear that the tanks which rolled into the streets in February can move again at a moment's notice.

First RCAF Overseas, 403 to Receive Flag

OROMOCTO, N.B. (CP) — Past and current members of a Canadian Armed Forces squadron which has served three roles since the early days of the Battle of Britain are to gather here on May 19-17 for formal presentation of the unit's "standard," the squadron flag.

The first Royal Canadian Air Force unit to be formed overseas under a special section of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, 403 Squadron was credited with the destruction of 123 enemy aircraft during the Second World War. It shared in the destruction of at least seven other enemy planes.

But the squadron had been put in mothballs twice since the end of the war, reactivated the first time to serve as an RCAF auxiliary unit based at Calgary and most recently to carry out its current job of training helicopter pilots at Canadian Forces Base Gagetown.

Tracking down the hundreds of officers and men who served with 403 Squadron during its varied history was no easy job. They're scattered across Canada and parts of Europe.

"We even found one ex-squadron member living in Dublin who is writing the history of 403," said Capt. Fraser Webb, a helicopter pilot-instructor with the unit at Base Gagetown. "We want to make sure he gets here."

The battle honors on the standard will date back to the Second World War. The squadron served with the Royal Air Force's fighter command and 2nd Tactical Air Force for more than four years.

Flt. Lt. G. P. (Bum) Beurling, the Malta ace, scored his 30th kill while serving with 403 Squadron. He was credited with destruction of a Focke-Wulfe 190 near Poix, France, Sept. 24, 1943.

Thirteen Spitfire IXBs of the squadron carried out the first bombing attacks by Spitfire aircraft in Northwest Europe when they attacked a V-1 rocket site near Le Treport, France, in April, 1944.

The squadron advanced to the Rhine with the Allied armies following the invasion of Passburg, Germany, after the end of the European hostilities.

It was reactivated at Calgary as an RCAF auxiliary squadron Oct. 15, 1948 and designated a fighter bomber unit flying Harvards and Mustangs. The squadron was redesignated a light transport and search-and-rescue unit in 1958 and re-equipped with Expeditor and Otter aircraft. But it was disbanded a second time with the reorganization of the Canadian reserves in 1964.

Brought back into the armed forces as a helicopter training squadron in 1968, 403 Squadron was first based at CFB Petawawa but was transferred to CFB Gagetown in 1972.

Responsible for training helicopter pilots for Mobile Command, the squadron has been equipped with one CH-118 single Huey, four CH-136 twin Hueys and nine CH-136 Kiowa light observation helicopters.

Last year, the squadron trained 74 pilots and several helicopter technicians.

Poland Reforms Factory System

WARSAW (Reuter) — Poland has launched a reform of its factory management, giving managers more freedom from control by central planners and introducing profit incentive for the first time.

The reform, which began in January, will be expanded to factories representing one-fifth of Poland's industrial production.

An earlier reform plan, introduced by the regime of Wladyslaw Gomulka, was a root cause of the 1970 riots in the Baltic ports which led to Gomulka's replacement by Edward Gierek as Communist party secretary.

Drawing lessons from that experiment, the new regime has made changes aimed at improving efficiency and producing better consumer goods.

Until now, factories have been given a certain amount of money and material to produce a given amount of goods. Any deviation from the agreed plan needed authority from the central planning commission.

This led to abuse, delays and the sacrifice of quality to fill quotas.

For the first time, wages and bonuses for management will depend not on production alone but on sales.

Polish officials are reluctant to use the word "profit" in this respect preferring to use the phrase "pure production figure." This is described as the amount the factory has created without external income and is derived by deducting from the sales figure the cost of materials and of investment credits.

The larger part of the pure production figure goes to pay wages. But if pure production increases, for example, through a more efficient use of materials, the wages fund rises in proportion.

Of the money remaining after paying wages, a percentage goes to the state in tax. The remainder is divided again, the larger part going to a fund to develop the enterprise—presumably to make more profit—and the smaller to paying bonuses to the management.

The state continues to demand that production fall within the over-all economic plan but, once the article and its price have been approved by the state, there is no further interference in the actual production.

However, management can no longer fall back on virtually automatic credits from the state if it runs into difficulty. Such credits are granted only if the management can show good prospects of increasing production and then only at a high interest rate—this year 12 per cent.

For example, if the pure production figure falls instead of rises, wages will not be allowed to fall in unison and the management will have to seek credits.

The repayment of these credits will eventually affect the payment of bonuses to the management, so directors are encouraged to find a more efficient solution to safeguard their bonuses.

The Poles say the main appeal of their system is that prices remain fixed so that factories cannot resort to increasing prices as an easy way to make profit. They must produce goods which are acceptable to the trade in order to increase sales.

Factories have a choice of using their profits either to increase employment or to increase wages. It was the blocking of these two factors which doomed the earlier plan.

Under the old five-year plan, the growth of wages was limited and factories would have paid possibly large profits to the state while wages increased by only 10 per cent. Employment was also blocked—in a situation where there were increasing numbers coming into the labor market.

Typical Family $4,161 in Debt

OTTAWA (CP) — A recent Statistics Canada study paints this picture of the average family in 1969: income $8,927, assets $20,747, debts $4,181.

The study notes that 27 per cent of families reported no debt and provides observations like "in Quebec, there appears to be a preference for more expensive automobiles."

Distribution of assets and debts varied considerably according to income group, with low-income persons having, on the average, few debts and few assets.

The top fifth of the population in terms of income, says the study, collectively have two-fifths of all assets.

For unmarried individuals, the financial picture in 1969 was: average income $3,020, assets $2,573, debt $690.

The figures do not include assets or debts connected with businesses or farming. Cars used primarily for work, for example, are not counted as assets.

Many of the study's findings are less than startling—like the observation that families are more likely to own homes than single individuals. Others, however, are intriguing and lead to speculation by the report's authors.

For example, the average value of automobiles was $1,067. But that figure varied from $888 in prosperous British Columbia to $1,160 in Quebec, a province with an economy classed as depressed by the federal government.

"This differential," in the absence of detailed analysis, might be ascribed to greater popularity of imported automobiles in British Columbia, which, are perhaps relatively cheaper than comparable North American models.

"Moreover, less severe nature of the climate in British Columbia may also prolong the normal life of an automobile with the result that there may be relatively more older automobiles in British Columbia than elsewhere in Canada."

Average assets varied considerably by region, with the family average ranging from $11,245 in the Atlantic provinces to $22,389 in British Columbia.

The Quebec average was $13,726, Ontario was $21,165 and the Prairies were close to the national average at $17,880.

Total family assets were composed of 57 per cent home equity, eight per cent other real-estate investment, two per cent vacation homes, 28 per cent financial assets like savings accounts and bonds, and five per cent automobiles.

Average equity in family homes was $14,703. That was out of an average market value of $19,168 for all family-owned homes.

More than two-thirds of debt was home mortgages, giving home-owning families an average total debt of $5,280 while other families had average debts of $937.

Nearly half of all family units reported no consumer debt, while one-quarter had consumer debts of less than $1,000 each. The remaining one-quarter was above $1,000 a family.

Families whose heads worked reported average consumer debts of $1,067. Families with unemployed breadwinners had no consumer debt in seven of 10 cases.

QUEBEC (CP) — Pierre Verge, 37, who obtained his doctorate in law from Laval in 1970, has been named dean of Laval University's law faculty, succeeding Hubert Reid. Admitted to the Quebec bar in June, 1961, Verge began duties as a professor at Laval in 1967.

Record Season

QUEBEC (CP) — The port of Quebec handled 2.18 million tons of cargo in the first three months of 1973 compared with 1.96 million tons in the corresponding period in 1972. The port received 1.27 million tons of merchandise and shipped out 913,883 tons between January and March, 1972 which represents another record season of winter shipping.

Lure of Dollar A Day Crowds Haitian City

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Each day, red and blue buses jammed with dusty peasants rumble out of the Haitian countryside into the capital city of Port Au Prince.

The peasants, lured here in part by the prospects of making $1 a day in one of the many new factories, find little work and large slums.

The unemployment rate is 30 per cent.

Yet, they continue to pour into Port Au Prince, hoping for something better than a legacy of dirt-floor, thatched-roof houses, hunger and death usually before 50.

Nicola Tinners, in her 40s, came to Port Au Prince seven years ago from the southern city of Jacmel. She makes a scanty living selling peanuts from two oven baskets on Harry Truman Boulevard, the capital's harbor front road.

"I make maybe 50 gourdes a month," she told a visitor as she squatted on the sidewalk and took peanuts from their shells. That is $10 a month.

Haiti's per capita income is $80 a year, making it one of the poorest nations in the Western Hemisphere. Annual income is not even that high in the interior. In 1970, the per capita income in the United States was $4,460.

Just a few miles outside of Port Au Prince in any direction, the roads become potholed and sometimes nearly impassable.

Groups of goats and an occasional cow wander across the road, oblivious to truck and bus drivers beeping air horns and swerving out of the way.

A few hundred feet from the roadway, the Haitian peasant tills his small plot of land as his father and his father's father did.

Almost 90 per cent of Haiti's five million people live in the interior, in small huts. Sisal plants are grown to produce fibre for rope and twine. The farmers also grow bananas, breadfruit and other fruits and vegetables.

The peasant's house, about the size of an average American living room, has two rooms. The walls are usually of woven mats plastered with clay.

Life is hard in the Haitian countryside. The average life expectancy is about 47 years. Infant mortality is high and many peasant children suffer from malnutrition.

Life is no better for them in Port au Prince, where the majority of the residents live in wooden shacks huddled along rocky paths that flood during the rainy season.

The capital's population has more than doubled in the last 20 years to a total of 500,000. Migration from the countryside keeps pushing it higher.

"Port Au Prince now is a very large slum," says Roberi de Ronceray, director of he Haitian Centre for Research in Social Sciences and Haiti's undersecretary of education.

East Germany Builds Luxury Beach Resort

WARNEMUNDE, East Germany (AP) — The Hotel Neptun rises white and modern on a fine strand of Baltic Sea beach. It is East Germany's finest, and newest hotel.

A Danish ferry, runs between Warnemuende and Gedser in Denmark hauling trains and passengers. As the ferry sails in, two slate gray East German patrol boats head out to sea. Their mission is to protect against incursions and see to it that no East German makes his way to the West by way of the sea without permission.

This contrast, in purposes reflects present-day East Germany. On the one hand, the Communist see is becoming increasingly outward looking, particularly in trade and other dealings with the Scandinavian countries to the north. On the other, it is still not sure how to treat its own people who want badly to be able to visit the West.

The Hotel Neptun was built by Swedish money, then sold to the East Germans to run. Its Swedish fixtures promise continued influence in its management.

The luxury of many of its appointments seems almost unreal when viewed against the backdrop of needed general rehabilitation for the town of Warnemuende, a gathering of privately-owned homes now badly in need of repair.

Rostock, just to the south, lits somewhere in between. It is one of East Germany's most attractive cities and much has been done to remake the old city centre into a picturesque grouping of red brick seacoast houses and shopping streets. As the country's only deep-sea port, constructed because of the loss of Stettin to Poland, Rostock is still in a state of flux.

On a weekend a Neptun employee disclosed that 80 per cent of a full house was made up of people from the Communist-controlled Free German Trade Union Federation. These included a number of elderly people given an outing as apparent reward for past services.

Evidently the tariffs paid for such guests are different from those paid by outsiders, but everyone in the hotel pays the same for food, drink and entertainment.

These prices can be steep. A double room is 880 marks, or about $29, including breakfast.

CP News Roundup

Mysterious Lights Seen Over Lake

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Bright lights above Lake Ontario Monday night and witnessed from the United States and Canadian shores baffled officials and meteorologists.

The lights, described as resembling reflected light from a small community, were reported by coast guardsman James Davis here and constable Angus Riddle of the Ontario Provincial Police at Brighton, Ont., 42 miles across the lake.

Davis said the coast guard station had dozens of calls about the lights, which appeared about 8:30 p.m. and faded out two hours later.

Officials said there was no unusual shipping on the lake and the Canadian Armed Forces Air Base at Trenton, Ont., said it had no planes flying at the time.

James Malinoski, meteorologist at the National Weather Service in Rochester, expressed the theory the lights might have originated in shoreline communities and bounced across the clouds.

John Pelto, Canadian meteorologist at Trenton, disagreed. He said the clouds were too high for the bounce.

For the Birds

TORONTO (CP) — City council's buildings and development committee took a stand for the birds Tuesday when it withheld a building permit for a proposed 1,800-foot communications tower on the waterfront.

The committee delayed approval until it hears a report from the Ontario Federation of Naturalists on how to reduce the hazard the tower could present to migrating birds.

Second Walkout

KINGSTON, Ont. (C) — The second student walkout in Kingston schools protesting the introduction of compulsory final examinations was staged Tuesday at Kingston Collegiate and vocational institute.

Last week students at La Salle secondary school left classes over the policy which would require all students to write third-term examinations. Final exams were withdrawn Monday.

Tuesday about 400 students at KCVI refused to return to classes following a fire alarm which cleared the school around 9:30 a.m.

Police were called to the school and the majority of the school's 1,200 students returned to classes following the false alarm.

Attacks Media

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis said Tuesday Ontario's news media failed to give attention to the "good points" in the recent Ontario budget.

He told a fund-raising dinner attended by about 150 Progressive Conservative party members that the current media coverage of provincial affairs tends to emphasize what is negative. Reporters found it easier to be critical than positive.

Murder Charges

Two Collins Bay prisoners, Curtis J. Agawa, 23, and Leo M. Mallet, 24, both of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., were remanded in custody Tuesday to May 15 on charges of non-capital murder.

The pair are charged with the March 16 stabbing death of Terrance M. Landry, 24, of Sarnia, Ont., whose body was found under a bed in his cell.

Agawa is serving two years for public mischief and Mallett three years for breaking and entering with intent.

Cars Banned

WASAGA BEACH, Ont. (CP) — About 2,000 off-beach parking spaces will be available within two weeks when cars are banned from the beach as part of a redevelopment of this resort community on the southern shores of Georgian Bay. Wasaga Reeve Clare Robertson said Tuesday the proposed number of spaces is about equal to the number of cars that have blocked the beach every summer weekend.

Beer on Wheels

TORONTO (C) — Molson's Brewery Ltd. may be selling its products from a trailer on an employee's parking lot by June 14. The city approved a Molson request Tuesday to use a 12-by-35-foot portable building outside its Fleet Street brewery until a new retail store is opened in December, 1974. The present store is being demolished.

CLC Will Fight Nationalist Bid

OTTAWA (CP) — A special meeting of Canadian Labor Congress CLC affiliate leaders decided Wednesday to launch a campaign to fight threats from breakaway nationalist union groups, sources said today.

The campaign, to cost an estimated $1 million, must still be approved by the 26-member executive council of the CLC but, as many of the executive members attended the meeting here Wednesday, acceptance seems certain.

More than 80 leaders of CLC affiliates and the congress attended. National as well as international union leaders were present.

About 85 per cent of Canada's organized labor belong to international unions with headquarters in the U.S.

The international groups have been under strong pressure from all-Canadian unions recently, particularly British Columbia, where the United Steel Workers of America have been a special target of the nationalist groups.

The meeting Wednesday was closed and CLC officials declined comment after it ended.

But sources indicated that a seven-point plan to combat the nationalist challenge was adopted.

Included in the plan is a public relations drive to get across the view that the nationalist campaign is destructive of labor interests.

Greater efforts will be made to organize non-union labor, defend CLC affiliates against challenges, raise funds, plan and carry out various projects and co-operate with affiliates for offensive and defensive action.

An organizing committee also is to be established to include congress and affiliate officers.

Decisions made at the meeting go before the executive council when it meets here next week.

News Briefs

Witness Takes Pills

MONTREAL (CP) — An inquest into an apartment building fire which took eight lives here April 8 was adjourned for one day Wednesday because a witness took an overdose of pills waiting to testify. Police said the witness, reported to be a woman in her 30s, took the pills Wednesday while waiting in a police cell. The nature of the pills is not known they said.

Larry Sefton Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Larry Sefton, director of District 6, United Steelworkers of America, died in hospital Wednesday. He was 56. Mr. Sefton became director of the district 6 in 1953. Under his leadership, it increased in membership to its present 128,000 from 36,000. The district headquarters are in Toronto, but its membership covers Ontario, the Prairie provinces, British Columbia, the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Wildlife Bill Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — Wide ranging dissertations on the loftier ethics of ecological management ended Wednesday when the Commons completed second reading of a bill to give the government general authority over wildlife conservation. The proposed Canada wildlife act now goes to committee for detailed consideration. It permits Ottawa to make formal arrangements with the provinces for proper wildlife management and land conservation for wild life.

Lively Title

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Convicted Watergate conspirator James McCord, whose court room promise to "tell all" uncorked the crisis that is shaking the Nixon administration, is working on his memoirs while on bail pending sentence. Its working title, says Washington Post columnist Maxine Cheshire, is Malice in Blunderland.

Injured Discs Dissolved

MONTREAL (CP) — Enzyme injections to dissolve injured or diseased discs have been used with "dramatic" results in a Montreal hospital, an orthopedic surgeon said here Wednesday. Dr. Carl Sutton, of St. Mary's Hospital, said the enzyme, called chymopapain, eliminates the need for surgery.

Eisenhower Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — David Eisenhower, President Nixon's son-in-law, has taken a job as a baseball writer with the Philadelphia Evening and Sunday Bulletin.

Single Houses Supported

TORONTO (CP) — Government agencies should make it a policy to preserve single-family houses and keep them on the market as prices low-and moderate-income families can afford, the Metropolitan Toronto Social Planning Council said today.

The council, a welfare research organization, reported that it questioned 240 families with annual incomes of less than $9,000 living in apartments and found more than 80 per cent dreamed of living in a house some day.

But houses already are beyond the reach of those earning $6,000 to $9,000 a year, the report, said.

Referring to apartments covered in the survey, the board said:

"Virtually none of these units (except for public housing) has been designed and built purposely for families with children."

It urged more stress on alternate forms of housing and apartment improvement that would let children have more fun.

The Urban Development Institute, a builders' group, said there are 250,000 apartments in Metropolitan Toronto. There are no figures on how many occupants have children.

The survey showed that more than half the parents keep their children from playing some kinds of noisy games; that for 30 per cent of the children some areas of their building are forbidden territory, and safety hazards such as balconies worry 58 per cent of the parents.

Decision Today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Judge Matt Byrne promised a decision today after hearing final defence arguments on whether to dismiss charges in the Pentagon Papers trial against Dr. Daniel Ellsberg and not sending them to the jury.

Lawyers for Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo said the case should be thrown out because of White House interference and connection with the Watergate bugging scandal.

The defence had been pressing for dismissal ever since it was revealed that Watergate conspirators Howard Hunt and Gordon Liddy had masterminded a burglary of the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

The lawyers said government activities uncovered by the judge's two-week investigation of the matter showed that the defendants' rights to a fair trial were violated.

Beard Blocks Career

Millionaire Mayor Mel Lastman's taxi driving career has been cut short. Diamond Cab policy forbids drivers to have long hair or beards. Mr. Lastman wanted to drive a cab in Toronto to determine the problems cabbies face.

Gunfire Erupts In Beirut Centre

BEIRUT (Reuter) — Bursts of machine-gun fire rattled through a central district of Beirut early today, one of a series of sporadic incidents punctuating a general ceasefire around the Lebanese capital.

The shooting broke out soon after midnight. A witness said the first bursts came from a small private car, followed by army gunfire as it tried to force a nearby military checkpoint.

The incident occurred close to the scene of a bomb blast a few hours previously outside the new Beirut Chamber of Commerce—one of four mysterious explosions in the city Wednesday.

Elsewhere in the country, the worst violations of the fragile, day-old ceasefire were reported in the eastern Bekaa Valley close to the Syrian border.

Lebanese jets were into action against Palestinian guerrilla gunsites in a mountainous area where there have been persistent reports of Palestinian regular troops crossing into Lebanon from Syria.

Reports of the fighting came in late Wednesday night just as political moves to solve the Lebanese crisis appeared to be making some progress.

After a day of meetings and a survey by Arab diplomatic sources said the discussions held with Arab mediators at the presidential palace Wednesday had been "very encouraging."

They said there were signs of relaxation in the week-old confrontation between the authorities and the guerrillas.

The sources said there had also been encouraging contact with Syria in a bid to contain the situation on the border.

Earlier, the Lebanese national news agency reported that Foreign Minister Khalil Abu Hamad had been in touch with his Syrian counterpart, Abdel-Halim Khaddam.

In Cairo, the Egyptian government held a three-hour cabinet meeting Wednesday at which it accused Lebanon of attempting to liquidate the guerrillas. It reaffirmed Egypt's "total support for the Palestinian resistance and denunciation of attempts to liquidate the resistance in Lebanon," it was announced afterward.

Jailed Trio Expected To Be Freed

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the Quebec government is going to release the province's three top labor leaders from jail next Tuesday.

In a Quebec City dispatch, the newspaper says the cabinet has approved the release and justice department officials have drawn up the release papers.

The newspaper says it received word of the planned release from senior government officials in the premier's office and at the justice department.

The Globe and Mail says the three unionists will be allowed out on "temporary absences" of up to 15 days that will be renewed until the end of their one-year terms for contempt of court.

It says official announcement of the releases will be made as close as possible to next Tuesday.

The three leaders are Marcel Pepin of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, Louis Laberge of the Quebec Federation of Labor and Yvon Charbonneau of the Quebec Teachers Corp. All have been in jail since February. They were convicted for advising striking hospital workers to ignore a court order ordering them back to work in May, 1972.

Deadlock Broken

Talks to Start On Troop Cuts

VIENNA (AP) — Representatives of the United States and the Soviet Union announced today that the first plenary session of the preparatory talks on European troop reduction will be held here next week.

The statement, read first by the U.S. and then by the Soviet representative, said representatives of the 19 states participating the preparatory talks between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Warsaw Pact will begin their plenary session Monday.

Although no other details were revealed, the announcement meant a breakthrough in the talks, deadlocked since they began Jan. 31, and that some kind of compromise was reached.

Since the delegates from the two alliances began meeting here Jan. 31 they have been holding only informal private talks. One source suggested that on a number of issues, including the status of Hungary at the future talks, a compromise was reached.

The sources indicated that the NATO representatives accepted the Communist demand that Hungary be given observer status only in the substantive negotiations that are expected to start in the fall of 1973 session to the West, however, the Communists agreed that Hungary's position would be reconsidered once the conference starts.

The West had wanted Hungary to be a full member of the conference next week.

Stanfield States Liberals Abandoning Old Principles

VANCOUVER (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Wednesday night the Liberal party is causing concern by "wholesale abandonment of principles and policies that it had been espousing for more than four years."

"Since the election there has been a host of examples of newfound cynicism and reversals in policy—more than enough to raise serious questions about the consistency and credibility of the government," the Progressive Conservative leader told more than 600 persons attending a $100-a-plate political fund-raising dinner.

"Because trust and confidence in government are so basic to our democratic society, it is important that voters know what people in government believe in. It is essential that people know that their political leaders really believe what they say when they say it."

National Power Grid Advocated

OTTAWA (CP) — It is time to reconsider the concept of a national electric power grid, the Commons resources committee was told Wednesday by G. W. MacNabb, assistant deputy minister in the department of energy, mines and resources.

He said such a grid—through which provincial electricity utilities could freely exchange power—was said to be uneconomic when a study of the concept was done in 1967. The costs would outweigh the benefits.

But since then there has been some progress in interconnection and some benefit, security of supply, has contributed by increased interconnection.

Mr. MacNabb said the Atlantic provinces are to a large extent dependent on imported fuel oil for electricity generation and a grid would give them more freedom from foreign suppliers.

Other benefits of the grid would be:

—Utilities could meet peak electricity demands easier by drawing from other provinces. Different time zones meant different peak periods.

—A province with large power-generation developments could save money by installing generators faster than the needs of the province require. The surplus could be sent elsewhere until the province's needs required it.

The most serious gap between provinces is between Ontario and Quebec, he said.

Arrangements had been made for some power to be sent from Quebec to Ontario, but there was no permanent high-capacity link and in general little progress had been made in interconnection between those provinces.

Skylab Countdown Begun

Lightning Won't Delay Launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (CP) — A lightning bolt that struck the service structure alongside the Saturn 5 rocket that will launch the Skylab space station next Monday didn't delay the mission's twin countdown.

Engineers and technicians examined the rocket and space station carefully Wednesday, then announced there would be no effect on the Monday launch date.

While the countdown proceeded here, the astronauts spent their day at the Johnson Space Centre in Houston rehearsing their mission in the space station simulator and receiving briefings on experiments.

Cmdr. Pete Conrad, Dr. Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz were to begin today the major physical examination that is customary five days before launch. They go up Tuesday to board the space station for four weeks.

They are to execute a series of intricate manoeuvres over a 7½-hour period as they track down and link up with the big laboratory. Once aboard they will conduct numerous medical, scientific and earth-resources experiments in an effort to learn whether man can live and perform useful tasks in space over long periods.

The Skylab 2 and 3 crews will rocket up to the same skylab in August and November, each for eight-week stays.

The astronauts are spending three weeks in quarantine to make sure they do not come down with any virus infections or other ailments.

They will remain in Houston until Sunday when they fly to Cape Kennedy to prepare for their mission.

A strike that threatened to postpone the launch was settled Wednesday. The 125 pilots, who worked at a key tracking station, recently joined the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and were negotiating for a first contract.

Northern Electric Out in Montreal

With some 3,500 United Auto Workers members out on strike at Belleville, Kingston, Brumalea and London, Northern Electric Co. Ltd. is facing plant closures in Quebec as members of the Canadian Union of Communication Workers begin similar action to back contract demands.

On Tuesday 1,300 manual workers at a Northern Electric Co. Ltd. plant in Lachine, a suburb of Montreal, walked off the job. Another plant in the Point St. Charles district was operating normally yesterday after the Lachine workers prevented the afternoon shift from entering the plant Tuesday.

The Canadian Union of Communication Workers, representing production workers at four Montreal plants, is seeking hourly pay increases of $1.05 and 85 cents in a two-year contract, plus increased pension benefits. The company has offered a three-year contract with hourly increases of 28 cents, 13 cents and 13 cents plus a cost of living allowance.

The previous contract, under which strikers say they averaged $3.50 an hour, expired February 28. A company spokesman said negotiations were continuing.

In mid-February, production workers at the Belleville plant opted out of the Canadian Union of Communication Workers under which the Quebec production workers are unionized.

Well Met

Dr. Keith Archer, leader of a party of visiting Australians, met fellow Queenslander Rosemary Downs, a Rotary exchange student at Belleville Collegiate when he came to town Wednesday. Dr. Archer, from the Northern Queensland mining centre of Mount Isa, together with five of his countrymen, Miss Downs and exchange student Deborah Charters, were among guests of Belleville Rotary at lunch at the Four Seasons. The Australians were here under the Rotary Foundation Group Study Exchange designed to provide outstanding young professional men opportunities for study in other countries. # District Health Council Concept to be Studied

A first step toward possibly establishing a District Health Council based in Belleville was taken yesterday.

This year district health councils are to be set up in Ottawa, Hamilton, Niagara, Sudbury and Thunder Bay to act as advisory bodies to the Ontario Ministry of Health in allocating provincial grants to area health services. It is envisaged that they will set local priorities for the ministry's consideration.

At a meeting for people interested in health services development and related areas, sponsored by Belleville's United Community Services, a steering committee was elected. They will set up a representative committee to look into wide aspects of the advisability of setting up such a council in Belleville. Their studies will include following the reports and activities of the five district health councils to be set up this year.

Elected to the steering committee at yesterday's meeting by the 29 people attending were: Dorothy Blakely, Association of Learning Disabilities; Norah Cunningham, Hastings and Prince Edward Health Unit; Lionel Dockrill, MD; Tom Lagan, a psychologist with the Hastings County Board of Education; Virgilio O'Rourke, chairman of the Belleville Planning Committee; Area planning co-ordinator for the Ontario Ministry of Health, Dr. Robert Walker told the meeting. "Once you get the ball rolling it has to roll a long way before you get a health council. The further you get, the better you look for next year."

No definite target date was set for establishing a fully operational Belleville and District Health Council, but many of those addressing the issue assumed a possible work-up period of about two years.

"Health councils should be formed locally - it is not the intent of the ministry to impose anything on the communities," said Dr. Walker. "They will not have executive control of spending but will function in an advisory capacity."

"But the Government is very keen that they work out and it follows the Government will listen to and follow their advice," he said. It was hoped, he added, each council would consist of about 15 members more or less equally representing "people with an extensive knowledge of health services" and people from within the community to reflect opinion in the area.

Dr. Walker said it was hoped each council would cover an area containing a minimum population of about 100,000 except in exceptionally sparsely populated areas.

"There will be funds available, not vast funds, for setting up the councils," he said, "and funding of the services concerned as at present, but with the councils setting priorities."

Dr. Lionel Dockrill said, "it'd be smart politics in this community to set up a committee to go through the reports of the five councils being set up this year and make decisions on the basis of their experience - they're going to go through chaos this year."

Dr. Dockrills suggestion was incorporated into the motion which was responsible for founding the steering committee. The ad hoc committee that will follow is expected also to review the needs of the public in the border Belleville area and the ways in which these needs are being filled. There was some feeling at the meeting some services could be being duplicated at present.

Herschel Reeve Resigns Position

The new reeve of the municipality is Ivan Fowler, who steps up from the position of deputy-reeve. The new deputy-reeve is Joe Foster.

A long-time veteran of North Hastings municipal politics, Mr. Peever was the first reeve of Herschel township when about 15 years ago it separated from the township of Monteagle. Prior to the separation Herschel and Monteagle elected one council and were presented at county council by

Massed Bands, Choir To Perform May 17

A stirring evening of music is in store for Belleville May 17 when a massed bands and choir concert will be presented at the Arena at 8 p.m.

The massed bands from county secondary schools will be comprised of 250 members and the choir, will have 600 singers from North Hastings High School and elementary school throughout the county.

The Hastings County Music Educators' Association is sponsoring the concert, entitled We Believe in Music, through the courtesy of the Quinte Arts Council.

Conductor will be Martin Brandy, director of music at Fanshawe College, London, Ont. and former conductor of the London Symphony for 29 years. Mr. Boundy will be in Belleville the week of the concert to rehearse the 850 students together.

To defray the cost of music and of busing students from throughout the county to Belleville, the admission charge for the concert will be $1 a person.

Crossing Signal Request Repeated

Rawdon township council has repeated its request for signal protection at the CN level crossing east of Springbrook — the site of two crossing accidents already this year.

Last weekend a former Campbellfort man, Maxwell Barton, lost his life when his car was in collision with an empty northbound ore train.

Rawdon Reeve Ray Shortt said a knoll obstructed vision for eastbound traffic at the crossing and signal lights were necessary.

Council was told the railway has a 25-mile speed limit at this point but that many of the trains frequently exceed the limit.

The township called for signal lights at the crossing last year and the county council gave its approval.

Council directed that Tuesday's request be forwarded to the county roads and bridges committee and also that a letter be forwarded to CN asking that its trains comply with the speed limit at the Springbrook crossing.

It Was Flying Fish For Secluded Lake Areas

There were flying fish last week on the fringes of the Quinte district.

Planting of brook trout in secluded lakes was done by helicopter — a method which now has superceded use of winged aircraft in Ministry of Natural Resources stocking of hard-to-reach fishing spots in the Tweed district.

In past years, dropping the fish from the air had resulted in a higher mortality rate, although exact reasons for the losses are not known, said a ministry spokesman.

Planting by hand has now been adopted. In areas where lakes are not accessible by road, a helicopter is used. It hovers close to the surface so the fish can be softly lowered into the water.

Conventional Skircraft are used for the same soft stocking method on lakes where it is possible for float planes to land.

Lakes in the Denbigh area were among sites chosen for this year's planting program in the Tweed district. The trout were supplied by the ministry's White Lake hatchery.

Plumbing Inspector Proposed

Appointment of a county plumbing inspector to work in conjunction with the county building inspector will be investigated by the Hastings county finance committee.

County clerk - administrator Carl E. Bateman told council Tuesday that five municipalities are now participating in the county's building inspection program with another two having requested agreements.

He said, however, that nothing further had been done about the appointment of a plumbing inspector.

Bancroft Reeve John S. Hastin suggested that a county plumbing inspector should also do inspections for septic tank installations as well as check plumbing inside the foundation.

Currently inspections for septic tank installations are done by the county health department, but Reeve Hastin said this often delays construction.

Charge Dropped

A charge of damaging tombstones laid March 7 against two Belleville youths was dropped in provincial court Tuesday when it became obvious nobody had a clear view of the incident.

Terrance Summers, 19, of 8 Edgehill Rd., and Brian Globe, 18, of 11 Lewis St., were arrested early in the morning near Campbell Monument Co., 21 Bridge St. W. Both pleaded not guilty to a charge of wilful damage.

One witness, who lives next door to Campbell's, said he heard thumps in the company's front yard but could only see the jackets of two youths who appeared to be kicking something. Another man, admitting he had been drinking all evening, said he also heard noises from the opposite side of the street but could make out only the checkered jacket of one youth.

Several tombstones were found chipped and scratched. Damage was $75.

Adding an Oom-pah-pah Beat

One of the added attractions at Quinte Secondary School's senior band concert last night was The Hungry Five, a German band comprised of band members Bob Gresham, Glen Parsons, Dennis Sharpe, Barry Mason and Don Driver. More than 300 people heard the band, conducted by Doug Aselstine with Eugene Lang as master of ceremonies for the evening. In addition to the 40 - member senior band, listeners heard clarinet duets, a brass group and the Quinte Stage Band, that played for dancing after the program.

Students Good on Grants

MADOC — Centre Hastings Secondary School students have scored high in the competition for Opportunities for Youth grants.

The federal government accepted six of the seven projects submitted from the Madoc area and will give a total of $28,300 to the 36 students involved in the summer programs.

Three projects will be run at CHSS in Madoc under the title of Centre Hastings Community Services Centre. They are a nursery school, a recreational centre and a local history research centre. The combined project received $11,00 and will employ 14 students.

Second largest project is a scheme by 12 students to build floats. The festive floats will be used in parades in the Centre Hastings area. Thirteen students will be employed and the funds received will total $8,416.

Six students will run a recreational centre for mentally handicapped children this summer at the Bridgewater School for the mentally retarded in Actinolite. They will receive a grant of $7,000.

The Tweed Tourist Booth in the world's smallest jailhouse will be operated on an OFY grant this year, with three students sharing a $1,300 grant for the operation.

Warden Suggests Bay Bridge Move

PICTON — Prince Edward County warden Russell Thompson has suggested the Belleville Bay Bridge should be rerouted further to the west, linking with Jackson's Hill and the Loyalist College Road.

Warden Thompson, who attended a Rotary luncheon here Tuesday, spoke following comments on regional government by Coburg mayor Jack Heenan.

He said a connection to Highway 2 into Belleville could be made through a cloverleaf. He predicted "a tremendous amount of heavy traffic" would be reduced in Belleville streets.

Several county councillors attended the Rotary meeting held at Prince Edward Yacht Club.

Balance of Nature

Man . . . imagine for a moment that you are a bug and can roam at will, plundering and destroying everything in your path.

Call yourself one of the European winter moth species, for example, and there was the choice you were the scourge of the fruit growing and timber industries in the Maritimes. You had no natural enemies and back in 1954 you ravaged those enterprises to the tune of more than $2 million.

But Government scientists were on your track. In June of that year 31 flies of a species related to the housefly — and natural enemies of the winter moth — were released in a forest glade near Bridgewater, N.S. They had been imported as maggots from Germany, and raised at the former Entomological Laboratory here in Belleville.

By 1960 the winter moth plague began to recede. Five years later it still had a foothold and had spread to southern New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, but the flies went along too and it was no longer costing millions of dollars annually.

The story of this and other achievements of Government scientists at the laboratory here was told by Alan Edmonds in a recent issue of The Canadian Magazine. And fascinating reading it is too, particularly as it relates to the work done in Belleville.

It seems that most of the "foreign bodies" or insects "resident" in this country arrive in ship cargoes and Dr. James Kelleher believes the total may be as high as 800. A member of the Belleville staff until the closing of the laboratory last year, Dr. Kelleher is now based in Ottawa.

Two other scientists who spearheaded the search for a "natural enemy" of the winter moth are Harold Wylie, now with the University of Manitoba's zoology department, and Glen Wylie, now a federal government scientist in Winnipeg. With Welch undertaking the task in Germany and Wylie in England, between them they compiled a list of 63 creatures — parasites known to fill the bill as an aggressor vis-a-vis the winter moth. The scientists put the laboratory here picked on fly (cyzenis albicans in scientific parlance) as their major weapon.

Now the Belleville operation has been concluded. Presumably through this necessary work was done and it would be interesting to know to what extent this is so. One or two scientists are believed to have retained an active interest in this sphere of scientific study, although most of those who were working here are now dispersed in tasks elsewhere.

More on Jargon

The jargon of our times — is it here to stay? Very likely, for scarcely a day passes that someone or other, in government or business or at the organizational level of myriad other spheres, does not give expression to the cute new phraseology that has evolved.

We hear a lot about "grass roots," especially in the realm of politics, and in the same area it is fashionable, if a little corny, to speak of getting down to the "nitty gritty."

On a slightly more sophisticated (in itself a somewhat overworked word), even pompous level, there is a descriptive used the other day by Prime Minister Trudeau. He was speaking about the government's ministerial structure and said the Government will have to assess all the facts and make a "value judgment." Is this really peace or is this war which parades under the sham of some insecure government?

You make a decision these days, you make a "value judgment." And you don't go to school to "learn" anymore but to undergo the "learning process." Nor is the library where you obtain some of your information a library any more but a "resource centre."

It is all harmless enough, we suppose, to speak thus, but let's not forget the basics of the English language which after all is the most international of all tongues. And the most effective.

Zwick's Island Capers

Some strange sights at Zwick's Island: those teenagers who seem never to emerge from intercourse and ride the mechanical ducks and suchlike until their springs all but burst their supports. Four youths were doing just that at the weekend. And, of a slightly different and more engaging nature, were the Young Latin; with their girl friends, walking slowly over the turf to the music of a Spanish guitar. One of the young men with the Mediterranean look was playing the instrument; he showed real talent too as he plucked the strings and threw in some flamenco vocal as well. A strange setting indeed for a performance by a budding Segovia.

Reuben Slonim: A Dove Among the Hawks

Canadian Urges Fellow Jews to Seek Peace with Arabs

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

This week is the 25th anniversary of perhaps the most contentious event in post war history, the founding of the state of Israel in May, 1948.

Born in battle, surviving in war, constantly prepared to do the same in a future conflict, the nation which its former Premier Davi' Ben Gurion said in 1948 had to be created, "by natural and historic right," remains a warrior state.

Israel's celebrations this week concentrated heavily on that country's superb and in terms of lesser Arab fighting prowess, superior military prowess. The most successful citizens' armed forces in history pressed themselves and displayed modern weapons on a scale unknown in the warlike Middle East.

Israel's other equally-impressive accomplishments, the post-Suez economic miracle and the Middle East, her offering of a homeland at last for millions of homeless and persecuted world Jews, have somehow been downgraded in this week of self-glorification of the armed forces.

Reuben Slonim, Canadian rabbi, journalist and former Associate Editor of the defunct Toronto Telegram he's written a book Both Sides Now (Clarke Irwin and Co. Ltd., Toronto) to say this military emphasis is wrong and will not help to solve the Middle East crisis.

Rabbi Slonim is a dove surrounded by hawks who attack his proposals for compassion and the search for rapprochement with the Arabs. Neither his Jewish brethren nor their Arab adversaries are yet prepared to accept the gentle rabbi's basic prognosis that Israel's assured future depends more on peace negotiations with Arabs and not on her ability to make war, over them.

Author Slonim, who made over 75 extended visits to Israel and most of her Arab neighbors—in just as many years, has written in a compassionate and precise way about his views.

He deals mainly with the personalities involved, the mighty as well as the humble, Jew, Arab (the only prominent Jewish journalist and rabbi to talk with the late Egyptian president Nasser), the angry students at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem and in Lebanon, but angry on behalf of opposing causes.

In a sensitive and frank chapter, The Militone, author Slonim writes, "It is argued that Arabs don't want to be our brothers, that they are filled with hate and bitterness. Don't they are . . . My concern is that Jews search their hearts as violence rises and the blood of all Abraham's children stains the land men call holy. Jews have an excruciating task, to preserve the integrity and security of the Jewish state, while guarding against moral myopia and arteriosclerosis of the conscience."

One would guess Slonim has reached this point in his analysis only after personal declaration against the stupidity of insisting who came first in history to Palestine and who is truly responsible for the festering sore of Arab refugees without negotiating on their plight. And one would be right.

In fact, Rabbi Slonim's personal troubles with Jewry began with his criticism of the fate of Arabs in the state of Israel and of the official Israeli view of who is to blame for the uprooting of Palestinian Arabs from their pre-1948 homes and farms.

A substantial difference between Slonim and other Israeli specialists is that the rabbi at some personal risk has interviewed leaders in Egypt, Lebanon and Jordan.

With sabre rattling on both sides still the only response to solving the Middle East crisis, Rabbi Slonim suggests at . . . "double-edged mission" for Israel should be repeated. This is acceptance of the Arabs as "the best kind of security and to hold on while looking for it." Who is Israel or Islam will be the first to heed his plea?

Middle East Instability Could Hit Oil Flow

By CY FOX

BRUSSELS (CP) — A warning about the danger of highlights literally going out in Europe for sheer want of electrical power may serve to instil a renewed sense of urgency within the Common Market about the need for a co-ordinated policy on energy covering all member states.

The grim forecast from the European parliament's energy committee follows President Nixon's recent steps to ease the shortage of petroleum in the United States and coincides with a new outbreak of trouble in the oil-rich Middle East.

The latter development, this time pitting Arab against Arab in the Lebanon, again demonstrates the chronic instability affecting much of the area from which the West derives vast quantities of its oil.

At the same time, bargaining about the new prices to be paid to oil-producing countries by the western firms which actually are extracting the precious fluid and conveying it to the West has been dragging painfully.

In Western Europe, there can be no co-ordinated energy policy unless the council of ministers—all-powerful in approving recommended courses of action for the Common Market—gives such moves its blessing.

The council will meet later this month on the energy issue. The parliamentary committee has called for more than one meeting of the council to approve proposals for increasing energy supplies to the community and developing new sources.

One commentator in Brussels has urged that the market adopt a common policy for participating in exploitation of the oil resources of the Arctic and northern Canada.

But under existing Common Market rules the question of collaboration will likely be left to the firms themselves, ostensibly acting in accordance with the requirements of commercial competition.

The key event, if the parliamentary committee's forebodings are an indication of general feeling, is main European preoccupation may be with ways of effectively using oil resources closer to home in helping to fill the Community's future energy needs.

This means the North Sea. And the major worry as far as that area is concerned is that excessive quantities of the oil produced there may be siphoned off to countries outside the Common Market.

What advocates of a co-ordinated community energy program want in this connection is a harmonizing of the way various market states along the North Sea grant concessions to exploiting companies—the ultimate aim being to ensure appropriate supplies for the nine-country community.

But the Middle East and Africa are certain to remain necessary and major sources for West European petroleum needs, which by 1985 may rise to an annual rate of 1.1 billion tons compared with the present 685 million.

Such figures readily explain why, along with advocacy of such steps as a community-wide co-ordination of stockpiling policies, there now is much emphasis being placed on the idea of governments instead of private companies representing the interests of the great consuming countries in their dealings with the producing states.

Unemployment Decrease

Grasby La Voix de l'Est: Unemployment has decreased in Quebec and in the other provinces. Perhaps not enough for us to shout it from the rooftops but enough for us to draw attention to it.

In March, according to Statistics Canada, the number of unemployed was 218,000 compared with 253,000 in February and 225,000 in March, 1972. The unemployment rate has therefore decreased from 9.7 to 8.9 per cent.

As observers remarked, Mr. Bourassa's promise of 103,000 jobs made for the year 1970, has become a reality this year. That is to say, two years late.

One must admit, however, that since 1970, the situation has not been very easy, either from a social or economic viewpoint. Quebec has passed through periods hardly conducive to fowering the unemployment level.

The minister attributes this evolution to his government's policies. Certainly, Mr. Bourassa has in fact, more than once, shown proof of himself than the New Democratic leader in the House of Commons, Mr. David Lewis, who, in his comments, does not hesitate to say that the decrease in unemployment is due to economic policy which he says has inspired on Mr. Trudeau's minority government.

The least one can say is that Mr. Lewis is exaggerating. A new policy cannot exert such an influence on employment across the country in only a few months.

Rather, it is towards the middle of the summer that one will be able to analyse the effects of the government's fiscal and economic measures.

In sober respects, one must not forget that the arrival of the good weather is always marked by a resumption of seasonal activities, therefore by a decrease in unemployment. And the situation in our opinion, will continue to improve in the coming months.

According to Mr. Bourassa, Quebec should see its lowest unemployment rate in six years this year because of measures taken to accelerate the evolution of the economy, particularly the industrialization of urban centres. Huge projects are being developed. They will require considerable manpower.

This certainly does not mean that this problem is heading for a solution. Unemployment will remain a major problem for a long time due to the phenomenal increase in manpower in our province over the last few years. . . .

Nursing Home Fees

The Intelligencer,
Editor,

There appears to be confusion on the part of some nursing home residents and their relatives as to the recent increase in charges paid by the residents.

The rates for care in Ontario's private nursing homes are set by provincial regulations; nursing home administrators have no control over the charges assessed to patients for daily accommodation. For 1973 the maximum rates set by the Ontario Government are as follows:

Standard accommodation
- $13.50
- Semi-Private accommodation - $16.75
- Private accommodation - $20.00

The provincial insurance plan contributes toward payment of these charges is a flat rate of $8.50; an increase of $2.50 over the 1972 rate. The increases in the controlled charges to the residents are respectively: $2.50, $0.75 and $1.00. These increases were fixed by the province, not by the nursing homes.

It is important for the public to understand that Ontario privately-owned nursing homes are required to operate under a price control system. This is not the case in most management rights and leaves nursing homes at the mercy of the substantial inflation that has occurred over the past year. Ontario's nursing homes fully deserved the recent increase in reimbursement for their services.

R. E. THOMPSON,
Executive Assistant,
Ontario Nursing Home Association.

Life really begins at the age when the "rock of ages" takes over. Contrary to what you may think the Lord is in favor of you having more of life and less and more reason to live it. You can live it up all the way to Heaven.

Education Minister Wells And Expenditure Levels

The following is the text of a letter from Ontario education minister Thomas Wells to Alan D. Deacon in reply to a letter from the latter which appeared in The Intelligencer recently.

Dear Mr. Deacon:

I would like to clarify a few of the points that you raised in your letter of April 12 to the Belleville Intelligencer.

The Government has, as you know, increased its contribution toward the cost of education from 46 per cent in 1969 to 58 per cent in 1972. At the same time provincial grants to school boards were increased to $1,147,000,000 last year from $679,000,000 in 1969.

In order to meet its commitment to account for 60 per cent of the total cost of elementary and secondary school education, the Government found it necessary to decelerate the rate of increase in education expenditures which had been averaging 15 per cent a year during the late 1960's.

The Government introduced the expenditure ceilings in 1971. The ceilings permitted school boards to increase their ordinary expenditures for elementary school purposes from $395 per pupil in 1972 to $520 in 1973, an increase of 6 per cent. In addition, weighting factors recognized special needs of the boards, and lowspending boards are permitted to increase their expenditures faster than the average board.

To be more specific, the Hastings County Board of Education can spend about 10 per cent more for each elementary school pupil in 1973 than it did last year, and about 6 per cent more per secondary school pupil.

As I'm sure you understand, the Government's assuming 60 per cent of the total cost of education (which is reached this year by adding an additional $90,000,000 for grants to school boards) does not mean that the province pays 60 per cent of each school board budget. In every case the 60 per cent per pupil, the province's share of the cost of education may be less than 35 per cent, while provincial grants may cover as much as 75 per cent of the school costs in areas of low assessment.

The information I have indicates that the majority of Ontario's taxpayers can now relax and that most boards are able to meet them and still maintain — and even improve — the high standard of their programs.

My Ministry's chief concern is, of course, to provide a high quality educational program for the students of Ontario and at the same time recognize the limitations of our people to pay for the many services they receive from their Government. We are confident that the rate of increase in the costs of education can be controlled without affecting adversely the quality of the programs in the schools.

THOMAS L. WELLS,
Minister of Education.

Conservative Ranks Are Divided

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park

Unless there is a marked improvement in party welfare between now and when Premier Davis next goes to the country, he may find a number of his long-time members are no longer with him.

The dissent in PC party ranks is extraordinary, and probably quite beyond what you might expect unless you happen to be close to it.

As an example, one veteran member, a dedicated Conservative of whom you would hardly believe anything except complete loyalty, is talking retirement.

This man has actually had more than 700 letters from constituents in the past while protesting government policies and actions.

In itself this represents an extraordinary expression. But what makes it very telling is that the letters are almost unanimous in the subject. A good many were objecting to the lack on energy but others were taking exception to action in other fields.

They represent a widespread dissent.

This particular member says that if the situation continues he will have no choice but to retire. He does not intend to face a bad defeat.

And he is by no means alone. Others are talking the same line.

And what makes the situation particularly serious for Davis is that the members are not only concerned about public feeling but are unhappy about the premier himself.

It is common to hear members say that the premier is unavailable to them. That except for caucus they can't register their opinions and complaints.

They also don't like the advisors around the premier.

He brought in a new group of top men, and the members feel that these men are not experienced in politics and he listens almost exclusively to them.

Then there have been some of his actions they feel are politically bad. A notable one has been the government's refusal to table the logs of its aircraft.

The feeling among private members is that this has only built up a situation which otherwise probably would have amounted to very little.

So there is a bad feeling in the back benches and it could result in real harm to both the premier and the party.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winston Churchill became the prime minister of Britain 33 years ago today in 1940—to lead the struggle against the Axis powers in the Second World War. Churchill, then 65, embarked on a remarkable career of five years in which he demonstrated his gifts of statesmanship and leadership. All through the war he inspired the people of Britain and the Commonwealth with his resolution and unswerving confidence in the Allied victory.

1908—The United States atomic-powered submarine Triton surfaced off Delaware after an 83-day, 41,573 mile submerged circumnavigation of the globe.

1914—A new Egyptian Ferrorail was made secretary of the United States Navy.

1915—The convoy system was first used by British ships to combat the submarine menace.

1875—Ottawa passed the Homestead Exemption Act.

Canada to Follow U.S. Lead on Car Emissions

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government plans to continue following the United States lead in auto emission standards, but cautiously, says Environment Minister Jack Davis.

"We don't see the end of the road at all clearly—nor does the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA)," Mr. Davis said.

The environment minister said that it is "hard for politicians to be adamant" when even environmental experts are uncertain about final standards for exhaust emission standards.

He was speaking at a news conference concluding a two day closed meeting of federal and provincial environment ministers here. The conference dealt with such topics as auto emission standards, national water quality standards, industrial pollution control and the government's proposed environmental contaminants bill.

Mr. Davis said that the federal government intends to wait until the last possible moment before setting final emission standards.

The minister noted that the EPA has recently eased its standards and delayed implementation of the deadline for meeting the limits.

Automobile manufacturers in the U.S. now will have until 1976, rather than 1975, to cut carbon monoxide and hydrocarbon emissions to 90 per cent below the standards set in 1970—except in California.

Calorie Countdown at Stirling

Glutton trouble, not gland trouble makes most people fat.

More than 75 women learned this and other facts about fat Tuesday at the Ontario government's Home Economics Branch "Calorie Countdown" presented in Stirling.

Two home economists, Bonnie LaCroix and Ann Urquhart, told the women the clue to losing weight is understanding the difference between the amount of food you want and the amount of food you need.

Miss Urquhart explained that different people have slow basal metabolic rates and therefore require less food than others. And some people, she said, make fat less readily than others.

To determine the amount of food a person needs, their size, sex, age, climate and activity should be looked at, she says.

According to the economists, women should multiply their median ideal weight by 18 - a pre-determined factor for all women of moderate activity - to obtain the number of calories necessary to maintain their ideal weight. To lose weight, reduce that number by about 1,000 calories, they recommended.

As always, they stressed, a doctor should be consulted before beginning a diet.

They suggested a weight loss of two pounds per week is desirable.

"Some diets are even potentially dangerous," she said.

Miss LaCroix warned against diets that promise spectacular results painlessly.

"Commonsense tells you it doesn't work that way. Remember it's your health you're playing with," she said.

While dieting, they said, Canada's Food Guide can provide a sensible eating plan. It supplies about 1700 to 1900 calories of plain food.

"There's no frills to it doesn't talk about jams and sour cream," Miss Urquhart said.

During a food demonstration, the home economists prepared several foods suitable for dieters, including . .

HERB COTTAGE CHEESE DIP

one cup plain cottage cheese two tbsps. milk
two tbsps. chopped green onion ½ tsp. salt
few grains cayenne
two tbsps. finely chopped dill pickle few drops tabasco sauce

Blend in blender or beat with rotary beater the cottage cheese and milk. Combine with remaining ingredients. Chill. Use as a dip for raw vegetables including carrots, turnip, celery sticks, cucumber fingers, green pepper strips. Ten calories per tablespoon. (This can be used as salad dressing if thinned with milk).

Platform Shoes And Backaches

LONDON (CP) — Girls who wear those exaggerated platform shoes are tottering straight into trouble, warns a leading British chiropodist.

George Lewis of the Institute of Chiropodists has raised something of a stir here with his attack on the current wave of high platform shoes, some with wooden or cork soles six to eight inches thick.

Lewis told a conference of the Institute of Chiropodists that if the craze continues, Britain will become a nation of chronic invalids. He said platform shoes, by throwing the body off balance, can cause swollen knees, back pains, bone deformities and potential trouble in childbirth because of slackened abdominal muscles.

So strongly do Lewis and his fellow-chiropodists feel about what he calls these "monstrosities" that they plan to ask the government to have warnings printed on shoe-boxes, similar to the health-hazard warnings on cigarette packs.

Predictably, platform-wearers reacted with scorn to what they saw as just another piece of male bossiness.

"I don't know why you male chauvinist killjoys are always on wasting your time," said columnist Linda Lee-Potter in The Daily Mail. "I can advise you for certain that women will never ever take any notice.

A newspaper survey found that about half the platform-wearers interviewed agreed the shoes were uncomfortable but they were prepared to put up with backache and sprained ankles to be in the height of fashion.

Write It Out ... Then Don't Mail

By DORIS CLARK

"Doris, I love you, as most readers do. I still have the diet and the party plans that I sent to you for and I very often write out my problems for you.

"By the time I've written them out and read it over once for errors, I usually know what you'd say and don't have to mail it. So you help me indirectly very often. Thanks." — Mrs. X.

What a lovely message! And it is a fact, folks, that by writing down what bothers us, we can often do the analysis that puts us on the road to a solution.

I remember a note I got some time ago which said, after three pages of problem outline: "There now! I feel much better to have written it all down, even if you never read it!"

Try it yourself next time you face a poser on your human-relations front. Write it all down. You might try making columns for pros and cons, too.

Dear Doris: I had some wonderful help from Marjorie Major, and I wanted you to know about it.

She has given me great encouragement about my writing, and her lessons have improved the way I express myself.

Now I am not taking any more tranquilizers - thanks to God - and Marjorie Major! I have been such a lonely person, and now life seems to have a lot more meaning for me. — Aspiring Writer.

Dear Aspiring: Such are the miracles which can be worked in human lives when they get a chance for some self-expression!

(Note to other aspiring writers: Marjorie Major's correspondence course is helping many Canadians now. Her address is 52 Dutch Village Road, Armdale, N.S.)

Dear Doris: Our 25-year-old son-in-law spends his leisure time sketching, mostly bare-breasted female pictures, and pins them up throughout his home. Granted he has some talent and is still an adolescent but he is also our father of a bright little boy.

Surely after five years of marriage, a family, a responsible job and dozens and dozens of sketches depicting his plight (a brother superseded him at the "lunch counter" at a very early age) he can forget for the sake of his family?

Thank you for letting me get this off my chest. No pun intended! — Alarmed.

Dear Alarmed: Adolescent! At 25? Yet your suggestion that he still unconsciously resents that nose-out-of-joint childhood may have something to do with his indiscretions. Trouble is, he sees nothing wrong with these artistic productions.

My concern would be more to prevent a similar pattern when a second child comes. Much depends on the mother in the case. Right now, as a well-behaved mother-in-law, you'd better keep out of it.

(Please make letters to Doris, in care of this newspaper, as brief as possible - not more than two pages. And remember that stamped envelope.)

If you have never taken the News Quiz you have missed 52 opportunities in the past year to improve yourself. Do not let this go on.

Senators Would Grant Immunity To Aide J. Dean

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — A Senate committee's decision to seek immunity from prosecution for at least one key witness in the Watergate bugging scandal could lead to disclosures embarrassing for some administration officials.

Immunity proposed for former White House counsel John Dean, if approved by the courts, would clash with the principle of executive privilege, which the White House has involved in respect of testimony by officials on their confidential relationship with President Nixon.

Dean, whose name has been directly linked with the bugging or attempts to cover it up, is understood to be willing to tell all he knows to the Watergate grand jury in return for immunity from prosecution.

But immunity is reported to have been refused there on the grounds that government lawyers believe they have enough evidence from other sources to prosecute without Mr. Dean's assistance.

Testimony before the Senate select committee investigating the bugging will be taken, beginning May 17, in proceedings separate from the grand jury hearings, and the committee announced Wednesday it is prepared to grant Dean limited immunity from prosecution.

Dean might want to testify under immunity only before the grand jury, but the Senate committee has the power to compel him to talk to it under a promise of immunity from prosecution, if the courts agree.

If granted immunity by the committee, he could not be prosecuted for statements he made in the hearing room, although evidence gathered elsewhere could be used against him at a trial.

The United States federal court here is believed ready to grant Dean immunity in his appearances before the Senate committee, once the attorney-general has had a maximum of 30 days to consider the matter. Senator Sam Ervin (Dem. N.C.) chairman of the Senate committee, has asked that the 30-day period be waived.

If Dean refused to testify under immunity, he could be cited for contempt of Congress and sent to prison. If he agreed to testify, he would be discussing executive privilege, since presumably he would be asked about his relationship and any conversations he might have had with Nixon.

Executive privilege is used to prevent congressional committees from questioning government officials about their relationship with the president or about matters of national security.

Last Friday, the White House issued guidelines in the Watergate case, saying that testimony by past and present members of the White House to the grand jury, the FBI and the select committee should not "cover conversations with the president, conversations among themselves involving communication with the president and . . . presidential papers."

The White House strenuously denied that the guidelines were an attempt to gag witnesses and said they were issued as guidelines because of the president's desire to hold the invocation of executive privilege to a minimum.

Nixon Says Guilty Will Face Courts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has promised that "the guilty will be brought to justice," but Senate testimony about high-level involvement in clandestine activities revealed new questions about the Watergate scandal.

Nixon told a $1,000-a-plate Republican campaign dinner Wednesday night: "I can assure you that we will get to the bottom of this deplorable incident."

In a Watergate development earlier in the day, the director of the Central Intelligence Agency told senators that a trusted Nixon adviser, John Ehrlichman, smoothed the way for Howard Hunt to obtain CIA materials later used in the office burglary.

CIA Chief James Schlesinger said the agency didn't know what Hunt's mission was but that giving him the aid was ill-advised, even though Ehrlichman, who gave up his White House post last week, was said to have asked that Hunt receive agency assistance.

Hunt, a one-time CIA employee, has testified he took part in the bugging of the [illegible] of a Los Angeles psychiatrist's office in an attempt to photograph the doctor's files on Daniel Ellsberg, defendant in the Pentagon papers trial.

At the time, Hunt was working for the White House as a "security-affairs consultant." Nine months later, he was arrested in the break-in at Democratic headquarters in the Watergate here.

Shortly after the Watergate arrests, Schlesinger said, the CIA gave an account of its dealings with Hunt to top justice department officials and Earl Silbert, chief prosecutor in the Watergate case.

It is not clear what was done with the information before the CIA's involvement was disclosed by The New York Times this week.

Senator Henry M. Jackson, (Dem.-Wash.) said "it is clear and shocking" that the agency violated the 1947 National Security Act by allowing itself to be used as a "costume house," supplying disguises to White House officials involved in domestic, covert operations, namely the psychiatrist-office break-in.

Senator John McClellan (Dem.-Ark.), chairman of the Senate appropriations committee, indicated he may expand his investigation into the affair.

Ann Landers
'Betrayed' Wants to Squeal on Husband

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is in his early 40s, good-looking, and a key executive in this town. We have a good life, two lovely teen-agers and I never thought I had anything to worry about.

To my surprise I learned six months ago that he has been seeing a woman one night a week, at her apartment. She is also an executive with the firm, and eight or 10 years older than he is. They never go anyplace together—just have this weekly tryst.

I don't want a separation or a divorce, and I'm sure he would never leave me. But I'm afraid he might be discovered by the town busybodies. It would ruin his reputation and possibly jeopardize his position with the company.

I've thought of going to the president of the firm and asking him to break up the tweosome to prevent a possible scandal. I know the man well and can trust him not to betray me.—EO

Dear EO: Interesting that you are concerned about being "betrayed," yet you do not view your plan to tell on your husband as a betrayal to him. My advice is to stay away from the president and talk to your husband.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 15-year-old daughter all of a sudden stopped everything. She was an A student and stopped studying. Her piano hasn't been touched in months. She used to take swimming instructions and was championship material. She has stopped going to the pool.

All she is interested in is boys and driving the car. I've detected faint whiffs of liquor on her breath. Her father is disgusted with her. I am trying to "read him believe she is going through a stage" although I'm beginning to wonder. Her curfew is 11:00 p.m. and she always makes it. She helps in the house and we get along fine. How strict should I be?—Wasting Mem

Dear Mem: The girl might be testing to see how far she can go—and, in my opinion, you've let her go too far. Have a talk. Tell her she must get back to studying, plus either swimming or the piano. Let her choose. She should not be going out on school nights, except for special occasions. If you have any real evidence that she's been drinking, I suggest counselling. That is a serious matter at age 15.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently my husband and I took our children to see a G-rated movie at the local theatre. We enjoyed it thoroughly, and so did the children. But the previews of the coming attraction were so explicitly sexy that my husband and I were embarrassed to death. We saw several parents yanking their kids out of there, but we decided to sit it out.

A few weeks ago we had the same experience, only it wasn't quite as much stuff, it was bloody, violence. I actually became nauseated.

I telephoned the theatre manager about the last episode and he said they have no control over the previews, that they get the whole package and there is no way to cut it out of the reel. It seems to me, Ann, that a theatre manager could do something to protect his customers against unexpected embarrassment. Please check and let me know.—Red-Faced in Durham

Dear Red: According to my Chicago expert, theatre managers have a choice between "red-b-a-ded" or "green-faced" previews. No manager need show a preview that will embarrass parents. My advice is to inform the manager that you are aware of these facts.

Air Canada, CP To Divide Market

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's international air policy, now being overhauled, will likely split the world market between Air Canada and CP Air.

A government source said one of the most important changes is expected to be a rough percentage division between the two carriers of the international air cargo and passenger market. This would ensure that neither airline has unfair advantage over the other.

In addition, the carriers will probably be assigned new territory under the policy of naming CP Air or Air Canada as the Canadian carrier to different parts of the world, Africa, for example, has not been granted to either one.

The source says the new policy will not be announced for some time, at least a month from now.

The policy review is taking longer than expected. Transport Minister Jean M archand estimated early in March that it would be announced in m id-April.

He expressed concern in a March 23 Commons speech that Air Canada is not guaranteed a dominant position on international routes.

He noted that domestic air policy assures Air Canada 75 per cent of the Canadian market. But no such division exists for international routes served by Canadian airlines.

Unless these limits were spelled out clearly, CP Air could replace Air Canada as the major international carrier, he said.

The government source said that a percentage split on international routes would enable the two airlines to plan ahead. The split would be b ased o n current and expected cargo and passenger business. The airlines needed clear long-term guides so they could plan their equipment and manpower needs.

Changes in the air policy are considered necessary to deal with the growing air passenger market.

The government has concluded new air agre ments with Germany, Italy and China in the last year. Talks are underway with the U.S. on a new bilateral agreement.

Similar discussions are expected with such countries as Spain, the Netherlands, Lebanon, Switzerland and Yugoslavia.

The government wants air policy clearly stated so that when new routes are awarded there will be no political bickering between CP Air and Air Canada.

Canadian Doctor Forecasts Acupuncture's Common Use

MONTREAL (CP) — Acupuncture, used to treat illness and relieve pain in China for thousands of years, will be used commonly in Canadian hospitals to eliminate pain during surgery within the next few years, says Dr. Gustav Gingras, president of the Canadian Medical Association.

Dr. Gingras, who led a recent 35-member Canadian medical delegation to China, told a news conference Wednesday Canadian doctors could learn acupuncture best by studying it in China.

"It would take between three and six months in China for a Canadian anesthetist to learn the technical method of applying acupuncture," Dr. Gingras said.

"However, he would have to be advisable to send over medical teams with translators."

In China, acupuncture is used to treat a wide range of conditions and illnesses, including tumors, deafness, schizophrenia and epilepsy.

Members of the Canadian medical team viewed its use in several operations, including the removal of a brain tumor and partial removal of a stomach, "and there is absolutely no doubt that it works."

Acupuncture — analgesia — is sometimes supplemented by the use of local anesthetics and is never used on children under the age of 16 or on mentally-ill patients.

Since there are only about 10 or so qualified Chinese-speaking anesthetists in Canada, it would be impossible to understand and speak Chinese.

This is one of those rare occasions. The Sports Bug. Special paint job. Custom striping.

Only one problem. When we said the Sports Bug is a limited production car, we weren't putting you on.

We made a small number, and then, so to speak, we broke the mold. So if you want one, let's hear it. Like, now?

Even Newfoundland Turning to High-rises

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland's skyline is slowly but surely changing as skyscraper fever which started a few years ago continues to grow.

The island's latest and most ambitious undertaking is a 20-storey hotel and office building rising in downtown St. John's.

The $16.5-million structure, which will house a 300-room Canadian National hotel with dining facilities for 1,000, is expected to be completed by late 1975.

As a result of the building boom St. John's is becoming known as Eastern Canada's most rapidly expanding city.

Long dismissed as a town of basement apartments, St. John's got its first two luxury buildings in 1969 when the $4 million Elizabeth Towers apartment building and the Royal Trust building, a 12-storey, $3 million office structure, were completed.

Since then several multi-million dollar residential buildings, elaborate shopping plazas and spacious recreational centres have been erected.

The outports are also undergoing a face lifting with larger schools and supermarkets replacing the one- and two-room schools and the corner grocery.

In addition to the $18.5 million Atlantic Place in St. John's, the city is currently the site of several large construction projects including a multi-million dollar health-science building at Memorial University.

Construction here last year was valued at just under $74 million. Before Confederation in 1949 it averaged $500,000 annually.

Last year the construction industry contributed $900 million to Newfoundland's economy compared with $136 million in 1950.

The Newfoundland and Labrador Construction Association predicts that 1973 will be fairly active for the industry with residential construction accounting for a large portion of the building. About 400 housing starts are expected with a total expenditure of about $100 million.

It is estimated that there is a shortage of 12,000 housing units throughout the province.

Some major construction projects are expected to be completed this year.

The Come-By-Chance oil refinery on Placentia Bay is scheduled to begin partial production by August and is expected to be in full production in December.

Meanwhile, plans are being laid for the start of a second refinery at Come-By-Chance, the largest in Canada.

A $200 million linerboard mill—producing the smooth cardboard used on each side of the corrugated centre piece —has gone into partial production at Stephenville.

The controversial project was started by promoter John C. Doyle in 1968 with loans guaranteed by the former Liberal government. Later, the Progressive Conservative government assumed liability for about $90 million in loans and expenses when it took over the mill.

Finance Minister John Crosbie said in the Newfoundland legislature recently that the federal government has agreed to a new tax equalization formula which clears the way for meaningful discussions of the proposed development of the Lower Churchill River.

The project is estimated to cost $500 million and will produce 3.4 million horsepower a year.

The hydroelectric scheme will not compare with the initial developments in size but will take several years to complete and provide employment for thousands of construction workers.

In other fields of commercial construction a $10 million trawler contract has been signed between Atlantic Fish Processors and Marystowns shipyard.

The province's denominational education centre is asking the provincial government to commit at least $100 million for projected school construction in the next few years. About one third of the province's schools were built 20 years ago and now are obsolete.

Modern Man Believes He Has Right to Run

HALIFAX (CP) — The executive director of the Nova Scotia commission on drug dependency sees society moving in a direction in which man feels he has the right to run away from problems.

"He doesn't seem to feel that he must learn to cope," said Marvin Burke, the commission's top operating official. And society is letting the shirker get away with it because "our society sells dependency."

Burke spoke of social attitudes as a prime goal of the commission in its initial years and the importance of preventive measures.

"No one ever solved a problem in terms of disease by treating only those who were ill. Preventive measures protect the next generation from the disease," said Burke.

The commission is responsible for the development and co-ordination of programs dealing with prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and education in the field of drug dependency.

Mr. Burke said he sees drugs and other chemicals on which people become dependent as permanent fixture in present society.

"We have to change people's attitudes towards them and make people aware of the influences in society which promote attitudes of dependency."

He added, "We are taught at an early age to develop an expectancy for instant gratification of desires.

For instance, commercial advertising brought credit to the point where instant fulfillment was possible. Accompanied in some cases by false imagery, it attempted to make people believe that certain behavior or the attainment of certain products was the equivalent of success.

"To offset effects of such advertising on developing individuals, we need training in life value , for we are not taught how to live," Mr. Burke said.

Giant Race

LONDON (CP) — The average Briton today is three inches taller at five feet nine inches than his grandfather, claims the medical publication Interface. If the growth continues at the same rate, Britain might be a nation of giants within 100 years, the article says. Better medicine, dieting and less intermarriage are suggested as the causes of added inches.

Farm Labor Scarce

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — Concerned by the shortage of farm labor in this area, the Norfolk County council says the qualification work period for unemployment insurance should be reduced.

It also said in a brief approved Tuesday night that such federal projects as the Local Initiatives Program (L.I.P.) and Opportunities For Youth (OFY) should be curtailed.

The brief, to be submitted to the federal and provincial governments, said the time a person must work to qualify for unemployment insurance benefits should be lengthened to as much as 30 weeks.

"In our interviews we found time after time workers would put in only eight weeks at any one place to satisfy the qualifications of the UIC Act," said the brief.

It's OK to argue with the kids about the News Quiz answers. Just be sure you looked them up first.

Whelan Argues Consumers Spoiled by Low Food Cost

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan has accused price-conscious consumers of being "spoiled" by low food costs.

"I know consumers are angry about rising food prices," he said in a speech prepared for delivery to the Ottawa-Carleton Liberal Association a day after Statistics Canada reported that food prices jumped 2.6 per cent between March and April.

"The fact of the matter is that consumers have been spoiled by the low food prices we have been enjoying for more than 20 years," Mr. Whelan said.

"Consumers have been spending less and less of their income on food, while receiving higher and higher quality and built-in convenience."

Mr. Whelan has been the Liberal cabinet's most vocifer ous spokesman at a time when consumer groups have organized to boycott products in an effort to curb rising costs. But Prime Minister Trudeau has said the agriculture minister is merely speaking his own mind when he comments on the subject.

Mr. Whelan said that improved farm efficiency has ma de the "slow rate of price increase" for food possible. And poor weather last year cut into production, particularly in the East, and prices moved up accordingly.

World droughts last year, rising demand for red meat and a poor fish catch off Peru this year also contributed to increased costs. Fish is used for protein in livestock feed.

To offset increases, Mr. Whelan again called for all-out farm production and aggressive marketing efforts by the government.

Federal Health Proposals Said to Offer Flexibility

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal proposals for financing health services offer greater flexibility to provinces in controlling health costs, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Wednesday.

The offer, an increase of $1.1 billion in federal funds over the next five years, showed Ottawa is not trying to vacate the health-care field, he told New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis in the Commons.

Mr. Lalonde's new formula for sharing health costs with the provinces, along with other federal-provincial cost-sharing plans, had been presented to the provinces Tuesday and were speedily rejected.

Mr. Lewis said it is obvious that Mr. Lalonde's suggested program would not control rising health costs. Those costs were the result of excessive incomes for doctors and the unavailability of alternate forms of hospital care.

Mr. Lalonde said his proposals are aimed at giving the provinces flexibility in controlling health costs which they are responsible for.

T. C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) asked if the federal government offered to guarantee payment of one-half of the country's health costs.

Mr. Lalonde said there is no guarantee. The federal offer was based on provincial projections of health costs for the next five years.

Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner said federal proposals on secondary education financing reflected Ottawa's commitment in this field.

He told Gordon Fairweather (PC—Fundy-Royal) that if capita grants to the provinces to support higher education are not acceptable, the government will continue with existing plans.

Spy Report Erroneous

OTTAWA (CP) — A report that a couple of Soviet spies crept in from the cold recently for a casual peek at confidential Canadian documents was described as erroneous Wednesday by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

"As far as we can ascertain, there was no . . . substance to the report whatsoever," he told the Commons in reply to John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert).

The report, published Monday in Toronto Star, said two employees of the Soviet embassy in Ottawa entered the East Block on Parliament Hill, waited until security guards had their backs turned and then raced upstairs to a room "where the top-secret reports from Canada's foreign embassies are kept."

The story went on to say the two spies, "as if they had every right to do so," asked for reports from the Canadian embassy in Moscow and then spent a couple of leisurely hours reading the documents.

When they had finished, the report said, they thanked the clerk and left.

Hydro Witnesses Forced to Appear

TORONTO (CP) — Speaker's warrants will be served on all witnesses to force their appearance before the select legislature committee established to inquire into Ontario Hydro's controversial contract for a new headquarters with Canada Square Corp.

The decision to compel witnesses to appear was made Wednesday at the first meeting of the committee, called to organize its agenda for the investigation, expected to begin hearing evidence May 17.

Speaker's warrants, served under provincial statute, carry more weight than a court subpoena because those who do not appear can be found in contempt of the legislature, whose authority is supreme, even above that of the courts.

William Newman (PC—Ontario South) was the only member of the 11-man committee who voted against the warrants motion proposed by James Renwick (NDP—Toronto Riverdale).

Mr. Renwick argued that by compelling all witnesses to appear the committee would be avoiding "insidious comparisons" that would likely be made between those who would be willing to testify voluntarily and those who would not.

Mr. Newman complained that a witness shouldn't be forced to accept a warrant if he was ready to appear willingly.

Speaker's warrants were used last year to produce several witnesses during a legislature committee's investigation for regularities on the Workmen's Compensation Board.

But this is believed to be the first time a warrant call has included every witness.

John MacBeth (PC—Toronto Etobicoke), committee chairman, today will seek approval of the legislature to sit during the hours the house is in session. These may include night sessions.

The chairman also announced that James McCallum will act as legal counsel for Ontario Hydro and Douglas Laidlaw will undertake a similar chore for Canada Square.

A motion by Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) to permit television and radio coverage of the hearings was ruled out of order by Mr. MacBeth, who said, however, he would discuss the problem with Roderick Lewis, clerk of the legislature.

As an extension of the legislature, the committee is bound by the rules of the house which does not permit cameras or tape recorders.

But Mr. Deans said the precedent was broken during the WCB hearings when "the electronic media" were permitted to cover the proceedings.

The committee's task is to investigate alleged political patronage in the contract to build a $45 million downtown headquarters for the public utility.

Toronto Bill Bogs Down

TORONTO (CP) — Omnibus legislation which Toronto Mayor David Crombie says is aimed at preserving and rehabilitating city neighborhoods bogged down in the legislature's private bills committee Wednesday.

The bill which involves control of building demolition, installation of speed-control devices in roadways and bylaw exceptions for vacant council seats was left unfinished during the sitting Monday and the committee will resume work on the bill next week.

Ald. George Ben appeared in opposition to proposals to allow the city to install speed-control devices.

He said the city, intended to install "speed bumps"—raised asphalt bumps—to help control traffic.

Mr. Ben said the bumps were both unknown and dangerous and could result in injury or death.

However, other city spokesmen said the devices would be subject to engineering tests before installation.

It would allow the city to set up demolition control areas and prevent destruction of houses when there was a severe shortage of housing in the city.

Spokesmen for the city said it was often advantageous to a developer to move into an area, level it and then apply for re-zoning.

A variation on this theme would be to destroy one or more houses to depreciate a neighborhood as a form of "block-busting."

This legislation brought objections from representatives of developers.

J. A. Kennedy, former chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board appeared as legal counsel for Toronto developer Philip Roth, an owner of the Meridian group.

He said the legislation could force a building owner to maintain a building regardless of the economics involved.

He said it was a form of confiscation.

NDP to Fight New Sales Tax

TORONTO (CP) — The government's bill to increase the provincial sales tax to seven per cent from five isn't likely to become law this week, Stephen Lewis, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, said Wednesday.

He said in an interview the NDP, armed with new evidence straight from Treasurer John White's own ministry, intends to continue to fight the bill clause by clause.

The evidence, supplied upon request, shows that two of the three groups hardest hit by the new tax are those with family incomes between $5,000 and $8,000 and $8,000 and $7,000, Mr. Lewis said.

The hardest hit is the group with family incomes between $11,000 and $12,000.

County's Tax Demands To Be Lower in '73

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Thanks mainly to increased provincial aid to the county's homes for the aged and through new general support grants, there will be a major reduction this year in the Hastings county levy on area municipalities.

This was indicated Wednesday as county council approved the 1973 budget as presented by Clerk-Administrator Carl E. Bateman.

Mr. Bateman noted that county rates are apportioned between the constituent municipalities on a percentage basis rather than in terms of mills and if the savings are passed on to the local taxpayers, the reduced county demand should cut tax bills by as much as seven or eight per cent.

Total expenditures for all county departments this year have been estimated at $5,682,472 which is down $31,000 from last year.

The county auditors reported a surplus of $177,547 on 1972 county operations.

Increased financial aid to county homes last year resulted in a surplus of $55,000 for Hastings Manor and at Centennial Manor in North Hastings. The auditors are being carried forward into 1973 revenue and is another major contributing factor in reducing county rates.

With overall expenditures of $5,682,472 to be reduced by provincial grants and payments from the municipalities and other revenue, the county's demand on the municipalities this year will be $996,870, an amount down $229,588 from last year's $1,227,367.

Mr. Bateman told tribute to members of former councils who had prudently chosen to provide for early retirement of capital debentures and also to the various committees of the present county council which for too most part had seen fit to stay within expenditure guidelines of prior years.

Last year the county completely paid off the capital loan at Centennial Manor. Also, the original debts on Hastings Manor and on the courthouse have been completely retired as well as some on county schools and on Bellleville General Hospital.

As a result, annual debenture payments this year are down to $268,602 from $447,191.

Big item on the county expenditure list this year is the social services budget totalling for a total of $3,275,580.

Social services takes in the Family and Children's Services, general county social services, and assistance to the aged (Hastings Manor and Hastings Centennial Manor).

The county road system will call for an expenditure of $1,595,740, including development roads and suburban roads. The county health unit will cost the county $23,346, the county planning board $84,520, general government $525,661, including debenture debt of $206,002, other financial expense $87,000, agricultural grants $6,150, recreation and community service grants $18,000, court house and administration building $114,425, administration $118,172 and legislative costs (council fees, warden's honorarium, committee fees and mileage) $41,480.

A new capital expenditure this year is the cost of a county sanitation and waste removal study at $40,000 of which the province will pay 50 per cent with Belleville and Trenton contributing on the basis of population.

Sidney township will be the biggest contributor to the county coffers with a total demand of $943,850; Thurlow is next in line at $197,627 and Tyendinaga $67,776.

The municipality with the lowest county demand is the Village of Stirling which will be asked to pay $2,139 in county taxes.

The reduction in this year's county demand as compared to 1972 results in the total from $557 for Deloro to $53,000 for Thurlow township.

Some of the reduction in the county rate, however, will be eaten up by increased costs of education for many of the rural municipalities. But just how much the additional local levy for education will be will have to wait striking of the township or village tax rates.

Guided Tour for Dignitaries

More than 1,000 delegates turned out for Wednesday's opening ceremonies of the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities equipment show at Belleville's fairgrounds. Mayor Robin Jeffrey and a group of AMEU and PUC dignitaries toured the show, said the largest of its kind in North America.

$3 Million Show Sales Forecast

Success has been assured for the electrical equipment exhibition on the Belleville Fair Grounds. More than 1,000 delegates registered for the Wednesday morning opening ceremonies.

Both local and provincial organizers of the show had anticipated up to 1,500 delegates for the two days but revised projections climbed 2,000 following registration.

The show is reputed to be the largest of its kind on the North American continent and draws electrical utilities personnel from across Canada and parts of the United States.

More than $1.5 million worth of equipment is being shown. The organizers, the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities (AMEU), anticipate $3 million in sales before the show closes Thursday evening.

Cost temperatures and intermittent rain did not douse the enthusiasm of the opening ceremonies, where Mayor Robin Jeffrey welcomed the exhibition to the city.

Following speeches, Mayor Jeffrey and AMEU officials toured the exhibit site. Displays covering the entire infield area of the track and the curling club, include everything from cherry pickers trucks to transformers.

A spokesman for the AMEU explained the show was a great attraction to utility companies' personnel, because is gives them a chance to compare a variety of products from many manufacturers at the same time.

The reason for the high volume of sales expected over the two days is that utilities commissions traditionally try to schedule their purchasing period around show time.

Because of the size and reputation of the show it is regarded as a feather in Belleville's cap to be chosen as host city. The display is held once every two years.

Belleville's Publicity committee, the chamber of commerce and fair grounds' administration received particular praise from the AMEU for their efforts in producing the show.

Cataloguing for Auction Is Final CFE Activity

TRENTON — There's something eerie about walking through an empty building that once was a hive of activity.

This is especially true when man's presence can still be felt in the machinery he leaves behind: Metal lathes with shavings adhering to edges; work trolleys still on the floor and tools stacked in orderly fashion.

The machines at Canadian Flight Equipment are silent and only one man remains on the premises. He is John Amos, a 13-year CFE veteran and chief inspector who will be looking for work next week.

There were other men walking through the silent offices, Wednesday — secretary desks empty, typewriters still and cafeteria room still showing signs of recent occupancy — a folded newspaper and one or two empty pop bottles.

These men are from the federal government and receivers with Clarkson Company Ltd., of Toronto, a division of Clarkson, Gordon and Company, chartered accountants.

Inventory taking of goods still on hand plus machinery that can be used and resold, will soon be completed.

But what caused the death of this productive company, with a quarter of a million dollars in contracts still waiting to be filled?

Ian Strang, representing Clarkson Company Ltd., explained.

He agreed with original statements last October that a failing international acceptance industry and failing sales had put CFE in a bad financial position.

Mr. Amos also verified facts Wednesday afternoon. He said at peak operation several years ago, CFE employed 100 Trenton workers operating three shifts a day to produce $2½-million in defence products for the Canadian and U. S. aerospace industry.

"But this began to fall off. Two million, a million and on down," he said.

Apparently, hundreds of thousands of dollars had to be tied up for several months while work was under way. This left the firm with little operating capital and creditors holding out their hands for money.

Mr. Strang explained two alternatives were open to the flourishing company when it declared interim receivership — regarded in the financial world as one step away from bankruptcy.

First, contracts could be completed, providing a maximum return to creditors. If this couldn't be accomplished, both creditors and the federal government would have stood to lose financially. The second and most favorable solution was to find a buyer. This the receivers attempted to do.

Negotiations began last Westfall Industries of Montreal announced in March they would purchase CFE, employ the remaining 35 workers and rename the firm Canadian Flight Equipment. But at the last minute, they backed down and the sale did not go through.

"Time was not on our side, us," Mr. Strang said. "We were discussing possibilities with an American and a Canadian company to take over when we received a letter from a Toronto equipment dealer for both machinery and the plant . . . he'd like as a future investment."

"We had no other choice but to accept the offer," he said, indicating the sale would be final at the end of this month when an auction of present machinery is likely to take place.

Mr. Strang said both the federal government and receivers, through Canada Manpower, have been working on jobs for the released workers.

He was high in his praise of the workers who remained even though they knew their jobs would soon be ended. "I've never run into any group as loyal as this," Mr. Strang said. "They were most helpful in getting certain tracts done and out of the way."

"There was a lot of input by the Canadian government to save this company," he said. "The most successful venture we set out to achieve was accomplished, with the exception of the jobs of the people."

"The debtors will be paid almost in full." In the form of between $600,000 and $500,000, Mr. Strang said Wednesday afternoon.

But even though government officials will be picking up some of the equipment machinery being auctioned, chief inspector Amos noted sadly that much of the equipment can't be used in any other field and would most likely go for scrap. He estimates approximately one million dollars worth of CFE's equipment will be scrapped.

Mr. Strang couldn't say for sure if the new owners of another company interested in the Sidney Street plant, but he said he doubted the buyer would have bought the factory without at least prospects in mind.

Jury Finds Heart Attack Before Death

A coroner's jury, ruled Wednesday that Kenneth Sharpe, a 42-year-old Canadian National crane operator, died March 29 in Belleville when he was decapitated after suffering a heart attack and falling under the wheels of a 30-ton crane.

The five-member jury, calling the death accidental, did not propose any safety regulations and attached no blame to other CN employees who were nearby in the Byron Street Yard the morning of Mr. Sharpe's death.

Investigating officer John Ashley of the Belleville Police Department told the inquest he found Mr. Sharpe's body stretched out beside the tracks, his hands clutching his chest.

His findings corresponded with results from a post mortem conducted by Dr. Patrick Cassidy at Belleville General Hospital the same morning. Dr. Cassidy said Mr. Sharpe had a "very diseased heart." One artery was entirely blocked and the other narrow, indicating he may have had a heart attack.

The post mortem discovery prompted Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott to comment: "It is a wonder he was alive with that amount of disease."

Dr. Scott, who called the inquest, indicated there was little likelihood of suicide since, in his experience, some intervention usually precedes such a death. He added that the position of Mr. Sharpe's hands made it appear he had suffered a severe pain in his chest although the attack was not necessarily fatal.

more

Last person to see Mr. Sharpe alive was the crane operator, Robert Malouin.

He said he was backing up at two or three miles an hour, watching in his mirror, as Mr. Sharpe walked alongside the opposite end of the crane. A helper stepping into the operator's cab momentarily distracted his attention. When he looked into the mirror again, Mr. Sharpe had disappeared.

Mr. Sharpe leaves five of his six children, and his wife Phyllis, at their Trenton home. The former Central Bridge employee had been with CN for two years.

Taxis Lose To Parking

PICTON — Taxi parking stands in front of the Royal Hotel on Main Street will be converted to all - vehicle parking next year.

Prince county council this week voted to open this parking space to the public on January 1, 1974.

Picton deputy - reeve Ross Cressman suggested shopkeepers with young children might resent the loss of the taxi availability. Councillor Norman March proposed that the former taxi stand should be turned into a parking area for taxicabs.

The town realizes a revenue of approximately $60 a year from each taxi company parking space but it was agreed that revenue from the proposed meters would equal or surpass this amount if the spaces were opened to all vehicles.

Beaver at Work

He was nowhere to be seen when the picture was taken, but a beaver has been busy at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club. The dead poplar in the background was felled and another in the foreground bears evidence of his work. High water at the yacht club has flooded the bases of the young trees, giving the beaver ideal working conditions. Trunks painted black after bark had been stripped off bore only a few fresh teeth-marks. Others, protected by wire wraps, were untouched. Yachtsmen, working to raise their docks, have seen the culprit but are largely unconcerned. "We saw him swim by with a branch yesterday," said one. "He's around a lot in the mornings."

Quinte Students Ready For an Active Summer

This summer in the Quinte district young people will:

—Revive a vaudeli movie house in Picton for community use.

—Operate a free legal aid service in Belleville.

—Organize a children's recreation program in a trailer park between Trenton and Belleville.

These are among the Opportunities for Youth programs for which $168,400 in federal funds has been allocated in Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

In all, 28 programs involving almost 170 high school and university students have received OFY approval.

This is about half the number of programs submitted by young people in the Quinte counties, says OFY project officer Barry George.

The approved allocations and enterprises range from $1,317 for a craft program in Hastings Manor of a mobile home for the elderly — to $20,000 for the community theatre at Picton.

In between are a diversity of projects, some being cultured, chief inspection Amos noted sadly that much of the equipment can't be used in any other field and would most likely go for scrap. He estimates approximately one million dollars worth of CFE's equipment will be scrapped.

Mr. Strang couldn't say for sure if the new owners of another company interested in the Sidney Street plant, but he said he doubted the buyer would have bought the factory without at least prospects in mind.

The Belleville - Trenton urban belt received a third of the approvals in Hastings — seven compared to 15 in rural Hastings.

This year in areas local committees were set up to assist OFY officials on submissions.

It wasn't possible to organize advisory groups in the Quinte district and surrounding counties, said the 25-year-old project officer, who works out of Peterborough under a decentralized OFY administration system aimed at increased local contact. Aside from seeking out qualified committee members "to make sure — application deadline was March 1 — committees can be responsive to justice.

Instead, Mr. George said he sought advice from social service agencies, various professional people and others with an over-all community appreciation.

Co-operation of federal MPs and provincial government departments was sought.

There was "no real conflict" over the OFY selections for the area, he said.

Along with providing jobs and giving participants community benefits, applications are assessed on fresh imaginative ideas. While certain criteria are set, officials try to be "as flexible as possible" in decision - making.

Nonetheless, imagination was lacking "to a certain extent" in submissions — mayonnaise applicants kind of they're dealing with bureaucracy and attempt to prejudge what will be acceptable.

"I hope people in the programs will use their imagination and try to find ways and means of improving projects," said Mr. George. "If a good idea comes up and it doesn't work it be used because they've never heard of it earlier."

As project officer, his assignment is to play a support role for the various programs, helping with problems, screening and application.

Officers also are interested in the response of local citizens to OFY projects in their communities. Constructive criticism and ideas are welcomed.

"In this program local consultation is important," says Mr. George.

Community involvement is stressed since — hopefully — one side effect of OFY projects is stimulation of public interest which could result in continuation of worthwhile projects after local funding ends with the summer.

In Belleville, the largest grant, $14,025 — goes to 10 Queen's University law students who will operate a legal advice centre in the city core May 15 to August 31. It's a full-time extension during summer months of a service voluntarily organized last year. Along with providing legal aid, the students also will seek to increase individual awareness of rights and responsibilities under the law.

In Trenton, $7,910 has been allocated for operation of a day - care centre, providing seven jobs.

Last to Go

John Amos, a 13-year veteran with Trenton's Canadian Flight Equipment plant on Sidney Street, is the last employee to leave the closed factory. As chief inspector, he remains on the premises, cataloguing and helping to sort equipment such as these precision gauges, for disposal to the federal government, to the new owners for auction or in the case of much of the specialized tools on hand — to the scrap yards.

Marlies in Final Despite 3-2 Loss

MONTREAL (CP)—Coach George Armstrong of Toro. Marlboros will have to wait un til Friday night to know whet hockey club his team will play in the final game of the Mo mortal Cup championship Saturday.

The Marlboros, who won the opening game of the round-robin by defeating Quebec Remparts 5-2 Monday night, were edged 3-2 Wednesday by Medicine Hat Tigers, the champions of the Western Canada Hockey League. Still, the Marlies are in the finals.

A goal by Brad Gassoff at 8:31 of the third period provided the Tigers with their win. Ryan Wecker and Jeff Johnstone scored for Medicine Hat in the first period while Mark Howe got both goals for the Marlboros. Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Oshats, in the second period.

"We beat Quebec already, so I guess it would be good to play them in the finals," Armstrong said. "But I'm not concerned about who we meet in the finals, we just want to be in them."

Medicine Hat will meet Quebec in the final game of the round-robin Friday night. If the Tigers win, then they will meet Toronto in the championship game. But if Quebec wins, then each team will have a 1-1 record.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has a rule breaking formula set up for this possibility and by virtue of it the Marlboros are shoo-ins for the finals.

In the event of identical won lost records, the two finalists will be decided on a goals-for goals-against basis. If that still leaves a tie, the goals scored by a team will be divided by the goals scored against it and the finalists will be the teams with the highest quotients.

There was one fight in the contest late in the first period. Toronto's John Hughes and Bob Gassoff—one of the three battling brothers from Quesnel, B.C., on the Tigers—squared off in the Tigers' end in front of goalie Sam Clegg.

Hughes got the first punch in, but Gassoff was easily the winner of the battle.

Hughes had to go to the Forum clinic after the fight and en route, he had to pass the Medicine Hat bench. It was a mistake.

Sitting on the end of the bench was Brad Gassoff. Hughes bitmpedinto him on the way through the gate and Gassoff showed he did not appreciate the gesture by leaping off the bench and jumping Hughes from behind in the hallway.

Both benches then cleared, but the scuffle was broken up rather quickly by officials. Referee Marcel Vaillancourt of Sherbrooke, Que., assessed a misconduct to Hughes in addition to his earlier fighting major while Brad Gassoff got a misconduct and his brother Bob got five minutes for fighting.

Cup Game Rained Out

LIVERPOOL (Reuter) — Torrential rain caused the first-leg Uefa Cup final to be abandoned after 27 minutes at Anfield Wednesday with Liverpool West Germany's Borussia Moenchengladbach tied 0-0.

The pitch was awash when Austrian referee Erich Linemayr decided to suspend play for 20 minutes to see if conditions would improve before making a final decision.

It was still raining when the referee came out again, however, and after testing the pitch picked up the ball and marched off again. The match will be replayed tonight, provided the pitch is passed fit. The second leg takes place in West Germany on May 23.

Orillia Leads 2-1

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Two-day treatment on a pinched nerve appeared to be all Garrie Vaughan needed as he scored two goals and assisted on another to help Orillia Terriers down St. Boniface Mohawks 8-5 Wednesday in the Allan Cup senior hockey final.

The win gave Orillia a 2-1 lead in best-of-seven series, with the next game Friday. All games will be played here.

Vaughan was a doubtful starter. Checked hard in the second game he pinched a nerve in his neck. Since the injury Sunday he has been receiving treatment.

Orillia outshot St. Boniface 42-26 in the game, and 20-11 in the final period when the Terriers scored four goals for their come-from-behind win.

The Terriers came from behind five times in the game. St. Boniface led 3-2 after 20 minutes and 5-4 after five seconds of the third period.

Orillia playing coach Doug Ketcher started picking goaltender Ernie Miller because he felt regular netminder Jean-Louis Levesque "had been laying too much hockey."

In Command

HALIFAX (CP) — Cincinnati Swords scored a goal in each period Wednesday night to defeat Nova Scotia Voyageurs 3-0 and take a 3-0 lead in games in their best of seven American Hockey League final.

Rick Dudley, Steve Richardson and Jake Rutzweil scored for the Swords, who could end the series up Friday night when it resumes at the Forum.

Breakdown of Cup Security Similar to Play of Defence

CHICAGO (CP) — Nothing seems to be going according to form in the current Stanley Cup final playoff and the return of the Cup itself to Chicago Wednesday night was no exception.

The famed mug, emblematic of National Hockey League supremacy since 1893, made its first-ever air crossing of an international boundary Wednesday but security precautions broke down—like the Montreal and Chicago defences in the fifth game of the current series.

Chicago Black Hawks won that fifth game 8-7, crushing earlier predictions for a goal-tenders' series and forcing the best-of-seven series to move back here for a sixth game tonight. The Cup was brought from Montreal by air, ready for presentation to the Canadiens should they clinch the series.

The Cup has made the trip numerous times by road and train, but Maurice (Lefty) Reid, curator of the Hockey Hall of Fame in Toronto, said this is the first time to his knowledge it had been flown across an international border.

But despite security arrangements to bundle the priceless silver trophy through customs here, official business in the crowded customs hall all but ceased as agents hurried to a remote area of the terminal building to get a glimpse of the oldest trophy competed for by professional athletes in North America.

Reid, whose custom it has been to ferry the trophy between Montreal and Chicago by car during the current final series, was accompanied by Irwin Bleben of Toronto, the NHL's assistant security director when he flew the championship trophy here.

"We'd flat it under TIB, which means temporary importation," said Bob Fitzgerald, one of two airport security guards who kept vigil on the trophy from the moment it left the cargo hold of the Air Canada DC-9 until it was turned over to Dave Will, a Chicago investigator. "What it means is that the article will be taken back out in a few days."

Fitzgerald said that since most of the air terminal employees are Black Hawk fans they're hoping for a seventh game, which would be back in Montreal Sunday.

"You know, something like this has intrinsic value," he said.

"How can you put a price on something with such sentimental value? We treat the Stanley Cup like other objects of art—one of a kind."

Will, who heads up NHL security in Chicago, now shares the responsibility of keeping a watchful eye on the Cup pending the outcome of tonight's game.

The Hawks, meanwhile, returned to the stadium following their win at Montreal Tuesday night, a game in which defences of both clubs seemed to be out to lunch for almost 60 minutes.

"Never seen anything like it, probably never will again," remarked Pat Stapleton, who added: I mean I was perfect. I was on for every one of Montreal's goals."

Ex-Canadien Ralph Backstrom doesn't have any illusions about how the Montrealers will react.

"You can't expect another one like Tuesday," the Hawks centre said. "But I think the win did us a lot more good than the other one (7-4 here a week ago).

"In that one we went ahead 5-0 and were hanging on at the end. It has to make us feel good to know we can score 7 times on (Ken) Dryden."

The one person around the rink in apparent sympathy with the Montreal goaltender was his Chicago counterpart, Tony Esposito.

"The puck just seemed to be going in crazy bounces, everything," Esposito recalled.

The only expected lineup changes by either club for the sixth game could be the reappearance of Montreal defenceman Jacques Laperriere.

The lanky defender, who suffered a broken nose in the second game of the series at Montreal, is expected to be outfitted with a special protective headgear.

Portage on Top

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — Portage Terriers scored three unanswered goals Wednesday night to defeat Pembroke Lumber Kings 3-1 in a game that ended in a dispute over a penalty call at 14:33 of the third period.

Portage now leads the best-of-seven Centennial Cup junior hockey final 3-0. Fourth game in the series is scheduled for Sunday night in Winnipeg.

Raceway Lineup

Race number nine at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway should be the one to watch as the five horse field heads for the wire in the second Friday of racing in Belleville.

Rosies Sister will start in the pole position against Lamplighter winner of the second pace and trial at the Raceway last week. Midnite Sam, the 10-year-old driven by Murray Miller, will come out of the third slot though it is rumored the gelding is sore. Miller reined the pacer aired by Mighty Atom in his second win of the season in the fifth at the Raceway last week.

Kate McLaird seems the likely bet as she took a second place finish to Margies Lad in the ninth feature last Friday. Dominion Lass rounded out the field.

Driver Irene Hogan of Odessa will be in the silks for her first starts at the Raceway in the second in the fifth pacing exactor, Irene will direct Spencer Hall while the sixth race will see her behind Vesper going for the $200 purse money.

BEST AILING

MANCHESTER (AP) — Soccer star George Best is in hospital being treated for a blood clot in a vein deep inside his right calf. Best, 26, recently returned to training after a four-month absence from Manchester United. Soccer experts believe the exertion after a lay-off could have caused the clot.

Mike Davenport a 13-year - old student at St. MacKenzie Bovell School, tests his punching power on an old carnival device which measures the force of the flying fist. A free day for drivers and the fans is scheduled for Brighton Speedway Sunday afternoon, May 13 as track officials prepare for the opening of the season set this year for May 19.

This Sunday, drivers will be out in force to test their machines on the circuit and spectators will get a chance to look over the facilities and watch the practice runs.

Improvements at the speedway have been made. The steel rails in front of the grandstand have been replaced by cement walls while both ends of the track have been banked in an effort to enable drivers to up their speed.

Speedway fakes will be an added attraction this year at the regular Saturday night races. It is expected that at least 60 cars will be ready to roll come opening night.

Prize money remains the same as in 1972 with a triple win worth $155. And the price of admission remains unchanged.

The mini-stock class has been dropped because of a lack of driver interest.

Moore's Attitude Changes In Cage

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter
(Fourth of series)

Bob Moore ended his season with the Hanna Kerr Imperial midgets, skipped the juveniles, and jumped goalie's pads first into what he called a "better league than the juvenile back league."

Over the 31 2-3 regular season games with Belleville's Metro Jr. B League entry, the 17 - year - old goaltender notched a new understanding of his capabilities.

"I progressed. My attitude changed," said -Moore. "At first, I thought I'd go out there and be great. We won the first seven or eight games, but after a few losses, I settled down and played the game. I thought about the goals.

"If I let a bad goal in, I'd get upset. But then I thought, after a goal goes in, bad or good, there's nothing I can do then, I started to settle down."

But when those days happened when nothing seemed to go his way, Moore said he became "frustrated and mad with myself, and then you play even worse."

For a first year veteran of the Jr. B. ice flats, Moore's record in the Bobcats' net is a respectable one. The goaltender finished his regular season with a 4.65 goals per game average over the largest number of games any league goalie played.

more

Of the 29 goalies who saw ice time this year, Moore ended his season tied in the 14th spot with Bramalea Blues Bruce Jackson. Whitby's Kim Crouch trailed Moore in games played with 26.

"It was hard to break into a new league," said Moore, "the shots were quicker and the playmaking was a lot quicker. They seemed to move the puck around faster."

Moore blamed Peterborough's Bob Wasson line for the greatest damage done to his average over the year, but despite this, come playoff time, he was "always up for their games."

"The Oshawa series was a letdown. We knew we'd beaten out the best, and it was harder to get up for the games. you could see the difference in being a winner and being a loser. Guys were arguing in the dressing room about plays. After that, we didn't get any hots. any breaks."

BMLA Needs Coaches

The only Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association division to be completely staffed by coaches is the bantam section according to president Roy Payne.

"Now that we're getting close to the start of the house league schedule May 28, I've begun to worry about getting the other seven coaches we need," said Payne. "I didn't worry about house league coaches before because I was so involved with setting up our teams for the South Central Lacrosse Association."

The minor lacrosse system requires coaches for two teams in the peewee, novice and midget divisions as well as a coach for a juvenile team.

Bench Ties Mark

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Johnny Bench had seven runs batted in and matched the major-league baseball record for consecutive home runs Wednesday night but Cincinnati Reds still needed some extra hitting to overcome Philadelphia Phillies.

After Bench's seven RBIs, on three home runs, Dave Concepcion hit a two-run, tie-breaking homer in the ninth to give the Reds a 9-7 National League victory.

Bench's three homers, coming after one he hit on his last at-bat in Tuesday's game, allowed him to tie the record of four consecutive homers.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston Astros scheduled encounter with the Expos in Montreal was rained out while St. Louis Cardinals defeated San Francisco Giants 3-1, Los Angeles Dodgers beat Pittsburgh Pirates 8-5 Chicago Cubs defeated San Diego Padres 9-3 and New York Mets beat Atlanta Braves 8-1.

Busby Solved

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Steve Busby's no-hit streak against Detroit Tigers ended in a hurry Wednesday night.

Busby had pitched the first six innings of a no-hitter against the Tigers in pre-season play and then went the distance without giving up a hit 12 days ago.

But Wednesday night, Detroit got seven hits in three innings off the Kansas City right-hander and beat the Royals 4-1.

"The law of averages caught up with me," said Busby.

"I was getting behind a little more tonight than I did in Detroit," explained Busby, "But in Detroit I came back with good pitches—not tonight.

"I was throwing a little too fine. I've got to challenge the hitters. They hit the heck out of the ball, didn't they" ?

Ironically, Busby faced Jim Perry again—the same pitcher who was on the Detroit mound in the no-hit game. Perry whipped Busby this time with relief help from John Hiller.

In other American League games, Cleveland Indians beat California Angels 10-3, Oakland A's nipped Baltimore Orioles 4-3 in 10 innings Milwaukee Brewers defeated Texas Rangers 5-1 and New York Yankees blanked Minnesota Twins 2-0.

Farm Team For Alouettes

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League announced Wednesday they have come to a farm-team agreement with Albany Metro Maulers of the newly-formed Seaboard Football League.

The nature of the agreement calls for the Alouettes to provide the Maulers with an undetermined number of players, either American or Canadian, during the course of the 1973 season for future training.

Soccer Stadium

TORONTO (CP) — City Council approved Wednesday plans for building a $1-million soccer stadium in the downtown area which would replace the present Stanley Park stadium.

At the same time, the council scrapped plans for installation of artificial turf in Stanley Park. Artificial turf will be included in the new facility which will have a seating capacity of 8,500 with provision for expanding to 15,000.

Rodgers May Join Alouettes

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers completed his jail term Wednesday and turned his attention again to a pro football career.

Rodgers, former University of Nebraska star, was released from jail after serving a 30-day sentence received last year when he was convicted of driving on a suspended licence.

Rodgers said he plans to travel to Montreal within the next few days to talk to the Alouettes about playing in the Canadian Football League.

He said he would then go to San Diego for contract talks with the Chargers of the National Football League.

Rodgers was permitted to play for Nebraska last season while his conviction on the suspended licence charge was appealed.

In Montreal, coach Marv Levy of the Alouettes said: "We'll be willing to make Rodgers a good long-term deal with a guaranteed contract. I have no doubt of this man's ability to make this football team. He doesn't have to worry about getting cut."

Leeds United Bounces Back

LONDON (CP) — Leeds United, surprisingly beaten by Second Division Sunderland in the English Football Association Cup final last Saturday, bounced back by crushing Arsenal 6-1 in the last English First Division match of the season Wednesday.

Arsenal, runners-up to Liverpool in the First Division, were pulverized by Leeds' winger Peter Lorimer, who scored two and Billy Bremner scored Leeds' other goals George Armstrong scored for Arsenal.

Leeds, third in the table behind Liverpool and Arsenal, showed it had recaptured its best form in time for the European Cup Winners Cup final against Italy's A. C. Milan in Salonika, Greece, on May 16.

Sunderland, still in a dream after its sensational Cup triumph, was brought back to reality, losing 3-0 at home to Queen's Park Rangers, one of the two teams promoted to the First Division.

Snooky's Got Director's Goat

By BOB HUGGAN

Is she, or isn't she?

That's the big question that's most on the minds of the cast of Teahouse of the August Moon, the next production of the Belleville Theatre Guild at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

The object of their attention is Snooky, one of the stars of this funny play that deals with the inter-action between U.S. occupation forces and the Inhabitants of the Japanese Island of Okinawa.

Snooky is a goat. In fact, a nanny-goat. Indeed, a very special nanny-goat, for she's referred to, at one point in the play, as an "unmarried lady goat," and the reference is very important to the action.

What's causing the eyes of the 20-odd-member cast to focus so doubtingly on Snooky at the moment, however, is that she is beginning to swell. To exhibit signs, in fact, that she is pregnant!

And a pregnant goat, especially when she makes her debut in the play on May 30.

Fewer Looking For Jobs

A livelier local job scene has cut the total of people looking for work in Belleville and Hastings County.

At the end of April there were fewer people registered as job applicants with the Belleville Canada Manpower office than for the same month last year.

Between March and April this year there also was a sharp drop in the number of people looking for work.

At the end of last month 1,037 were registered with Manpower, compared to 1,320 for the same month last year and 1,444 in March.

Aside from a stronger seasonal factor — job opportunities begin to multiply with the start of spring — there was more buoyancy in the local job market, a Manpower spokesman said.

Increased construction and a "general tendency" to more hiring by industry broadened the job base.

"Several manufacturers have been quietly hiring here and there — which would indicate production is good," said the official.

The increase also may reflect a national trend. Manpower centres in major cities indicate the demand for workers is beginning to rise strongly, he added.

Administrative area of the Belleville Manpower office includes the city, Hastings County and Ameliasburgh township in Prince Edward County.

When reached at her temporary home in Hillier with the Steve Ferrersten (he has the starring role of Captain Fisby), she replied to the question with a playful nudge of her beard.

The story may come out this weekend, however, when a conference will be held with Snooky's owners, the Mathesons of Stirling, to discover whether, shorn such a thing, or act-of, would have been possible.

If the answer's yes, then the search will be on for a young replacement for the lead role. Snooky, because of a moment's indiscretion, will fade into anonymity, her stage career ruined, and another star will be born.

Ah well, that's show business...

Entertainment Briefs

LONDON (AP) — Oscar-winning Liza Minnelli, in London for three concert appearances, told reporters she needs the money to pay off debts run up by Judy Garland, her mother.

"I haven't talked about what I'm doing, and I really don't want to go into details now but I hope to set things straight for her," said Liza, star of "Cabaret."

Miss Garland died in London in 1969.

Miss Minnelli would say only that her mother died owing "a substantial sum" which she has been bearing for more than a year.

"People had fooled Mama and taken advantage of her so often," she said.

Miss Minnelli, 27, was in top form, for a camera session wearing a pants suit, fox fur and diamante studded shoes.

"my Happy Hooker shoes," she called them.

She talked too of possible marriage later this year to Desi Arnaz Jr.

"We're living together and we're very happy so there's no rush," she said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opera singer Jinetta La Bianca of Buffalo, N.Y., has been selected by the White House to perform Tuesday night at a state dinner honoring Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie.

Miss La Bianca, whose parents come from Southern Italy, made her opera debut in Rome in 1950. She made campaign appearances for President Nixon and the late President Eisenhower.

Lacks Staff

OTTAWA (CP) — In less than five minutes Wednesday, the Commons estimates committee approved roughly $6 million for use this year and next by the auditor-general and his team to watch over government spending.

G. R. Long, assistant auditor-general, was again called on to explain whether or not the government had moved to provide him with adequate staff to audit the government books and report on time.

It had not, he said in reply to a question by Walter Baker (PC—Grenville-Carleton).

Flood Takes Out Bridge

Brassieres, Boa Constrictors Used to Hide Illegal Drugs

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — Brazilian customs men are eyeing brassieres and boa constrictors with suspicion these days.

They are among unlikely receptacles which drug smugglers have been using to bring narcotics into this South American nation. The drug LSD is sometimes imported from the United States in women's underwear, said a state narcotics agent, Prof. Luiz Porto.

The undies are permeated with the acid which is first mixed with distilled water, then dried out and shipped to Brazil.

Brazilian distributors reverse the process on receipt of the goods, and obtain 50 to 100 micrograms of LSD per garment.

Porto said a boa constrictor recently shipped to Brazil from Peru was held by customs officials at the border.

Examination revealed that the intestines of the writhing serpent contained tubes of morphine and cocaine.

Porto, a member of the state narcotics commission, also holds the chair of pharmacology in Recife University.

Recife, a northeastern port, apart from being an entry point for LSD is a major exit for shipments of marijuana to the United States, he said.

In Recife itself, a sprawling metropolis surrounded by swampland slums, one in every 13 people consumes drugs for kicks, he said. The marijuana exported to the U.S. is all grown in the state of Pernambuco, of which Recife is the chief city.

Cocaine and morphine, which also leave for North America via Recife, originate from neighboring Peru, Uruguay and Argentina, he said.

Some of the U.S.-bound traffic goes first to Mexico, where it is transferred to helicopters for sneaking over the border to its final destination.

In the fight against the growing use of drugs, international co-operation is becoming more and more the accepted means of cutting off supplies.

Their combined efforts uncovered 130 pounds of pure heroin worth $45 million aboard a U.S. freighter in Rio harbor after a tip from a man in Buenos Aires that the ship was carrying "extra weight."

A further blow was delivered when a "Brazilian connection" was broken a month later.

A joint U.S. and Brazilian investigation turned up a smuggling ring headed by former Sicilian Mafia leader Tommaso Buscetta, including his son and six Frenchmen alleged to belong to the Corsican Mafia, as well as five Brazilians.

Porto said drug addiction is growing visibly in Brazil. In Recife alone, it had tripled since 1964.

In his laboratory at the university, he has a collection of 600 toxic plants which he has patiently classified. One of them is the jurema, a type of acacia, which he said is much in style now, either taken as a form of wine or smoked in special pipes.

Naval Dead Honored

By HOWARD KOKESH

The memory of 2,700 Canadian dead and 24 sunken warships in the longest campaign of the Second World War will commemorated across the country Sunday, May 6, with the 28th annual observance of Battle of the Atlantic Sunday.

Capt. Barry Bevvan and members of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Quinte joined other district cadet corps, naval veterans, the armed forces and members of the merchant marine in a parade and commemorative service held in Kingston's Confederation Square, Sunday morning.

District naval veterans will gather in Oshawa on the holiday weekend of May 20 for their reunion at which the band of RCSCC Quinte wil participate.

The Duke of Edinburgh Unit ANAF will hold a general meeting on Thursday May 10 at 8 p.m. Initiation of new members will take place at 7:30 p.m. and it is expected that upwards to 20 members will be recipients of 25-year pins during the general meeting.

The annual visit of the unit to Montreal 308 East Unit ANAF for May 19 has been received enthusiastically and only a few tickets at $8 each remain. Members are urged to contact R. G. Burns at the earliest opportunity as all 46 members will be accommodated.

The annual Spring Ball will be held on Saturday May 12 in the Tartan Lounge ANAF. Dress is semi-formal and featuring the Sound of Storms, this should be the outstanding event of the season. Admission is $5 per couple and advance tickets are now on sale at the Unit.

The Duke of Edinburgh Unit Ladies Auxiliary Branch 40 dart league will curtail its season on Monday May 7 with presentation of awards and prizes and includes a dining out night.

Sick comrades in Belleville General Hospital are: J. R. Boyle, room 701; Sandy Blackburn room 620; George Booth, room 600 and Red Carmichael in room 616.

Sam's Sermon: Today's affluent kids no longer have to run away from home — they drive.

New Podium In Chambers

The city hall council chambers has a new podium for use of the mayor.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey referred to the piece of chamber furniture at the outset of Monday's council meeting and said it would be dedicated at the session on May 22.

The new podium is a surplus item from the former courtroom at the city police station.

City hall maintenance staff cut the height of the podium so that the mayor could still be seen while seated.

Living Corpse

LONDON (CP) — It was obviously a case of a wrong diagnosis when 85-year-old Rose Hanover was certified dead by a doctor and laid in a coffin to await burial. The hours later, the undertaker heard her snoring and instead of driving the hearse to the graveyard, rushed Rose to a north London hospital. Later the doctor said: "She had stopped breathing and her heart was still. But I suppose these things happen." A hospital spokesman said Rose was "still very much alive."

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, May 11

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Put off personal complaints, attend to business as you get the workweek squared away.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money involves minor disappointment. A moment's reflection suggests another way to view life, an unusual way of getting help.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can open lines of future possibility in the way you deal with the problems of here-and-now. Your courtesy is appreciated.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Surfaces count—wear something fresh, be out among those who will take notice. Social activity is a hasty matter.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It's neither a day for comparing finances nor a time to rush into expensive ventures with newfound friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The wheels turn slowly today, so try to do a tidy job on time or ahead of schedule, then seek extra rest.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): As hindrances or interruptions are possible, do whatever necessary to complete a minimum of routines.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Older friends find differences among themselves—go your own way without taking sides. Tomorrow you can set your own terms.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Put on an ambitious front, make bold forward strides. Work out broad sketches of general plans. Fresh contacts promise early rewards.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Seek diversity, bring neglected matters to better balance with the remainder of your progress.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take the trouble to explain your moves as you make them, in order to retain cooperation and insure effectiveness.

April Snowstorms Aid Grain Outlook

By JIM NEAVES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Several snowstorms last month across the grain producing area of Western Canada played hob with city traffic and posed problems for ranchers. But they eliminated some of the farmers' concern that 1973 was beginning to look like a drought year.

Early this year the exceptionally-mild winter and light snowfall combined to raise the spectre of drought. But now, with the exception of a few areas, additional precipitation has meant a delay in seeding operations.

David Walker, marketing economist for the Alberta agriculture department, says the delay "due to excess moisture conditions is basically good news."

In Saskatchewan, where early spring conditions generated statements the province faced the worst dry spell since 1961, the agriculture department now says the situation is "pretty good" following a month of above-average rainfall.

A spokesman said that during April the Regina plains area received 2.29 inches compared with the month's average rainfall of less than one inch.

In Manitoba, the situation has improved but more rain is needed.

A spokesman for Manitoba Conservators said there was a low water level at the start of winter and snowfall was half of normal.

During April, there were 12 rainfalls were "not sufficient" to replenish the low level in wastage channels in some farms where farmers had to haul water from rivers.

"Since April 1, the condition is a little better and the water is still take you from Alga to Zanzibar; Beatles to Universphere.

Numerous Causes For Nail Peeling

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you possibly tell me why my fingernails peel in layers?

I used to have long nails. Fingernails but not anymore. They don't just break off at the ends. They peel in layers. I have a halfway up the nail.—L. McC

After examining your nails and you, I probably would have a much sounder idea of what the cause is.

However, keep these points in mind. The nails are, like the skin, part of the body's covering. Like the skin, they can reflect your general health or an infection or irritation.

From the standpoint of general health, one thinks largely in terms of faulty metabolism (low thyroid activity); insufficient nutrition, particularly of protein and vitamins or the presence of anemia, particularly an iron-deficiency type of it.

Infection would be revealed by the nature of the scaling and pitting of the nails.

Irritants would include such chemicals as nail polish, polish remover, or contact with a variety of other common household chemicals—among them, for some people, don't bother others.

Thus correcting peeling fingernails isn't something that is likely to yield to some home remedy, prescribed sight unseen.

Rather, you should have your doctor (or a dermatologist) evaluate the possible factors in your situation. If you are anemic, building up your blood is important for more reasons than your nails. Faulty thyroid can be effectively treated—and that's the trouble.

If it's irritation, the use of vitamin B and more protein (other than just gelatin which is so often recommended) may be the choice.

But if there is no indication of any of the above problems, then you have to take a hard look at irritants. It isn't always easy to spot the offender, but it can be done. Sometimes the clue to the culprit can give you some shrewd hint as to how to handle cases. Sometimes you have to rely on trial and error. Sometimes it takes time, but it's worth it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: This may sound silly. My 18-month-old has a squeaky foot or ankle. At first I thought that was his shoes—but now he has two new pairs and I still notice the squeak when he walks. Is this anything to be concerned about?—Mrs. R.O.

That's a new one on me. Not until this mother wrote me did I ever hear of a squeaky foot. I then I'd assume that you have had extraordinary luck (good or bad) to have had nothing but squeaky shoes.

I'm afraid else knows anything about squeaky feet, I'm ready to be informed.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any way of knowing when one is finished with menopause? Can one be sure after a certain time has passed, or does it depend on the individual?—Mrs. S.W.

This is a difficult notion to combat—the notion that menopause is something that starts and ends like the measles or a cold.

That isn't what menopause is. Menopause is a permanent change. Compare it to becoming an adult. Nobody ever says, "When will I be through with it?" You won't be "through with it."

It's the same with menopause. At some variable age, usually but not always in the 40s, menstruation comes to an end. That's what the word means—the cessation of menstruation. You accept it as something that happens. You've changed. Don't expect to change back again. You won't.

| 2 ♦ | Pass | Pass | 3 ♦ |
| Pass | 4 ♠ | | |

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

"What can defeat me?" is a dominant theme in the play of many hands. Here is a striking example of how the principle is applied.

South has no four spades and West led the king of diamonds. Declarer covered with the ace, ruffed by East, and East returned a club, won by South with the ace.

After drawing two rounds of trumps, South played a low heart to dummy's queen, hoping to find West with the king. In that case, South would have been able to discard one of dummy's clubs on the ace of hearts.

But the queen lost to the king and South had to go down one, losing a heart, a diamond, a diamond ruff and a club.

South would have made the contract had he applied the principle "What can defeat me?" principle. He should have ducked the king of diamonds lead, realizing that East was probably void of diamonds in the light of the bidding. He could then also afford to duck the queen, as well as the jack, if West persisted with the suit.

By ducking the first diamond leads, South would have preserved the ten winners he could see before him at the start of the hand. All he really had to do was recognize that he might get away by playing the diamond ace from dummy on the first one, and that he couldn't go down if he withheld the ace until it could be played at a more propitious moment later on.

Had he ducked the diamond lead, South's only losers would have been two diamonds and a heart, and he would have been able to ruff a heart later in dummy and discard his losing diamond on the ace of diamonds.

Tomorrow: Test your dummy play.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Travelling 'Minister' Gets Call to Synod

REGINA (CP) — An unofficial guest at the Anglican general synod got his "invitation" while hitchhiking between Calgary and Winnipeg. He arrived in old clothes, carrying a knapsack, a blanket and a well-worn Bible.

He calls himself Gordie, shunning the use of a surname, and says his age and hometown aren't important either.

What is important to him is his travels, practising the type of wandering ministry used by Jesus and St. Paul.

He says his visit to the synod has been fulfilling, giving him the chance to talk to people and share his version of Christianity with them.

Gordie said in an interview that he has been received with mixed reaction from synod delegates — but this doesn't bother him.

"I've been learning a vast amount here about God, the Holy Spirit, people and organized religion."

Referring to himself as a "denominational orphan," he is critical of organized religion which, he said, has strayed too far from Christ's concept of a church.

"Over the years, the church has come from ministers walking alone and taking the gospel where it was needed to a corporation taking the gospel where they want to take it."

He also was critical of the way delegates handle the pressure of the decisions they make.

"They are handling it with a bottle of beer in their hand and a cigarette in their mouths instead of with a Bible in their hands and on their knees in private prayer."

Gordie said he was hitchhiking in Alberta when he heard a radio broadcast reporting on the synod in Regina.

"I got the feeling that the spirit was saying 'go' and so I went although it upset my personal, private plans to go to Winnipeg."

He said he has been following these impulses for the last 18 months, crossing the country three times.

"I go anywhere I am sent and no matter where I go in the world people are crying out for help and love."

"I walk and God provides. The Holy Spirit provides food when I want to eat and a place to sleep when I need rest."

The first two nights of the synod, Gordie said he stayed with a friend. After that, despite the "mixed reaction" he has received from delegates, those attending the meeting found him a place to stay or paid for his room at a hotel.

He plans to continue his trip to Winnipeg but he says that could change if The Holy Spirit has a task for him.

STEPHEN LEWIS

CP News Roundup

Leadership Plans Now Considered

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said Wednesday night he will make "a statement in the next few weeks" concerning his future as leader.

Mr. Lewis was asked about his status as leader in an interview following an address here to the annual meeting of the Welland, riding NDP association.

"I'm taking the fifth amendment on that," he said. "I cannot deny that the rumors have some foundation, and I have been talking to people in the party intensely for the last few days.

"I will make a statement in the next few weeks to clear up the situation, decisively."

Mr. Lewis said, however, he was under no pressure from the party to step down and there had been no candidates for the leadership come forward.

In his speech, he said the Progressive Conservative party had deteriorated greatly, and "we seem to finally have a chance for power."

Body Found

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — Police suspect foul play in connection with a body found Wednesday in a shallow grave 10 miles southwest of here.

They said the body appeared to be that of a young adult but the sex could not be determined immediately because of the body's condition.

The body, in the grave about a year, was found by a Simcoe resident walking in the bush.

Another Escape

COWANSVILLE, Que. (RP) — Alain Strong, 22, serving 10 years at the federal penitentiary here, escaped from a guard Wednesday while visiting his wife under escort at Laval, near Montreal.

Jen Desrochers, assistant director of the prison, said Strong eluded a guard by running out a door.

More for Suits

TORONTO (CP) — World wool prices have risen as much as 100 per cent but that doesn't mean men's suit prices also will double, says the vice-president of a Toronto tailoring firm.

Frank Spaziani said in an interview Wednesday that fall suit prices "will be up, but not by as much as the 30 or 35 per cent some people have been predicting."

But he said if prices continue to rise, all-wool suits could become just a memory.

Esso Fuels Up

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd. has announced an immediate increase of one cent a gallon in prices of its main petroleum products west of the Ottawa Valley in Ontario and through Western Canada.

The increases—in gasoline, heating and turbo fuels and asphalt—follow similar earlier price rises of one cent a gallon announced by Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. and Shell Canada Ltd.

Gift Made

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. O. J. Firestone gave away his house Wednesday and with it one of the largest private art collections in Canada.

The Ottawa house and collection of 1,100 oil paintings, water colors, drawings and sculptures were "an unconditional gift" to the Ontario Heritage Foundation, a provincial historical preservation agency.

Given 10 Years

TORONTO (CP) — John Saikkonen, 25, convicted of manslaughter in the choking death of his 24-year-old wife last year, was sentenced Wednesday to 10 years in penitentiary.

Asphyxiated

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday that the death April 24 of Kenneth Gordon, 39, came as the result of asphyxiation when a storage bin of fertilizer buried him.

Floods Turn Deer Into Farmers' Problem

WATERPROOF, La. (AP) — Driven from their natural habitat by floodwaters, thousands of deer face starvation in Louisiana and thousands more are posing a problem to farmers.

"We're going to have some real problems before it's over," says Richard Yancey, assistant director of the Louisiana wildlife and fisheries commission.

Thousands of deer have been driven from their bottomland haunts by the longest Mississippi River floods in memory.

Alongthe length of the Mississippi and its tributaries, an estimated 30,000 persons have been forced from their homes, damage is estimated at $410 million and 12 million acres of land have been inundated.

"In some areas there are deer literally starving.

Likes Small Classes

Tom Nind, president and vice - chancellor of Trent University at Peterborough, Ont., is determined to maintain the university's founding philosophy of small classes emphasizing individual interaction. That philosophy is threatened by increasing financial pressures brought on by reduced government grants and a slower - than - expected growth in student enrolment. (CP Photo)

ROBERT VESCO JOHN N. MITCHELL MAURICE H. STANS

J. Mitchell and M. Stans Indicted in Vesco Case

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Attorney-General John Mitchell and former commerce secretary Maurice Stans say they believe they will be vindicated when the facts behind their indictments are known.

They were indicted Thursday on charges of obstruction of justice, conspiracy and perjury in connection with their roles as cabinet officers and leaders of President Nixon's re-election campaign. The case involves a secret campaign contribution and alleged improper government influence.

Financier Robert Vesco, a fugitive, and New Jersey Republican leader Harry Sears, Vesco's lawyer, were charged in the indictments with conspiracy and obstruction of justice.

The four will be arraigned in U.S. district court here May 21. If later convicted of all charges, Mitchell and Stans would face maximum prison terms of up to 50 years, Vesco and Sears, 20 years.

Mitchell denied any wrongdoing Thursday and said: "I am certain that the judicial proceedings in this case will fully vindicate and confirm the absence of any wrongdoing."

Stans said he was "greatly dismayed" by the grand jury action and added: "I expect that when all the facts are heard, I will be vindicated." Sears also said he is innocent.

The indictment alleges that Vesco, 37, made a secret $200,000 cash gift to the Republican campaign April 10 in an attempt to influence a Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) investigation of his affluing financial operations.

The SEC filed a civil complaint Nov. 27, charging that Vesco, 30 other persons and a score of corporations looted $224 million from foreign mutual funds they controlled.

U.S. Attorney Whitney North Seymour Jr., who announced the indictments, said there was nothing to implicate President Nixon in the alleged conspiracy.

Mitchell, who resigned last July as director of Nixon's re-election campaign, is alleged to have arranged a meeting between Sears and William Casey, then chairman of the sec, on the day the $200,000 contribution from Vesco was received by Stans.

Subsequent meetings were held by Sears, Casey and G. Bradford Cook, who succeeded Casey as SEC chairman.

Mitchell was also said to have asked Dean to delay the SEC investigation and to have suppressed a written threat from Vesco to discredit the $200,000 gift unless the SEC dropped its subpoena of the financier.

Stans, Nixon's chief fund raiser, returned the $200,000 plus another $50,000 gift that was received, Jan. 31. On May 2, the justice department charged the re-election committee with not reporting the $200,000 gift.

The government said Stans persuaded Cook to delete from the SEC's proposed lawsuit against Vesco all references to the funds from which the $250,000 political contribution had been made.

Vesco left the United States two months ago when it appeared he might be indicted and subsequently refused to answer a subpoena. A warrant has been issued for his arrest. He has a home in Boston, N.J., but is believed to be residing in the Bahamas or Costa Rica.

House Refuses Bombing Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — To a backdrop of cheers and chants, the United States House of Representatives has turned against administration Indochina war policy for the first time by rejecting a presidential request for more funds for Cambodian bombing.

The House rejected President Nixon's spending proposal 219 to 188 Thursday. Then, by a 221-to-172 vote, the House added a prohibition against using any of a $2.8-billion supplemental appropriation for bombing in Cambodia.

The actions came during consideration of the supplemental appropriation, which was passed 284 to 96 and sent to the Senate.

"We've gotten out of Southeast Asia," said Representative Robert N. Giaimo, (Dem.-Conn.). "Let's stay out."

Defense Secretary Elliot L. Richardson has said that rejection of the spending authority by Congress would not halt the Cambodia bombing because the Pentagon has other funds for it.

House anti-war forces cheered and chanted during a roll call as the House approved an amendment by Representative Joseph P. Addabbo (Dem.-N.Y.) to deny $340 million in military spending authority, including at least $175 million for Indochina.

Approved later was an amendment by Representative Clarence D. Long (Dem.-Md.), to prohibit use of any of the $2.8-billion supplemental bill for "combat activities in, over or from off the shores of Cambodia by U.S. forces."

Supporters of President Nixon were dismayed.

"This is a very, very sad day in the House of Representatives," said Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford. "We are backing away from our responsibility."

But Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. called Nixon's spending request "another Tonkin Gulf resolution." That resolution was cited by the Johnson administration as authority for waging the Vietnam war.

"I think we should steer clear of another Vietnam in Cambodia," O'Neill said. "The nation wants no part of a Cambodia."

Guerrillas Move Back Into Syria

BEIRUT (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas from Syria shelled a border post in northern Lebanon today, but elsewhere along the frontier thousands of the guerrillas were moving back into Syria.

An army communique said the border post at Arida came under "an intensive attack by rockets and mortars" before dawn, and the Lebanese troops returned the fire. The army said the guerrillas withdrew into Syria, and there were no Lebanese casualties.

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — A bank manager's harrowing hour as a lone hostage ended Thursday in the explosion of a bishop man's home-made bomb.

With the investigation continuing, police said they were unable to confirm or deny reports that the robber was shot by one of a cordon of policemen before the six-stick dynamite bomb went off.

"It's possible but I'm not sure," Chief Web Engstrom said Thursday night.

The holdup man had warned manager Al Reid of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce that the bomb would detonate if anything happened to him. It was wired to what he called a "dead man's switch," a clothespin-like device he alternately held pinched in his hand or clenched in his teeth.

The blast came about 30 seconds after the gunman left the bank, preceded by Constable Don Millard who was to drive the getaway truck the man had ordered.

Constable Millard was carrying a large duffle bag of money on his back and witnesses said it probably saved his life by shielding him from the brunt of the explosion.

The 30-year-old father of two, a three-year man on the Kenora force, was in satisfactory condition in hospital with concussion and several lacerations.

Parts of the bandit's body were scattered many feet around the blast scene along with hundreds of banknotes, many torn and shredded. Most had been recovered Thursday night but the amount wasn't determined.

The robber had filled the duffle bag and a smaller bag with the contents of the teller's drawers, which he pried open with the barrel of a rifle, and finally took as much as he could carry from the vault after forcing the manager to open it.

Manager Reid maintained a remarkable calm throughout his ordeal, at one stage chatting with a radio reporter who got him on the phone. The holdup man was invited to speak but declined.

"I figured if I played it cool it would help him keep cool," he said later in an interview, adding he was not personally threatened.

It all began when the man of about 50, with a full auburn beard and wearing working clothes, walked into the bank just before the 3 p.m. closing time.

He drew a pistol from his pocket and a rifle from the duffle bag he was carrying, announced it was a holdup and ordered everyone but the manager to leave. When a drunk wandered in and appeared befuddled by the man's order to get out, a pistol shot near his feet sped him on his way.

One sober shot was fired, an apparently accidental one from the rifle later as the gunman pried open the last of the cashier's drawers.

Before that, he pulled a silk stocking over his head, rigged the explosive device strapped to his belt which the manager first understood him to describe as a "time bomb," and told Mr. Reid to phone the police.

The manager did so but Chief Engstrom said the bank's holdup alarm had already gone off and cruiser units arrived almost immediately. The officers backed out in the face of the gunman's threat to set off his bomb.

He calmly went about collecting the cash as police surrounded the area.

"He didn't seem in any hurry," said Mr. Reid. "He said, 'I'm not going out until I get the rest of the cash'."

"I said why don't you come back tomorrow?"

Mr. Reid, who didn't think the gunman had any clear-cut plans for a getaway, then phoned police with his request for a truck, driver and safe conduct out of town.

Constable Millard, in civilian clothes and unarmed, was assigned to drive the truck and Chief Engstrom said he was instructed to obey any of the man's demands.

Constable Meillard entered the bank and was instructed to walk out carrying the duffle bag with the bandit close behind.

After one false start, when the gunman turned back to pick up the rifle he had left behind, the pair emerged and the explosion followed.

Wiretap Control Worries Ministers

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang said Thursday that he believes the wiretap bill now before Parliament strikes a proper balance between protecting the privacy of individuals and providing police a weapon to combat organized crime.

Organized crime is still a problem and we do not want to cripple the police," he said after the opening day of a two-day conference of Justice ministers.

Some provincial ministers responsible for justice, including Quebec's Jerome Choquette, said the bill will handicap police.

Mr. Choquette singled out the section for attorney-general to seek permission from judges before starting a wiretap operation. He said the decision should rest with the elected persons who would be responsible to their own legislatures.

Mr. Lang said political responsibility was paramount under the bill. The judicial role however was "a valuable feature."

Mr. Lang also announced he will introduce amendments to the Criminal Code, perhaps before July, that will increase stiffer penalties for illegal offtrack betting. The maximum penalty now is a two-year jail sentence.

Abortion, obscenity and impaired driving also were discussed at Thursday's meeting. Today the focus will be on the courts.

Regional Government Program Nearly Complete

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will have concluded its regional government program when the provincial house passes legislation on regions east and west of Metropolitan Toronto this session, Treasurer John White said Thursday.

The legislation will involve regional governments for Oshawa in the east and Peel, Halton and Hamilton-Wentworth in the west.

The treasurer promised an announcement next week on the regional government programs east and west of Toronto "stating for the government decisions in those areas where very rapid urban development is placing very heavy strains on the existing structure of government."

"Where we have passed the legislation of this session dealing with these very fast-growing areas outside of Metropolitan Toronto, we will have concluded the regionalization program," Mr. White said.

"We will attempt to work with municipalities in other parts of the province to construct reform government in keeping with their wishes . . ."

NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said that what Mr. White enunciated was "a wholesale retreat" from previous government policy.

Mr. White said it was exactly the policy as stated by his predecessor, Darcy McKeough, last June.

Tiff Over 8 Clerks May Cut Off Beer

TORONTO (CP) — Donald Warehousing Co. Ltd., said today expressions have been taken to warn customers that a strike by eight clerks at a distribution depot could gain sympathy from 600 other members of the International Brewery Workers Union.

"We're optimistic that matters with the eight clerks will be settled before' they can legally strike at midnight tonight but we can't be sure," he said.

The company, a sales and distribution organization owned by the breweries, this week has been forced to impose delivery quotas of bottled beer to 875 licensed outlets in Metropolitan Toronto.

Mr. Muir said the problem is centred in Toronto but sympathy strikes have been known to spread.

He said six of the eight clerks seem to be satisfied with their contract offers but two others are not.

"They are asking for a raise of $1 an hour and we think that's too high," said Mr. Muir. Currently they make $4 an hour.

County Roads Cost To Be $1,595,740

Hastings county will have an additional two or so miles of highway added to its county road system during the coming summer.

The road to be added is Highway 502 running east from Marmyrville to Napanee, which the province has directed to be turned back to the counties of Hastings and Lennox and Addington.

Two miles of the highway is in Hastings and the remainder in Lennox and Addington.

County council has been informed that the section of highway will be turned back in September with the completion of the new grade separation over the double track CN railway now under construction on the western outskirts of Napanee.

A total of $20,000 has been earmarked for county road construction; $40,000 for bridge construction; $511,000 for maintenance and overhead and $149,180 for subdivision roads.

The preliminary design for reconstruction of county road 18 from Mitchell's sideroad to the Shannonville gravel has been completed by the county engineering staff and has been forwarded to Toronto for approval. A land survey of the project will be initiated as soon as MTC approval of the design has been obtained.

Reconstruction of this section of county road could get under way late this year but the project is mainly earmarked for next year.

Closer to Belleville, construction of a short section of county road 13 adjacent to the CN railyards and city limits is expected to get under way as soon as the railway has completed certain property acquisition.

Bridge work planned includes reconstruction of the Kingsford bridge on the Hastings and Prince Edward Adington boundary, and also possible repair of the Tweed bridge and that at Glen Ross.

The county is negotiating with the province on details of financing the two projects and if repairs, rather than reconstruction are decided on, here deciding, strengthening where required, and repairing will be scheduled.

Trenton PUC Says Council Should Help Meet Expenses

TRENTON — It's all very well for the town to provide free water services to a new industry, the Public Utilities Commission stated this week, but council shouldn't leave the PUC holding the financial bag.

Commissioners have issued a statement charging the town is being unfair in its thinking that the PUC should pick up the tab for development of water services for new industry and new residential subdivisions without giving financial assistance.

The news release backed up commissioner Charles Hilton's statement several weeks ago that a 50 per cent increase would be necessary to accommodate debentured expense for services to the new Fisher Bros. Inc. plant. This increase the PUC has flatly refused to make.

They have, however, demanded council "institute a special levy on taxes" to offset such expenses.

That recurring lies with the uneconomical returns of this new fruit juice processing plant, subject of political wrangling for the past several weeks. PBI would be a seasonal operation, requiring peak demands of water for only four months of the year. Full services would have to be installed even though they would not be required for eight months of the year.

The commission says approximately $1.2 million in revenue would have to be taken in to accommodate what they term "the current and future growth of an uneconomical high seasonal demand industrial development."

A similar demand by council has left the PUC with a high debenture debt. Commissioners report that in 1971, $363,000 was spent for development of a 30-hose section, division, by Dufferin Development.

But from regular household water rates, the PUC only realizes $3,000 gross revenue, or $500 net, on this expenditure.

If the town continues to put the PUC over the financial barrel in this manner, they feel it is only right council be asked "to participate in offsetting any additional monies required to accommodate this policy."

The PUC statement also charged a financial report on its operations, presented at a recent council meeting by town treasurer Brian Fagan was misleading and incorrect" in several areas.

The report listed an $84,000 depreciation as a dilatory which the PUC says does not incur an actual outlay of money, it also reported an anticipated $100,000 capital expenditure, including interest rates over five years. the commission says only $20,000 expenditure has been planned, and even that hasn't been completed.

The PUC has also stated the current water rate structure for the town, in effect for almost three years, has enabled the commission to construct more than ($600,000) from winter works and current funds. "This rate will derive sufficient funds to complete our 1973 requirements," the statement reads, in opposition to the town's report of an anticipated $20,000 deficit by the end of the year.

This $616,000 expenditure also is in line with an orderly growth plan as outlined by consulting engineers Gore and Storrie.

The political wrangling over construction of free water services to new industry and new subdivisions is not unique in provincial affairs. However, a report by H. E. Sears, water consultant, to the 1973 annual conference of Ontario Municipal Water Associations, indicates most municipalities, large and small, have their firms involved in these services either in total, or at least a portion, of the cost.

Indians' Shyness Basic Obstacle

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The Indians of Tyendinaga perhaps have found a solution to the dropout problem, now the bane of the secondary schools everywhere.

His name is Les Claus, and his function is to care.

Since he became Indian Liaison Officer for the Hastings county board of education, with offices at Moira Secondary School, the spectacular Indian dropout rate has dwindled to almost nothing. From 12 dropouts among about 80 students last year, the rate has dropped to four this year — at a time when the white dropout have doubled.

"It's because there's somebody here who cares," says Mr. Claus.

That's an understatement. Les Claus' whole life has been wrapped up with the children of his reserve and the caring goes back generations. His wife, mother, grandmother and great-grandfather were teachers, as are his son, daughter and daughter-in-law.

As Indian Liaison Officer, Mr. Claus' function is to give support, encouragement and practical assistance to the 72 reserve Indians at Moira and the seven at other secondary schools in Belleville.

But non-treaty Indians and other Moira students are now beating a path to his second-floor office. On paper, Mr. Claus may appear to be a sort of educational social-worker, but for many years he has been an unrecognized force in Ontario education and Indian affairs.

Given a partial list of his accomplishments is mind-boggling. He is a director of the Indian Hall of Fame, a member of the ministry of education's committee that screens books for racial bias, a member of the Ontario Curriculum Advisory Board, a member of the committee that set up a summer course for teachers who work with native students. And he is a resource person on Native Studies for all Hastings county schools.

Of late, Mr. Claus's time has been devoted to pre-prepare material for the new Indian Studies programs being introduced into secondary schools.

A box of reference materials on contemporary Indians, stationed by the Union of Ontario Indians, is heavily dependent on his interviewing and photographic skills.

He travelled to eastern James Bay to a Cree reserve to gather material for the box.

"They were afraid that if they lent it a white man he would never make contact with the people," said Mr. Claus.

The prediction almost came true. The Cross of Paint Hills mistook Mr. Claus for a white, and only agreed to cooperate after they learned his true identity.

"I had only one problem," he chuckled. "They spoke Cree and I spoke English."

Mr. Claus is perhaps proudest of his part in setting up the course for teachers of Indians at Trent University. This year the two - summer - sessions course will be extended to London, Ont.

"Whites going north to teach Indians have great problems making contact with the pupils and their parents," he said. "I doubt if the northern Indians will ever get over their distrust of the white persons."

Many northern schools have a turnover of three teachers a year, Mr. Claus knows of at least one man who became insane because of total isolation.

"You can't imagine the total silence at those northern villages, unless it happens to be one with dogs," he said.

To break through the barriers of silence, Mr. Claus and representatives of the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education set up the summer course at Trent.

"Shyness is characteristic of the Indian," says Mr. Claus. "I'm always amazed that some people in Tyendinaga, not even 1/16th Indian—can by enough to belong on the band list — still retain this characteristic. It probably comes from their ancestors long periods alone with nature, watching and observing, when it was not necessary to make a lot of noise among people."

Young teachers are shown how to bring Indian youngsters out of the shell of silence into full participation in classroom work. The American Bureau of Indian Affairs has sent observers to study the Trent program.

Mr. Claus, who teaches Native Studies two months a year at Moira, has definite ideas on the emerging subject.

"I feel it should be taught as part of the Canadian history course," he said. "The Indians are part of Canadian history, why shouldn't they be a part of the school course?"

His ideas contrast with others, who have made an extensive review of the North American Indian cultures as a separate high school credit course.

His latest venture is a cultural exchange program between Tyendinaga Indian students and a reserve at Bella Bella, 350 miles north of Vancouver.

Through the department of the secretary of state, he hopes to take five grade 13 students there in June to film a documentary.

The Tyendinaga students must provide $600 of the cost themselves.

"The problem out there is that they must go to school in Vancouver and live in boarding homes," said Mr. Claus. "They don't have any dropouts, because there's no place for them to drop out to."

Mr. Claus has devoted his life to teaching and retired from a long career in Tyendinaga Reserve before taking up his present appointment. He thinks that education has ill-served his people in the past.

"On many reserves, children were sent to spend a year at a time away from their parents a, residential schools. They could have revolted, but if they did, the RCMP was called in, and the Mounties always got their man — even children."

Nobody knows, says Mr. Claus, how many Indian children perished running away from the RCMP dragnet — another reinforcement for the northern Indians' distrust of the white.

"If I were young again, beginning my career," mused Les Claus, the teacher, "I would go north, to those people up there."

Then he shrugged. Indian-like diffidence taking over.

"You know how I feel I am of hunting and fishing," he said.

Need for Economy

We have spoken often enough of the need for economy in the running of the country's affairs, more especially today in view of escalating inflation not to mention the pressure on our material resources.

Ottawa correspondent Richard Jackson has given chapter and verse on the capacity of the Government bureaucracy to become waste and bungle one project after another at the taxpayer's expense. Consider the horrendous sums spent over the years on various defence schemes which have proved of little or no use and in any event have quickly become obsolete.

Queen's Park correspondent Don O'Hearn has mentioned also that people interviewed in Toronto about the provincial government's dropping of the energy tax, while agreeing with the move, suggested there should be more economy in government.

Then again we have the Science Council of Canada's report on regional development. Henry Heald, colleague of vacationing Richard Jackson, discussed the report on this page the other day. He said the report "criticized the myriad of regional development schemes at the provincial and municipal levels which sometimes upset national goals by trying to fill in local gaps. This also creates competition between provinces, to try and attract a particular industry. As a result the cost of attracting new industry tends to escalate as sometimes there just are not enough new plants to go around..

"Within the federal government itself," Heald went on, "there are too many departments that are involved in the act and too few public servants with first-hand experience in manufacturing. Despite the fact that many of the agencies have been brought under the department of regional economic expansion, there are still at least 21 federal departments and agencies involved in regional development programs."

No need to elaborate on the waste and duplication involved in that kind of situation. And where does it all end? As Don O'Hearn points out, there never has been a study of provincial government efficiency, one that would lead to the saving of money, on the lines for example of the federal Glassco commission some years ago.

Perhaps this is the time to appoint such a body. Unfortunately spending by Government, waste and extravagance, is a situation that has been allowed to go unchecked, while at the same time the taxpayer (by such means as the late unfamented energy tax proposal) attempts to extract still more funds from a long-suffering public.

Girls Do Well

If ever there was an argument for involving women more in the affairs of the community and nation it is surely to be found in the results of the recent essay contest sponsored by the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show and the Youth Science Foundation.

Ontario students captured nine of the ten winning places and eight of them were girls — two each from Ottawa and Toronto and the others from Hanford, Manotick, Willowdale and Fenelon Falls.

According to Youth Science News, the publication of science and engineering clubs of Canada, it is the second consecutive year in which girls were predominant, with 56 per cent of all entries submitted. Thus, numbers alone gave them an advantage — yet there must be more to it than that; like a genuine interest in their subject and the ability to put it together in essay form.

The students wrote 2,000 word essays on the history, geography, economy, demography and natural resources of this country's Arctic region. Their reward is a 12-day tour of the Yukon and Northwest Territories in July, starting from Edmonton. Three hundred and forty eight young people entered the contest, of whom 174 were from Ontario. The breakdown of entries from other provinces makes interesting reading: Saskatchewan 75, Quebec 30, Manitoba 21, British Columbia 19, Alberta 15, Nova Scotia 9, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island 2 each, and Newfoundland 1. Ironically there were no entries from the Northwest or Yukon territories.

The other two winners were Andrew Ellis, Scarborough, and Stephen Watson, Winnipeg.

As we said, it would be to the country's advantage if talent such as the eight girl winners possess could be harnessed, not to mention to their own advantage — say as teachers or in university research.

Food Prices Part of the Over-all Inflationary Picture

By HENRY HEALD

OTTAWA — After nearly a year of eloquent expressions of concern about rising food prices, the responsibility for doing anything to control them — or indeed there is anything that should be done — is clearly back where it has always been, with the federal cabinet.

All "positive" action, political capital out of the fact that the food component of the consumer price index has been rising faster than other components. They used it to fire the electric rhetoric, it was part of the controversy about how many Parliament should be called into session, it got top billing in the Throne Speech, the establishment of a special Common committee caused hot debate in the House, during the two-month committee study each party was at pains to get across its particular point of view and then the committee report — on which there was not all-party agreement caused another heated debate in the Commons.

Now, eight months after Prime Minister Trudeau called the election, we hear we are to get a "food prices review board. And what will the prices review board do? It will recommend to cabinet what administrative or legislative action should be taken.

Consider, however, that the prime minister and the finance minister have consistently refused to apply an over-all policy of controlling prices and incomes, and consider that Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray told the news conference when he announced the review board that he didn't think he had the constitutional authority to freeze any particular food price, then the prices review board becomes exactly what the Conservatives predicted it would be — a toothless wonder.

The whole charade adds substantial support to the position taken by the Conservatives from the beginning.

First on the question of teeth for the board. Mr. Gray is right when he says that as commissioners under the Inquiries Act, the review board members will have lots of power, but that is power only in the investigating sense. The Conservatives argue that the special Commons committee already has that power.

There would appear to be a large measure of truth in the charge by Newfoundland Tory James McGrath that the board was set up during the recess under the Inquiries Act "because the cabinet was afraid to face Parliament with such a weak proposal."

The New Democrats apparently are prepared to live with the kind of board Mr. Gray has proposed provided the government will promise to act quickly on the boards' recommendations and provided Parliament will give the minister the power to step or roll back food price increases.

Second score for the Tories is the view that a 90-day freeze on all prices and incomes is the place to start. Mr. McGrath argues that food price increases are due to a number of factors including labor costs.

The problem is inflation, not food prices, and you don't combat inflation with a board that concentrates solely on food," says McGrath.

Mr. Gray himself lent support to the idea of a total freeze when he admitted that the problem of federal and provincial jurisdictions did not give him the power to step in and freeze food prices alone.

In other words, if food prices are to be controlled, they will have to be controlled along with all other prices and incomes as well.

The real problem, of course, is that there is no unanimity within the cabinet — nor indeed within the country — on whether or not food prices are too high or whether controls are even desirable.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan is the most outspoken advocate of the view that food — even our daily beef — is a bargain in Canada, but he is not the only one. Nor is he the only one arguing that even with the rising prices, the farmer is still not sharing equitably in the improved Canadian standard of living.

Where there is unanimity in the country is in the view that a lot of Canadians are stuck in a position where they can not compete with inflation. That retirement incomes, once expected to enable a couple to retire in dignity, now barely allow them to subsist, that unskilled workers with large families are better off on welfare than trying to live with the minimum wage.

These are the problems that the country as a whole should be tackling. The fact that food prices went up 16 per cent last year is only a small part of the over-all question of providing a satisfying standard and quality of life for all Canadians.

Bangladesh Badly Needs Overseas Markets

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Bangladesh, almost 18 months after the brutal war which created this new South East Asian state, is still struggling to find its place among the 140 other developing nations of the Third World.

It began from a point of almost total destitution, no funds, a bankrupt economy, communications ruined by fighting and with a population growing at a rate excessive even for Asia.

The new "people's republic" as it is styled, scraped through be first year primarily on loans and aid funds from international agencies and friendly powers. Now with a government well-entrenched, a diplomatic service organized abroad to push Bangladesh interests and internal recovery well under way, this harvest of the many struggling nations of Asia seeks its due portion of world trade.

Lingering from the war is the legacy of hate, suspicion and intolerance which has left huge populations in hostile territory where they no longer wish to remain. How to expatriate them all is a major problem not only for Bangladesh, but for India and rump Pakistan.

Sheikh Mujib, the Bangladesh leader has proposed a tripartite plan for expatriation which involves the following exchange of 40,000 Pakistani prisoners-of-war in India (Bangladesh wants to try 195 of them for war crimes), 500,000 Biharis in Bangladesh, 250,000 of which have opted for return to Pakistan and about 400,000 Bengalis in Pakistan who lost army and civil service positions when the war broke out.

The Biharis in Bangladesh (former East Pakistan), are basically former Pakistani civil servants and businessmen who immigrated to the Eastern portion of the old Pakistan before the 1971 war. (It should be remembered that East and West Pakistan were separated by 1,000 miles of hostile Indian territory).

The Bengalis presently in Pakistan are from East Pakistan and moved in the opposite direction to take up similar civil service and military posts in the Western half of the former twin-sided Pakistan.

Both Bangladesh and Pakistan have dealt harshly with nationals who were caught on the wrong side of a war which Pakistan lost. The Bengalis in the West were thrown out of government jobs as security tasks. The Biharis in the east, (the new Bangladesh), were isolated and cut off even from basic medical and food services until quite recently.

Meantime new Bangladesh diplomatic missions overseas now scour rich Western markets to secure former outlets for their jute and rice, seek new ones for such agricultural products as pineapple.

Mr. Abdul Momnim, the High Commissioner of Bangladesh in Canada is an experienced diplomat, a former member of the Pakistani diplomat diplomatic service, whose career began over 20 years ago in Burma.

He outlined to me in a quiet, persuasive way a lunch the other day the depth of his country's search for trading partners.

When I told him, that his country would have great difficulty in Canada penetrating the highly specialized food processing markets as canned pineapple, because of the well-marketed Australian product, he enlightened me with the fact that Canada imports more of that popular fruit from Malaysia than Australia.

In Dacca, the new republic's capital, a former army general in charge of transport is working out a plan for a national development bank, prevent Bangladesh from being at the mercy' at very high ship charter rates.

Cheap ocean transport is vital to a country so far from her potential major markets and so close to competing Asian neighbors already ahead of her in developing such services.

Compassion at home and determination to trade abroad, are the present major factors in the huge efforts of Bangladesh to survive.

60 Per Cent of Tourist Dollar Spent at Home

By RON ADAMS
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Canadian tourist industry can look forward to its greatest summer season ever, says Dan Wallace, director of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau.

Mr. Wallace, who heads the world's largest government travel promotion operation, said in an interview that the industry has been growing at a rate of about 10 per cent in Canada over the past decade. He said he would be "surprised and disappointed" if 1973 growth did not match that pace.

"For every province and every part of Canada, this should be our best year ever," he said.

Our best customers will again be ourselves, he expects, Canadians have traditionally preferred that Americans account for most of our tourist trade. But a major study concluded in 1971 that Canadians spend 60 per cent of the tourist dollar in this country. Americans do account for most of the remainder, although British, European and recently Japanese travellers are being persuaded to "Explore Canada".

In 1971, the last year for which accurate statistics are available, total tourist spending in Canada amounted to $3.5 billion. A decade earlier, tourism had generated less than one-third of that spending.

Mr. Wallace said tourism is the world's fastest growing industry, and could continue to grow at about 10 per cent a year until the end of this century.

There is no accurate figure available yet on the industry's real employment. Mr. Wallace, he said spokesmen frequently use a figure of 700,000, but that is a "vague estimate". Statistics Canada is now compiling results of a study which should give a more accurate picture of tourism employment, one which could rise considerable above the three-quarters of a million mark.

The importance of tourism to the country also lies in the geographical distribution of the trade, Mr. Wallace says. Although some regions are traditionally more popular as tourist attractions — Ontario's lake country, historic regions of Quebec and the Atlantic provinces and the Rockies in the west — there is scarcely a small town in Canada that couldn't offer the urban traveller what he seeks.

Mr. Wallace says American travellers basically want to change from the big cities and urban problems that a growing number of them live with.

"If people have to live in places like New York, Chicago and Detroit, they have to be able to escape to a place like Canada," he said. "Our major problem is that a great majority of Americans want what we have, but don't believe we have it."

To help persuade them, Canada is spending $17 million to promote travel this year, most of it in the U.S. Mr. Wallace said that is more money than any other government spends to attract tourism. But it is justified by the fact that we are dependent to a greater than spends more — about $50 billion annually — on travel than any other.

Canadians can expect to see unprecedented the same kind of tourist this year as in recent seasons.

Most will be upper middle-class, "average" North Americans who will travel with their families, and a growing number will bring their own accommodation with them, either in the form of camping equipment or recreational vehicles.

And unless the much-publicized U.S. fuel crisis heightens rapidly, most will continue to use the family car as their chief means to travel into and around Canada.

They will continue to come, Mr. Wallace said, Canada's biggest and fastest growing dollar-earner.

Focus On Regionalism

Peterborough Examiner

One beneficial effect of the wide-spread dissatisfaction in the Colombo Port Hope area with the Ontario government's Oshawa-Central Region Plan is that it has made many other areas aware of the true implications of regional government.

The tremendous impact the surprise packet has had on the administrations of these municipalities has since reverberated along the eastern edge of the proposed region.

It has taught the officials and the public of the surrounding regions (a) to take seriously the inevitability of regional government and (b) to study their own plans in the light of such proposals when the time comes.

The public reaction to the Port Hope-Cobourg disaster is far more interesting and even more surprising than the predictable official outcry. Municipal solicitations can be expected to react strongly to opposition on them of more powerful bodies by the provincial government. But the public seldom has a massive increase in interest in public affairs.

The example of Port Hope and Cobourg, which do not want to be lumped together with Oshawa, shook up Peterborough, made this area think of its future in more practical terms and caused a flurry of activities in almost every county in the neighborhood.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada paid the Hudson's Bay Company $11 million 103 years ago today—in 1870 — for its rights in Rupert's Land and in the Northwest Territories. This extension of the Canadian boundaries without inviting the opinions of the inhabitants led, a few months before, to Louis Riel's establishment of the provisional government in the Red River colony. This was suppressed by military force and, as a result, Manitoba was created as a full-fledged province.

1908—The Brant Historical Society was founded at Brantford, Ont.

Drinking Troughs For Dogs?

TORONTO (CP) — A city committee is considering installing drinking troughs for dogs in parks to keep them from using public fountains.

The parks and recreation committee asked for a report on the troughs Thursday, but some members disagreed with the proposal.

Ald. George Ben said the idea was preposterous.

"And are we going to have signs directing the dogs to those drinking troughs?" he asked.

"Ever since man started to roam this earth, dogs have been with him . . . and sharing even his drinking fountain."

Ivan Forrest, city parks commissioner, favored the troughs and said they could be installed at little expense.

"The main problem, however, is getting dogs to use them," he said.

Equal But . . .

TORONTO (CP) — Labor Minister Fernand Guindon told the legislature Thursday that the Employment Standards Act requires equal pay for men and women only when doing the same job in the same camp.

In reply to an earlier question, Mr. Guindon said it both sexes are not performing the same job in the same company the present act wouldn't apply.

However, he said the matter was under intense review by his ministry.

Mr. Guindon said this problem and others would be corrected with amendments to the legislation he hoped to bring in during the fall session.

Lake Pollution

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Riddell (L—Huron) asked the provincial government Thursday to consider making the sewage pollution problems of Lake Huron a priority program.

He said 45 per cent of all sewage and waste disposal systems around the lakes have either washed out or filled in and some cottage owners are unaware of the situation.

Labor Problem

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Mayor Ed Lumley said Thursday there is nothing practical the city can do to restrict the use of Quebec labor here.

Mayor Lumley said at a news conference that a meeting Wednesday between civic officials and labor leaders failed to reach any concrete solution concerning the problem of out-of-province labor in the construction trades.

Unemployed construction workers in Cornwall began picketing construction sites in the city two weeks ago to protest the employment of workers from Quebec. The Cornwall workers have complained for years that contractors have been hiring Quebec workers at wages far lower than union wages in Cornwall.

U.S. Needs Milk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Import quotas that limit dry milk are to be increased temporarily by 60 million pounds to relieve a domestic shortage and drive down prices, President Nixon announced Thursday.

Non-fat dry milk, of which Canada is a major supplier, is used in such items as ice cream, dry milk mix, protein soups, processed meats and low-fat milk products.

Teachers' Pay

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says that the 4,000 community college teachers in Ontario are asking for salary increases over an 18-month period averaging more the 17 per cent, as well as a cut in working hours.

The newspaper says that the teachers want raises that will narrow the gap between low- and high-paid staff and boost the annual increment to $700 from $400. It also says they want work schedules cut to 17 classroom hours a week and the teaching year reduced to 195 days from about 200.

Tri-level Meet

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's first tri-level conference to discuss housing, transportation and environmental issues will be held May 28-29 in Peterborough, John White, provincial minister of inter-governmental affairs, announced Thursday in the legislature.

The conference to bring together Ontario provincial and municipal government leaders, along with federal representatives first was proposed last November at national tri-level talks here.

Mr. White said the Peterborough conference at Trent University will be open to the press.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon and Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party leader, will be invited to attend as observers.

Mr. Apps announced the appointment of W. J. Eastaugh in the legislature after confirming that he had received a telegram from the branch of the Civil Service Association at Guelph.

The guards called for an investigation of working conditions.

The Guelph controversy surfaced last week when Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) held a news conference the reformatory was on the verge of a riot.

Mr. Eastaugh, who retires as principal of an Etobicoke high school in June, was previously superintendent of the Bowmanville training school and the Brampton adult training centre.

A Norwegian air force statement said the pilot ejected too late for his parachute to open.

Jail Drugs

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — An investigation of the Erie County jail has failed to substantiate a prisoner's claim that heroin is distributed by guards, a district attorney said Thursday.

Eric Conrad Michael Dillon said his staff made an investigation after David Gotbell, a prisoner, said that he had been able to obtain heroin while in custody last month.

Pyramid Sales

TORONTO (CP) — John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, said Thursday that no pyramid sales plans had been approved in Ontario since legislation regulating such plans was passed last year.

One firm was "progressing in the direction" of receiving a licence but whether it ultimately would be approved remained in doubt, he said during legislature committee consideration of his ministry's budget estimates.

"Perhaps we should consider legislation to ban" pyramid sales schemes outright, he said.

Big Drug Haul

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Martin Clayton Kane, 20, and Danny Norman Brookes, 22, both of Windsor, were charged with possession of a drug for the purpose of trafficking Thursday after police seized methamphetamine (speed) with an estimated street value of $45,000.

Police said Thursday's seizure was the largest drug haul in this area from any source.

Flood Fund Dry

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Essex County Flood Relief Fund has all but dried up with contributions trickling in at a "terrible" rate, says Secretary Clarence Ouellette.

He said Wednesday the fund already has paid out $151,000 in claims and has another $4,000 earmarked for two projects. It had received $180,693 up to last week and now has a margin of only about $5,000.

McCord Heard Mitchell Had Approved Bugging

WASHINGTON (AP) — James W. McCord Jr. has testified under oath that he never would have participated in the Watergate operation without assurances that John Mitchell as attorney-general had approved it.

McCord also swore that fellow convicted conspirator G. Gordon Liddy told him Mitchell received logs of wiretapped conversations in a visit to the Nixon's campaign chairman, after he quit as attorney-general.

McCord said Liddy had told Mitchell urged the wiretappers to get started in mid-April, 1972, and later prodded the bugging crew to make its second entry into Democratic headquarters June 17, when five of them were arrested.

McCord's testimony, given April 30 and May 1 in connection with the Democratic party's lawsuit against the Nixon campaign for $8.4 million in damages from the Watergate raid, was made public Thursday.

Although much of what McCord said was reported second-hand before, the 383-page transcript of his testimony is his first sworn statement officially made public.

There were other developments in the Watergate case Thursday:

—Mitchell and former commerce secretary Maurice Stans were indicted in New York for conspiracy to defraud the U.S. government, obstruction of justice and perjury in a case involving fugitive financier Robert Vesco and $200,000 he gave the Nixon campaign last year.

—Outed presidential counsel John Dean issued a statement saying unnamed persons are trying to "get" him and limit his testimony about White House involvement in the wire tapping of Democratic headquarters and the subsequent cover-up.

—Elliot Richardson testified at Senate hearings on his nomination to be attorney-general that he feels "betrayed by the shoddy standard of morals of those whose activities have recently come to light" in the affair. He promised a broad and independent investigation.

In his deposition, McCord said Liddy had told him the wiretapping operation had been approved by Mitchell, Dean and former campaign deputy Jeb Magruder.

Liddy himself has refused to testify before the Watergate grand jury,and has received an additional prison term for that refusal.

At one point McCord was asked: "Had you not been assured that the attorney-general had approved the plans for the Watergate operation, would you have participated?"

He replied: "Had I not been assured that he had approved of it I would not have participated.

McCord said he felt that the operation was legal, because Mitchell had authority to authorize wiretaps, and that had it been illegal Mitchell or Dean would have disapproved.

He also said that on April 12, 1972, Liddy told him Mitchell was becoming impatient to get started with wiretapping and espionage missions that had been planned and approved.

He quoted Liddy as saying: "Attorney-General Mitchell, in effect had told him that let's go ahead and be prepared to get into operation as quickly as possible, and he said by that Mr. Mitchell meant within 30 days, if possible."

Ellsberg Overheard By Federal Sleuths

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Pentagon papers trial moves into new legal entanglements today following disclosures that Daniel Ellsberg was overheard by federal wiretappers whose records have vanished.

The FBI revealed the government researchers was heard on a wiretap up to two years before he released the Pentagon papers to the news media.

Judge Matt Byrne of U.S. district court, demanding the government answer him today about the disappearance of 1969 and 1970 wiretap logs, also has told lawyers for both sides to be prepared for legal arguments on the wiretap issue.

The team of defence lawyers urged questioning of former attorney-general John Mitchell and perhaps President Nixon about the secret wiretaps at the home of Ellsberg's friend, Morton Halperin, a one-time White House official.

With legal grounds apparently mounting for possible dismissal of the case against Ellsberg and Anthony Russo, Byrne has the choice of deciding for or against dismissal after today's arguments or of waiting for more evidence from the government.

Ellsberg and Russo are accused of espionage, conspiracy and theft for copying the Pentagon papers, a top-secret study on U.S. involvement in Vietnam, in 1969.

Painstaking Craftsmanship

The technique of cutting fine strips of wool flannel used in craft hooking is demonstrated by Shirley Hennessey, who teaches the art here. Hand operated machines cut the fabric to be pulled through burlap to form colorful wall - hangings, rugs and other decorations as well as trimming for clothes.

It takes hand - dyed wool flannel, sheared into strips 3-32nd of an inch wide, then painstakingly pulled through the weave of fine burlap with a miniscule hook — as many as 196 looks per square inch of fabric.

It's called craft hooking and it can take years to complete a large project.

There are about 30 devotees of craft hooking in Belleville and one of the most accomplished is Shirley Hennessey who teaches the craft in her home studio.

"I never had a scrap of patience . . . I think hooking taught me patience."

Mrs. Hennessey, who has lived in Belleville with husband Ray for five years, took up craft hooking at the insistence of a friend who was signing up for lessons. The family then lived in Ottawa.

"It's funny . . . she dropped hooking and here I am 14 years later still at it," Mrs. Hennessey says.

As her civil servant husband — he's now Belleville's director of income tax — transferred from Ottawa to Charlottetown to St. John, Mrs. Hennessey moved from student of hooking to teacher of hooking.

In the Maritimes, she regularly demonstrated the art on television.

Projects begin with a plan . . . a decision to make a wallhanging, or a pictorial (a large wallhanging which embodies a scene often pastoral) or a purse — even a skirt decorated with hooking.

Then, as Mrs. Hennessey explains, a design is copied or made by the craftsman, then transferred onto fine white net. The net is placed over the burlap to be hooked and the design transferred to it.

Then, with either hand or commercially dyed flannel — the scrap of flannel or wool — the design is hooked. The material is turned and in a small machine which cuts fabric into strips 3-32nd of an inch wide.

"There might be 50 shades in a pictorial," Mrs. Hennessey points out. She's currently working on a two - year - old project — a large pastoral scene.

She's produced an estimated 25 wallhangings and five rugs over the years, many of which decorate her Forest Hill home. Recently, Mrs. Hennessey has hooked sculpted wallhangings which are sheared for a rich textured effect.

Special tools help in the painstaking work.

Mrs. Hennessey uses magnifying glasses and their little known counterpart, receding glasses which allow her to get the effect of standing several feet from the work — as it will look when completed and hung.

Her work is mounted on a large floor frame; smaller pieces are held taut in embroidery hoops.

Craft materials costs are relatively low in comparison to other hobby work.

Flannel, undyed and untreated, costs from $3 to $5 per yard; a hook costs about $1.50 and patterns for novices from $1 to $3. A hoop may cost about $2.50.

Founder of Belleville's three year-old Ontario Hooking Craft Guild branch, Mrs. Hennessey has just completed a two-year assistant as councillor for eight such branches.

She and 16 members of the local branch recently returned from the Guild's annual meeting in Toronto which more than 800 persons attended.

"It's double the number who attended our last annual meeting here in Belleville — it was thrilling."

Hooking is, in fact, a rapidly growing craft with an increasing number of devotees, Mrs. Hennessey says, there are now many male devotees some of whom have been in her classes.

Consecon Women Celebrate

Women's Institute members representing all branches of Prince Edward District attended an afternoon tea at Kingsley Hall, Consecon, to help Consecon Women's Institute celebrate its 60th anniversary.

An anniversary cake on the tea table was the focal point of the hall, decorated in Institute blue and gold. Individual tables held a single shortstemmed 'mum.

Guests were welcomed by the newly elected president, Mrs. Vincent Tracey. Registration was handled by Mrs. Clifford Smith and Mrs. Elsie Tripp presented each lady with a name tag. Then Mrs. Robert Keene, Mrs. Fred Schwarzer, Mrs. Alice Belrap escorted the guests to their tables.

Among the 100 guests were Mrs. Evelyn Barber, Provincial Board member; Mrs. George Vincent, District President and also the following Past Presidents of the Branch — Mrs. Harry MacDonald, Mrs. Mabel Rattray, Mrs. Clifford Smith, Mrs. Arthur Weir, Mrs. Ruth Edgar, Mrs. Howard Walt, Mrs. John Walt and Mrs. George Cunningham.

The theme for the afternoon was "Down Memory Lane" and so the program reflected 60 years of activity of the organization. Each decade was summarized by a commentator. Guests, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Ira Hewton, joined in singing a bit song from that period. Memories were good because songs like "Memories", "Till We Meet Again", "I'll See You in My Dreams", "Waltz You Saved For Me", "Now is the Hour", "Music, Music, Music", "Something To Sing About" were all well remembered.

The Branch Curator, Mrs. Clifford Smith, spent many hours researching past minute books to come up with basic facts of the last 60 years of activity of this Institute group. This history was then presented by three commentators, Margaret MacLean 1913 - 1929, Mrs. Cecil Blakely 1930 - 1949, Mrs. George Cunningham 1950 - 1970.

From the information given the listeners learned that Consecon Institute has been actively involved — Installing gas lights in the village; standing by local men in two world wars; supporting community needs and activities; giving First Aid Kits to the local school; helping needy persons during the depression years with eye glasses, shoes, etc.; keeping record of historical events of the community in the Tweedsmuir History Book; retaining historical artifacts of local interest within the area; demonstrating various culinary, sewing and decorating skills of interest to every homemaker; presenting facts and information pertaining to timely topics of the day — Causes of Juvenile Delinquency, Women and the Law, Mental Health, Cancer Films, Making Wills, Do's and Don'ts of Driving Habits.

Minute books revealed the early meetings were socially oriented (an evening out) and the presence of men was evident since the ladies were not nearly as independent (most were not able to drive) and had to be chauffered by husbands who stayed for visiting with the men of the house.

Even the content of the meetings have undergone change. Past records indicated that singing, music, contests and demonstrations of home arts seemed to makeup the bulk of program materials. How would you fare in a darning contest? Or put into practice the art of butter making after seeing a demonstration at last week's Institute meeting? Of course darning is nearly obsolete now in this age of permanent press pants, iron on patches and synthetic socks. How can butter be made from homogenized milk?

At the close of the program the President Mrs. Tracey and the Past President Mrs. George Cunningham cut the special cake. Then the guests enjoyed a social hour with Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Howard Walt pouring tea.

Do Unto Other . . .

Especially Broken Bones

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — Jean Baxter's philosophy has an almost biblical ring: Do unto others as they do unto you.

Among memories of things done unto her are a number of broken ribs and a somewhat misshapen nose, broken for the third time when she was hit on the head with a chair.

At 23, Jean has been a professional wrestler for two years, the only graduate of a four-girl class conducted by Whipper Billy Watson after his retirement from the pro circuit. The other three found the curriculum too tough and dropped out.

"You have to be fairly tough to be in this business," she said. "But you have to be a lady, too."

For a female wrestler, staying in shape means just that.

"Fat women wrestlers aren't appealing and neither are skinny ones," Jean explained. "A lady should look like a lady."

While her 145 pounds are satisfactorily distributed over her five-foot-one frame she feared when she first approached Watson that she might be too small for the job. But she was soon reassured.

"She is really nothing," said the former Jean Duerden, who became Baxter when she turned professional. "Small girls can win with surprise moves. It takes mostly skill to win and, at certain points, strength."

After six months of night-and-day sessions with the Whipper, Jean was ready.

"I'm an exceptionally good drop-kicker now," she said. "I mostly stick to the basic holds like full Nelsons, the Boston crab and the flying scissor." Since then, she has learned a few more tricks.

"Some wrestlers will try anything to win," she said. "I wrestled one woman who pulled my hair, bit and kicked me and threw me right out of the ring."

That was the same girl that hit her with the chair.

She has a word for people who think the bouts are fixed.

"I've got doctor bills to prove mine aren't. Tell them to call me and they can get in the ring with me."

Ann Landers

Daughter, Stepfather Clash

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married to this man for 15 years. My daughter by a previous marriage is 13. Bill has been a good father to Wendy and to our own two children.

About two years ago I noticed that Bill fooled around with Wendy a lot, punching her, pulling her on his lap, and tickling her. She would run giggling and screaming into the other room. It seemed like innocent fun and I said nothing, although he never behaved like that with our own two daughters.

Lately he has been walking into Wendy's bedroom "to hurry her up" when she is dressing. This morning I heard her shout, "Please, will you knock first? I hate it when you just walk in and I have nothing on."

I had a private chat with Wendy that night and she said he has never done anything "wrong" but she wishes he wouldn't d a d would "leave her alone." Wendy is very mature for 13 and now I suddenly remember other letters in your column about fathers and stepdaughters. Please repeat the advice. I blocked it out of my consciousness and now I know why. —Fred Was No Fool

Dear Fred: The advice goes like this: A 13-year-old girl is more of a woman than a child. She is old enough to tell a stepfather, a boyfriend or a funny uncle to keep his pan-chin' hands off her body—if she really wants them kept off. Some teen-agers are testing their wow-power just to see if it works, so don't make any rash assumptions, Mom. That train can both ways.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been able to handle life's major problems without help. But the petty things somehow get balanced into enormous proportions.

Doesn't a four-generation photograph mean four people in the same family, such as a great-grandmother, grandmother, mother and the baby—all directly related? If, say, the baby is adopted, doesn't that break the bloodline.

Please put your answer in the paper. If I produced a letter from you they'd say I wrote it myself. You can't imagine the arguing that has been going on in regard to this difference in opinion.—Fee Is Flying in Australia

Dear Fur: Yes, I can imagine. And from the way you worded the question, I'll bet you aren't going to be happy with my answer.

An adopted child should have exactly the same status as any other child. And this goes for family pictures as well as everything else.

Dear Ann Landers: You seem to be straightforward and not afraid to say exactly what you think. Please don't let me down. The problem is with my parents.

Is there anything wrong with correcting your dad or mother if they say something fake in front of company? I was brought up to think that lying is wrong no matter who does it. If a kid is taught that he must always tell the truth and then he hears one of his parents breaking that rule, is it wrong to say so in front of whoever happens to be there? I hope you get the picture.—A Correctee In Trouble

Dear Correctee: I get the picture all right, but I'd like to point out that tact and consideration for a person's feelings can be just as important as honesty. You should have waited until the company left before you "corrected" your parents. No one likes to be hauled up short in front of his friends.

Flabby Hips Wants Advice

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I'm a so-called pestle of five-feet-one and bust of 32 inches. But my hips and thighs are very flabby.

Please, could you recommend some exercises which trim my thighs and flatten my derriere?

I enclose 25 cents. — Mrs. Flabby.

Dear Mrs. Flabby: O.K. - but where do you live?

Be Figure Perfect is the leaflet for you. Includes exercises for spot reducing and toning up flabby flesh.

Write again, this time enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Be sure to identify yourself and mention also that you have already sent your quarter.

* * *

Dear Doris: My husband was killed in an automobile accident in 1967. I was sure he had a life insurance policy but I don't know with which company. He carried important papers in a brief-case.

The brief-case was confiscated by the police and later returned but we have no way of knowing if any papers were missing. Is there any way that I can find out if he had a life insurance policy or not? — Clueless.

Dear Clueless. Some men carry precious papers around for years in their brief-cases but a life insurance policy is more likely to lie in a safety deposit box or in some carefully filed folder right in your home.

Look for clues through premium payments on old check stubs. Ask your husband's employer about possible company benefits.

If he contributed to the Canada Pension Plan there may be a widow's pension coming to you, and to find out about this, the place to write is the headquarters of the Department of National Health and Welfare, in the capital city of your province.

* * *

Dear Doris: I just can't seem to save money. I live from one pay day to the next, and I'm always broke. I've worked for five years, and my wages are fairly good, but I hardly have a cent to my name. — Spendthrift.

Dear Spendthrift: Saving money takes planning, self-discipline, and striving for a goal - a good reason for making precise in handling money possible by giving a child an allowance early.

Decide how much you want to save each pay day, then put it into a special savings account - one on which you can't write cheques. Save for a specific purpose like a trip or a hi-fi set.

A counsellor at your local family counselling service can help you to set up a budget.

'Hat Craze' In States

NEW YORK (AP) — Holly He'sey, 15, wore a smashing pink fedora with her teenybopper slacks and shirt as she pawed through clothes at Saks Fifth Ave.

"I've gone crazy over hats," said Holly. "Every time I make money baby-sitting, I go out and buy a hat."

Hats, she said, are the new thing at high school in Scarsdale, N.Y., and some girls even wear them to classes.

"I've got seven or eight hats," said her companion, Lisa Radano, her long hair streaming out from under a red felt hat.

After a long, dry, depressing decade in the 1960, hat manufacturers are kicking up their heels at the burst of activity this spring. Hat production was up two million in the United States last year over 1971 and business is still improving.

Hats selling well today are simple, inexpensive and sporty—roll brim Pelts, headhugging clothes—big straws. They sell at $4 to $18.

Indian Women Parade for Jobs

BOMBAY (CP) — The small town of Jorhat in India's northeastern Assam State recently witnessed what newspapers described as "an interesting but disturbing" demonstration.

Hundreds of women paraded the streets of Jorhat demanding jobs. One of the colorful cloth banners proclaimed: "If we can't get jobs, let's at least get husbands."

Anupama Das, one of the demonstrators, told reporters that unemployment among educated women in Assam and other parts of northeastern India had reached alarming proportions. She complained of discrimination by employers against women even when they were fully qualified for the posts advertised.

"The government should see to it that women get more jobs—alternatively, ways should be found to get us married to men with decent jobs," Miss Das, a 20-year-old graduate of Gauhati University, said.

The Jorhat women gave a tough time to a government committee on unemployment which visited the town. By keeping up a chorus of protest slogans, they almost made it impossible for the committee members to get down to their task.

Moves are under way to organize a statewide conference of unemployed educated women. If the Assam administration does not reserve a sizable proportion of all jobs for women, the movement will be carried to New Delhi, the national capital, to attract more attention.

Officials in Assam admitted that many qualified women are jobless but they said that in the context of local conditions unemployed men have to be given some preference.

As one official put it: "A jobless woman can at least look forward to marrying an employed man. But a jobless man has few such opportunities."

The latest government figures show there are nearly 70,000 persons, mostly men, registered with employment exchanges. They include hundreds of engineers, doctors and university graduates.

The government has not taken seriously the demand that it should help unemployed women find suitable husbands. One official said: "The government cannot turn match-maker. We are just not experienced in this particular field."

But Assamese women organizations say that since the government is the biggest employer and since Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has pledged herself to bring about equal opportunities for the two sexes, the government should take some interest in their matrimonial future.

They argue that one way to do this is by giving preference in government service to men who are prepared to marry unemployed educated women, other things beign equal.

At a women's meeting in Gauhati, the state capital, there were cheers when a speaker said: "If the prime minister of India can be a woman, why cannot proper weightage be given to women in all fields of employment?"

Abortions Cut Down Adoptions

OTTAWA (CP) — The growing number of abortions in Canada is drying up the supply of babies available for adoption, the president of a national anti-abortion group said Wednesday.

"There is in this country, in every major centre, large waiting lists of couples anxious and waiting to adopt babies. . . They cannot get these babies because they are being killed," Dr. Heather Morris, a Toronto obstetrician and head of Alliance of Life, told reporters.

Dr. Morris and about a dozen representatives of anti-abortion groups from across the country had met Prime Minister Trudeau and government officials. The group presented a petition bearing 333,632 signatures to the prime minister, Justice Minister Otto Lang, Science Minister Jeanne Sauve and Health Minister Marc Lalonde.

The group also presented the ministers with a brief, asking the government to grant full legal recognition to the unborn and to repeal 1969 amendments to the Criminal Code which liberalized abortion laws.

Dr. Morris said there is "no question that unwanted babies saved from abortions would all be adopted.

The group's brief cited a number of alternatives to abortion including extensive education on pre-natal life, counselling for pregnant women considering abortion, special programs for unwed mothers and agencies established to encourage women to carry their babies to term. The brief also calls for improved day-care facilities and more low-income housing to ease the financial burden of large families.

Women may acquire legal abortions if a committee of doctors in a recognized hospital sign a certificate stating that her health or life are endangered if forced to continue her pregnancy.

Abortions are not meant to be granted for social reasons such as poverty or too many children, Dr. Morris said. Neither should they be granted, on the basis that the woman's mental health will be endangered.

The trauma of an abortion only tends to deteriorate a woman's mental health, she said.

The report that News Quiz winners will be invited to speak on the floor of the Senate is grossly exaggerated. They could, though.

Liberal Urges Price Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — The reluctance of minority Liberal government to fight inflation through wage and price controls led to open criticism by one of its own backbenchers Thursday night in the Commons.

Ross Whicher, the outspoken member for the southwestern Ontario riding of Bruce, supported Conservative demands for immediate controls to halt the inflation spiral.

Mr. Whicher, the same MP who called for a Liberal leadership convention after the federal election last fall, said he does not accept the government argument that controls won't work in Canada because they have not worked elsewhere.

He said the alternative to controls is "absolute and final chaos in our lifetime." He urged MPs to abandon party loyalties and work together in an effort to control inflation.

He spoke as the House debated a Conservative motion that deplored the government record on inflation and called for a temporary price freeze while a solution is worked out in co-operation with the provinces, industry and labor.

The motion, dealt with in a day set aside for opposition business, served only as a vehicle for debate and did not come to a vote.

Conservatives hammered their desks repeatedly as Mr. Whicher supported controls.

James Gillies (PC—Toronto Don Valley) reiterated the Conservative position favoring a 90-day freeze but Mr. Whicher said he would lengthen the period to at least two years and extend the freeze beyond wages and prices to profits, rents and dividends.

Mr. Gillies said the freeze could be administered by a staff of 500 to 1,000 people and would not lead to the vast bureaucracy suggested by the Liberals.

During the freeze, he said, the government would work with the provinces and representatives of industry and labor to set up enforceable guides for appropriate increases in wages and prices."

The guides would go into effect after the freeze and apply until the forces of supply and demand operated effectively without them.

Finance Minister John Turner said no one denies that inflation is hurting every Canadian but the Conservative proposal was too ill-defined to be credible.

"It is a proposal which could aggravate inflation further rather than relieve it."

He said the government is watching the situation closely and is committed to do everything it can to ensure that low-income families in particular have enough money to cope with rising prices.

"The economic responses are not easy. . . . There are no magic clear-cut solutions and it is no use deluding ourselves or the country into believing that a solution is easy."

Mr. Turner said the motion glaringly underlines the party's lack of credibility and its "mounting desperation for power."

Today another opposition motion was to be debated. Drafted by the New Democrats, it criticizes the federal proposal to gradually opt out of the shared-cost health care field by giving additional tax room to the provinces.

The proposal ran into heavy resistance at a federal-provincial conference of finance, health and education ministers earlier this week.

Mint Ready

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation authorizing special stamps and coins to raise money for the 1976 Montreal Olympics will be introduced before the end of May, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Thursday.

Mr. Trudeau, who announced earlier the government had agreed to the legislation, was told by Don Blenkarn (PC—Peel South) that the Canadian mint now is ready to begin striking the coins.

Mr. Trudeau said he was not aware of this but if so, the legislation will free the mint to begin work.

Toilet Treasures

YORK, England (CP) — Even in Roman times, it seems, valuables were lost down the toilet. Archeologists exploring a Roman sewer below this Yorkshire city uncovered from the silt three solid gold trinkets. The finds are on show at a local museum.

Hees' Query Starts Sparring in House

OTTAWA (CP) — Depending on viewpoint, the Commons question period either came alive or fell apart Thursday as Prime Minister Trudeau crossed swords with two veteran Conservatives.

In the process, Mr. Trudeau demanded and won a retraction from Marcel Lambert (Edmonton West) for what was termed an unparliamentary remark and sparred with former prime minister John Diefenbaker (Prince Albert) in an encounter where the outcome was less clear.

The flare-up started when George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) asked Mr. Trudeau to raise old-age pensions and family allowances immediately to offset the impact of rising prices.

The prime minister said family allowances would have been raised last Jan. 1 had it not been for a dissenting vote by Paul Hellyer (PC—Trinity) in the last Parliament.

It was the second time this week that Mr. Trudeau has given the same answer to the question and, in the jeers that followed Thursday, Mr. Lambert accused him of deliberately misleading the House.

Mr. Trudeau demanded a retraction on grounds that the remark was unparliamentary.

Mr. Lambert, questioned by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, who had not heard the remark in the uproar, admitted making it. He apologized with the qualification that Mr. Trudeau must be ignorant of the facts involved.

Minutes later, Mr. Trudeau touched off the second clash with Mr. Diefenbaker when he announced that stamps and coinage legislation for support for the Montreal Olympics will be introduced soon. He said he hopes it will not be too complex for the opposition to understand.

Mr. Diefenbaker immediately accused Mr. Trudeau of pointing in his direction when the remark was made and said the prime minister should show more respect for House tradition.

Mr. Trudeau said he was not gesturing at Mr. Diefenbaker but at Don Blenkarn (PC—Peel South), who had asked a question on the topic.

Report Documents Complaints on Firenza

OTTAWA (CP) — Fanning the flames of the Firenza debate, the Automobile Protection Association (APA) released on Thursday a 119-page report, documenting consumer complaints against the controversial General Motors sub-compact model.

The report contains samples of letters written by about 250 unhappy Firenza owners to the APA and to GM, which sold the car in Canada in 1971 and 1972.

The car and its predecessors, the Vauxhall Viva and the Envoy, were manufactured in England by British Vauxhall, a GM subsidiary.

Also included in the report are copies of advertisements for the Firenza, newspaper articles, letters and other communications between owners, General Motors, the federal transport department, members of Parliament and Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray.

The report was prepared by APA officers in Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto. There are about 500 members of the APA, a consumer research association in the three cities. The report was also released in Britain where association president, Phil Edmonston, is visiting Vauxhall headquarters.

This train of thought leads to the surprising conclusion that, since there are two ways to play the clubs and only one way to play the diamonds, you should try the diamond finesse first — and on to how to play the clubs.

Suppose you lead a diamond to the jack at trick two and it wins. Given this success, the contract is foolproof. The only remaining problem is to absolutely guarantee five club tricks, and this can be done very simply by returning to your hand in any suit but clubs and leading a low club to dummy. This enables you to guard against either opponent's having the K-10-8-7.

If the diamond finesse at trick two loses, you will have to assume that South was dealt specifically the K-x or

To Your Good Health

Tremors Can Have Different Causes

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A friend has developed palsy in the last few years. He asked me to write—he is 65 and his hands shake so he cannot write.

He went to a doctor who gave him some pills which had a tendency to make him feel dopped, but only made his hands shake worse.

Let's split hairs for a moment, over terms. Palsy implies weakness or paralysis—which may or may not include shaking or tremor.

A tremor, however, is an involuntary movement—this can be of the extremities or of the head. Any tremor that your friend's problem is a tremor rather than a real palsy.

As to the cause, there are several. Parkinson's disease, is a likely possibility as your friend's age. L-dopa and a number of other medications have been pretty useful in controlling this, although no single medication has proved satisfactory in all cases.

There is also a tremor of old age that resembles Parkinson's disease, but is not accompanied by other symptoms of that disease.

An overactive thyroid can cause a fine tremor. This, too, can be treated successfully.

Finally, there are various disorders of the nervous system, much less common, but to be considered when the more common causes have been ruled out.

Since your friend's medication did not help him, he should return to his doctor for further diagnosis, or seek the help of a neurologist.

Until the cause has been correctly identified, the proper medication cannot be determined.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the cause of cramps in feet and legs at night?—Mrs. D.

Common reasons are faulty footwear or defects in the feet which subject the leg muscles to excessive strain during the day; lack of sufficiet calcium; impaired circulation.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a serious problem of grinding my teeth while sleeping and have cracked a capped tooth and caused two abscesses. I have tried sleeping with chewing gum, but to no avail. I swallow sometime during the night. Is there any medical solution or a dentist that could help? Replacing caps runs into quite a sum of money.—B.N.R.

Some subtle nervous tension may be the cause. Or some nagging discomfort—pleurisy being an example. But no doubt some of it is just a habit that has established itself.

If your doctor can't find any underlying cause that needs correction, one suggestion is that a dentist could make you a fitted tooth guard, not unlike the mouth guards used by boxers. This fits over the teeth so that, while you may continue your jaw movements, you don't damage your teeth.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could cooking with aluminum utensils possibly be harmful to the body?—A.S.

Not unless you burn yourself by grabbing a hot pot. This is an occasional accusation, apparently designed to persuade people to buy some other kind of cookware. Pay no attention.

Compensation To Be Raised

Almost All Collecting Higher Tax

TORONTO (CP) — Almost 100 per cent of Ontario vendors are "law-abiding citizens" and are collecting the additional two per cent on the province's retail sales act, Gordon Walker, parliamentary assistant to Revenue Minister Allan Grossman, said Thursday.

He made the statement in the legislature as opposition members continued their battle against the raising of the tax to seven per cent from five.

Ontario merchants were instructed by the province to collect the increased tax, announced in the April 12 budget, as of May 1. The legislation has yet to be passed by the legislature and opposition members insist it's illegal to collect it.

Mr. Walker (PC—London North) and Mr. Grossman were non-committal when asked if vendors who refused to collect the additional two per cent would be prosecuted.

Each potential case would be dealt with on its individual merits.

intends to introduce legislation next week that would adjust benefits under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

The amendments, he said, would increase the existing ceiling on earnings to $10,000 from $9,000 and, the minimum compensation for permanent total disability to $250 a month from $175.

Under opposition questioning, the minister said those people on permanent disability receiving less than $175 a month would have their stipend raised.

New Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis said the proposed amendments wouldn't help "the really terrible discrimination" against workmen injured before the 70s.

The Workmen's Compensation Board computes benefits for permanent total disability at 75 per cent of a person's wages up to $9,000 a year—or $6,750 compensation. By raising the wage limit to $10,000, the maximum for disability is being raised to $7,500 a year.

Mr. Lewis said persons injured in the 1950s and 1960s will continue to receive benefits based on wage the lower rates paid in those decades, and this was unfair.

Mr. Guindon said the NDP leader was correct.

"But one cannot expect future employers to pay for past accidents," he said.

Students Get Loans for 8 Years

TORONTO (CP) — Members of a legislature committee expressed astonishment Thursday that there are 287 students still receiving government loans after eight years as full-time university students.

"Holy mackerel, professional students," exclaimed Matthew Dymon (PC—Ontario) as the public accounts committee reviewed a section of the provincial auditor's report on overdue student-aid loans.

The report said that as of March 31, 1972, there was $787,437 owing from 3,116 borrowers who are making payments, and $148,262 from the 287 students "not yet required to make payments." Another 594 are in arrears of $336,507 and 40 o the loans worth $14,013 have been written off.

J. S. Stephen, assistant deputy in the education ministry, said he could give no explanation as to why the 287 students have remained in university for such a long period.

He suggested in an interview outside of the hearings that some may be taking lengthy courses, or have changed courses, or may have failed oth ers.

"Maybe some of them are perpetual students," he said.

A student does not have to be gin repaying a loan for one year after graduation.

Mr. Stephen also said in the interview that about half of the students whose loans have been written o are deceased. The others are bankrupt or not tra ceable.

He told the committee the defaulted loans have been turned over to the government's central collection services.

The loans are those provided under a fund that was discontinued in 1965.

White Hopes Premiers Parley Will Accept Quebec Proposal

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer John White said Thursday he was "hopeful" that a meeting of premiers to be held later this month at Ottawa would accept a recent Quebec proposal for an unconditional return of some federal income tax dollars to the provinces.

He was commenting in the legislature to a question from Opposition Leader Robert Nixon, who asked him to explain Ontario's position at a meeting of finance ministers in Ottawa Tuesday.

That meeting broke up when the finance ministers wouldn't accept two federal proposals for more sharing of tax monies in exchange for more control in the health and education fields.

The health proposal involved kickback of some income tax and a return of excise tax duties on tobacco and alcohol.

Post-secondary education proposals would have the federal government making per capita residents of a province between grants on the basis of those 18 and 24 years of age.

The provinces including Ontario, favor a Quebec proposal in which the federal government should unconditionally turn over 28 points of personal income tax to the provinces.

From The Inside Out

Something like the womb of aviation history, the 55-foot diameter lighter-than-air balloon swirls and billows while crews at its mouth work to pump air into the "bag" for inflation and take off. The aircraft is a promotional device for Mac-Donald's cigarettes. High winds would not permit a successful launch yesterday at Zwick's Island and the forerunner of modern flight was packed into its custom-made trailer to be shipped across the province on tour.

$4-million Treatment Plant Gets Approval

TRENTON — By 1975 Trenton will have a new $4-million sewage treatment plant south of the existing plant in Centennial Park.

In a closed session last night, town council passed a bylaw authorizing construction of the new facility. Two alternatives were rejected.

Construction will require a portion of the mouth of the Trent River to be land filled.

When completed, the town will be charged on a "per-gallon basis for sewage treatment by the ministry of the environment. The average homeowner's annual bill would increase from $62.66 to $67.04, showing an annual revenue of $298,727.

No additional charges will be made until completion of the project in October of 1975.

But Mayor Duncan MacDonald, in releasing information today, expressed doubt approval of the project by the Ontario Municipal Board would go through without a hitch.

"I wouldn't be surprised if another hearing were necessary," he said.

In 1971 the OMB approved a new treatment plant after public hearing but the town rejected the move when it was learned the provincial government wanted the plant to be used for area sewage treatment.

A major objection by both citizens and the environment ministry was proximity of the present plant to residential districts. They ruled in the official plan that no plan should be within 1,500 feet of housing developments.

This order ruled out a second alternative of expanding the existing 15-year-old plant, heavily overloaded for the past four years.

"I would wonder why any one would object now," the mayor said. "It would be away from the area where property values depreciate substantially."

He admitted the new plant could present some odor problem and this was another reason for selection of the in-bay site.

Four days ago Mayor MacDonald stated pressures were being brought to bear by the provincial government to proceed with selection of a site so that construction could start. One of their bargaining points was the new sewer system for the Fisher Brothers Incorporated plant on Carrying Place Road.

He promised settlement of the matter within three weeks.

The mayor said today now that council has passed the necessary bylaw, "the department will now approve the sewer to PBI."

Another concern to both the town and the province is leakage of water into the sewer system. When charges are levied by water galloonage basis — 36.7 cents per thousand gallons in 1973 in the new plant — leakage would prove extremely costly.

While he wouldn't say what steps are to be taken, Mayor MacDonald hinted at a thorough examination of the entire town sewer system over the next two years' to eliminate this problem.

Population projections show a rapid increase in the amount of sewage to be treated in Trenton over the next 20 years. At present, the average annual flow is 814 million gallons. By 1983 with a population of 18,750, 992 million gallons are expected, and by 1993, an anticipated population of 24,000 will be providing 1,277 million gallons of sewage annually, or 3.5 million gallons daily.

The mayor said he hoped the town can acquire the present plant when the new concrete is operational. With it being close to Centennial Park, it could provide ideal facilities for development as a community use building.

The third site rejected was that causing approximately $4.5 million near Bain Memorial Park on the town's eastern limits.

Actual capital cost of the new plant will be $3,375,421, reduced by 15 per cent from the total $4-million cost by a provincial grant.

Father and Son Injured in Crash

Robert Alexander of 189 Byron St., Trenton, is under observation in the intensive care unit of Belleville General Hospital this morning. He lost control of his car while rounding a curve on Sidney Township's eighth concession Thursday night and struck a tree.

Mr. Alexander, 42, suffered chest injuries and multiple contusions. His four - year - old son Roger is also in hospital with cuts and a possible neck injury.

Two other passengers, Mr. Alexander's wife Mary - Lou and another son Daniel, 15 months, were both treated and released. They had cuts 'and bruises.

The accident took place shortly after 11 p.m. two miles west of Highway 14. Provincial police said the gravel road had been freshly coated with oil and was slippery in the rain.

Damage to the car totalled $400.

Picton Girl Hit by Car

PICTON — A 13-year-old Picton girl is in Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital with torn ligaments in her leg after being struck by a car while riding her bicycle across Main Street Thursday afternoon.

Susan McIntosh of 14 Main Street was taken to hospital by ambulance.

Town police said she was riding her bicycle through a crosswalk near Downse Ave. when the car, driven by Clifton Archer of Bellevile, struck her.

The accident took place at 4:30 p.m.

Thurlow's Mill Rate Reduced

Thurlow ratepayers will enjoy a six - mill reduction in taxes this year following township budget approval Thursday.

The reduction was made possible through increased financial assistance from the provincial government which brought an additional $34,583 into township coffers.

Township clerk - treasurer Clare Horton described the provincial participation as a bonus and said this was the first year it had been made available.

He noted that the government grants would only have this effect this year and that normal annual increases of approximately two mills would follow, to keep up with increased costs and spending.

Residential and farm categories will benefit by a 6.30 mill reduction. The commercial - industrial category will realize a 6.52 mill decrease.

The county levy, the township's second largest expenditure, is decreased by 8.73 mills. Total payment to the county council will be slightly more than $189,000.

Special area rates (Foxboro, Consilton and Plainfield), where municipality street lighting is provided, only nominal reductions will be felt. The exception is Plainfield, where residents will be levied six rather than five mills.

The elementary separate school rate is the only education levy which shows a decrease for the year. For residential and farm ratepayers, the reduction will be 4.76 mills; for industrial and commercial, the decrease will be 5.33 mills.

Increases are slated in both public school categories. Elementary public school and secondary school rates show increase in the order of four mills.

Through the general township rate, provincial government support and a variety of other sources, the township has budgeted for a total revenue of $1,088,879.91.

The budget, termed by Mr. Horton as a "maintenance budget", holds no large capital works spending for the coming year. It is designed to meet the financial needs of the township as they exist now.

In the general picture, education takes the largest chunk of township money with a total of more than $500,000. It is followed closely by the county council levy and the public works department. Public works is budgeted to receive more than $184,000.

The debenture debt will take $81,000, general government administration cost will take slightly more than $45,000, and public protection (police, fire, street lighting and unclassified) accounts for $36,-806.

The remainder of township revenue will be spent on sanitation and waste removal, recreation and community services, community planning and development and financial expenses incurred as interest on temporary borrowing and unclassified.

Mary Morgan, left, co-ordinator of the CNIB's mobile eye care unit, confers with Mrs. Maude Rollins of Belleville on eye care treatment in the Quinte area. Mrs. Rollins has worked locally on behalf of the CNIB for 29 years. Occasion was last night's annual dinner of the Hastings and Prince Edward Advisory Board to the CNIB.

Eye Care in North Comes by Truck

Northern Ontario has never been a haven for members of the medical profession. For most doctors and nurses, it's too remote, too cold and too sparsely populated.

As a result, it was not until last year that proper eye care arrived in the north. But befitting a region where the nearest community might be 100 miles away, special methods were needed to reach persons in need of examinations and treatment.

The solution was a mobile opthamologist's unit - really a converted camper - that trained staff could station in distant outposts to use as a base for-the-fight against eye disease.

Prior to implementation of the van, which is jointly sponsored by the Canadian Nationalt Institute for the Blind and the Ontario Medical Association, resident opthamologists few and far between - were faced with the difficult task of servicing residents who could neither reach their offices nor be concerned with the need for regular testing.

The new van has changed all that, said Mary Morgan, co-ordinator of the project, who was guest speaker at Thursday's annual meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Advisory Board of the CNIB.

"We examined 2,360 people in the first six months," Miss Morgan told an audience of volunteers and CNIB administrators. "We compiled statistics on about 1,000 and 73.5 per cent of these people were found to have some defect if the eyes."

She said that by working with local health departments, physicians and optometrists, the eye care team was able to see most persons known to be suffering problems with their vision. The first few months, however, were somewhat different.

"We found last year that we needed to educate the public more," she said. "In northern Ontario, many people didn't know what the CNIB was."

There is now an audio-visual display for persons in the van's waiting room. The show familiarizes them with the work of the CNIB and explains any fears they might have about the mobile unit's presence.

Opthamologists who are supplied with a fully-equipped examination room and office in the van, receive their wages through the Ontario government's health insurance plan. They rotate for a period of one or two weeks, financing their own related expenses and, in many cases, donating part of their earnings back into the project so it can keep operating.

Another source of aid comes from local service clubs which provide sites for the van, advance publicity and volunteer staff for daily tasks. Miss Morgan said the Lions Club in particular has been helpful in this vital segment of the operation.

Brown, formerly of 61½ Front St., has been in Kingston Psychiatric Hospital for the past three months. He was arrested by city police last Oct. 16, two days after he set fires in apartments above stores on Front Street and Bridge St. West.

Sandbanks Charges Withdrawn

PICTON — Charges laid under the province's Environmental Protection Act against Lake Ontario Cement Ltd. and Triad Trucklease were withdrawn in provincial court, Wednesday.

David Estrin of the Environmental Law Association, representing Aarts Rayner of Toronto who initiated the proceedings, requested withdrawal of the charges that the two companies polluted the environment through noise emissions.

Also withdrawn at Mr. Estrin's request were a charge of mischief which accused the companies of spoiling the enjoyment of persons using Sandbanks provincial park, over this summer's 16 miles south of Belleville, Ont.

The two companies had been hauling sand from the area but this has not been done since last September.

In March, the provincial government announced it would expropriate the 75 year lease held by the cement company on dunes near the park.

No reason was given for seeking withdrawal of the charges.

Pleads Guilty To Arson

Terrance Thomas Brown, 18, pleaded guilty in County Court Thursday to two counts of arson.

He was remanded for sentence to May 31 by Judge Russell Honey until a pre-sentence report has been prepared.

Brown, formerly of 61½ Front St., has been in Kingston Psychiatric Hospital for the past three months. He was arrested by city police last Oct. 16, two days after he set fires in apartments above stores on Front Street and Bridge St. West.

Dancers Soon England Bound

Ernie Dempster and his wife, Lucille call a lively step for the Trenton Pairs and Squares. The group of dancers will make a return visit to England this summer. On a previous trip the group spontaneously took to dancing in Trafalgar Square, raising a number of good-natured brows.

Trenton Dancers London Bound

TRENTON — Under the towering majesty of Nelson's Column in Trafalgar Square, several Trenton square dancers vied for space on the pavement with flocks of pigeons two years ago much to the amusement of tired London Bobbies.

The English policemen didn't show any particular amazement at these carryings on. They'd seen many tourists over the years and cheerfully gave them approval to the brief interlude.

Mrs. Lucille Dempster has fond memories of that trip and the generosity of their English hosts. Trenton and other reminiscences are foremost in her mind at this time. On Sunday, she and her husband Ernie will be leading 75 Ontario square dancers on a return visit to England as guests of six clubs in the greater London area.

Ernie is the chief caller for Trenton's only square dancing club and school, the Pairs and Squares that last night held graduation ceremonies for six couples.

Square dancing is one of the oldest surviving style of dance in the ever-changing steps and music of the past decades. Everyone from doctors to lawyers, teachers and laborers gets involved in this rapidly growing pastime.

Most countries have their traditional dances and costumes. The American square dance is colorful and lively, and according to the Dempsters, is rapidly expanding around the globe.

Lucille , who occasionally calls alongside her husband , says square dancing was introduced in Great Britain by the Americans "and a great like wildfire."

In 1967, several clubs came over to Canada and were entertained throughout Ontario. Since then, trips by various groups have continued.

The combined holiday and dance schedule is in no way limited to vacation, "it's just for thegsheer fun of it," Ernie explained.

Most weeks trips' itinerary is packed with activities and sights to see. Base rides along the Thames River, tours of Cambridge, Oxford and of London including Windsor Castle, Piccadilly, Hyde Park, Buckingham Garden, the Queen's Petticoat Lane, to Warwick Castle, Stratford-on-Avon, to name a few.

The eight couples from Trenton will be joined by dancers from the Prince Edward County Whirlers, Napanee Pioneers, Frankford Village Squares, Port Credit Swinging Squares, and the Toronto Bows and Bells.

Activities such as this are only part of the over - all square dancing scene. Regular competitive meets are held throughout the area, the province and the country and includes all age groups.

The oldest couple in the Pairs and Squares is 65, the youngest 22 years old. The club was founded in 1961 at a local church, but moved into town three years ago to become the home of the Pairs and Squares.

And there be dancing in Trafalgar Square this trip? "Who knows," Mrs. Dempster laughed. "we don't drink when we're dancing even with all those pubs. If the mood hits us again, we might.

"When we did it two years ago, Ernie just got in the mood and started calling. We had a ball and no one seemed to mind."

At the time, police reported Perry attempted to pass a car driven by Bryan Kell, 10 Ramsay Street, that was stopped waiting to turn onto Marmora Street. The motorcycle skidded approximately 28 feet.

2,000 Welcome Habs

MONTREAL (CP) — About 2,000 ardent fans were on hand at Montreal International Airport early today to hail the Canadiens' hockey team on their return from Chicago, where they won the Stanley Cup championship Tuesday night.

The Canadiens' charter aircraft touched down at approximately 2:40 a.m., EDT.

The fans started gathering at the airport shortly after the Canadiens defeated Chicago Black Hawks 6-4 to take their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final series 4-2.

A banner that proclaimed "Vive Cournoyer et Richard" (Long Live Cournoyer and Richard) was carried by several fans while others waved Canadiens' pennants.

Cournoyer set a record Thursday night by scoring his 15th goal of the playoffs in the third period, and the speedy right winger was named winner of the Conn Smythe trophy, awarded annually to the top player in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Police had difficulty keeping fans away from the Canadens once the players arrived in the terminal.

First off the plane was Roll-and Ricard, the club's publicity man, followed by Claude Ruel, Montreal's chief scout and Toe Blake, who coached the Canadiens to eight Stanley Cup titles and now is an adviser to the club.

The fans, most of whom appeared to be under 30, chanted "On veut Bouchard" (We want Bouchard). They roared when ageless defenseman Pierre Bouchard walked by.

As soon as Cournoyer made an appearance, the crowd yelled "He's No. 1, He's No. 1."

Cournoyer stopped and shook hands with as many hands as he could be.

Hawk Front Line Set Record Pace

CHICAGO (CP) — Yvan Cournoyer's 15th goal of the 1973 Stanley Cup playoff season Thursday was only one of several record-setting performances in the National Hockey League final series between Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks.

Cournoyer's goal proved to be the winner in Montreal's 6-4 victory which gave them the best-of-seven championship series by four games to two.

Cournoyer, in only 17 playoff games this season, erased the old mark of 14 goals scored by team-mate Yvan Mahovlich during 20 games of the 1971 playoff season.

Other milestones reached in Thursday's game:

—The Chicago trio of Pit Martin, Jim Pappin and Dennis Hull finished the playoffs in third place, the speedy right winger was named winner of the Conn Smythe trophy, awarded annually to the top player in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

—Montreal finished the six-game final series with 33 goals scored, breaking their old mark of 28 in the seven-game quarter-final series against Boston in 1971. The 56-goal total compiled by Montreal and Chicago in the final set also surpassed the record 54 compiled by Montreal and Boston in the 1971 quarter-final.

—Pat Stapleton of Chicago and Jacques Lemaire of Montreal each finished with eight assists in the series, tying the final-series mark set by Montreal's Bert Olmstead in a five-game series in 1956.

—Captain Henri Richard of Montreal played with a Stanley Cup-winning team for the 11th time, giving him sole leadership in that category. Previously, Richard was tied with now-retired team-mate Jean Beliveau with 10 Cup victory appearances.

—Richard appeared in the 168th playoff game of his 18-season NHL career. Until this year, now-retired Red Kelly held the record of 164, career playoff games with Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs.

—The Canadiens extended their record for Cup victories to 16 since the trophy became the sole possession of the NHL in 1927. The Canadiens also won the Cup twice before 1927. The Maple Leafs are runners-up in Cup victories with 11.

Tessier Hopes For Repeat

MONTREAL (CP)—Coach Orval easier hopes that history repeats itself starting tonight when his Quebec Remparts take on Medicine Hat Tigers in the third game of the Memorial Cup round-robin.

Last season, Tessier saw his Cornwall Royals, representing the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League in Canada's national junior A hockey championship, lose the first game of the round-robin and come back t.o win their next two, including the final against Peterborough Petes.

Chargers Get First Win

Ed Kafka's goal in the first overtime period against Moira Secondary gave the Centennial Chargers their first win of the Bay of Quinte field last season.

Kafka's goal gave the Chargers an 8-7 edge over Moira who now control a 2-2-1 won-loss-tie record. Audie Brant provided the Trojans with a three goal effort in a losing cause.

Centennial's win gives them a 1-3-1 won - loss - tie record so far this season.

Gump Is Back

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Goaltender Gump Worsley has been persuaded to end his four-month retirement and return to Minnesota North Stars for the 1972-74 National Hockey League season.

Wren Blair, Minnesota general manager, said Thursday that Worsley has signed a one-year contract. Upon completion of his playing career, Worsley will join the team's scouting staff, Blair added.

The two-time Vezina trophy winner, 44 next Monday, will be the oldest active player in the NHL next season.

Worsley played 24 seasons of pro hockey before deciding to retire last January.

"I was never convinced that Gump was ready for retirement at that time," Blair said. "With that in mind I made arrangements to meet with him after the completion of the North Stars' season.

"It's my opinion, and the opinion of many others, that Gump is one of the finest goalies of the modern era. He's more than capable of carrying the goaltending load in the National League."

Blair said he felt Worsley could play from 25 to 30 games of the North Stars' schedule, adding, "this will make him a complement to Cesare Maniago, who is coming off an excellent season and who is capable of playing goal for 50 or more games in a year."

Worsley started his pro career with St. Paul of the United States League in 1950. He won the Calder trophy as NHL rookie of the year in 1953, while playing with New York Rangers.

Worsley's NHL career has been spent with three teams, the Rangers, Montreal and Minnesota.

Vic Stasiuk Fired

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vic Stasiuk was fired Thursday as coach of Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League.

Club directors said his one-year contract as coach would not be renewed, but said they'd like the 42-year-old NHL veteran today with the club in another, unnamed capacity.

Stasiuk refused to comment on the offer. He said he was leaving for his home in Lethbridge, Alta., to think it over.

The Canucks won 22 games, tied nine and lost 47, under Stasiuk, finishing seventh in the eight-team Eastern Division.

The Canucks said a new coach has not been named but said that they had someone in mind. They would not elaborate.

The Canucks were Stasiuk's fifth coaching assignment since he wound up his NHL playing career. He came to Vancouver following a one-year stint with the California Golden Seals.

His other NHL-coaching position was with the Philadelphia Flyers during the 1969 and 1970 seasons. Before that he coached the Quebec Aces of the American League and Jersey of the Eastern League.

His playing career included stops at Chicago, Boston and Detroit. He was a member of the Boston Bruins "Uke line," one of the highest scoring lines in the NHL from 1957-61. Stasiuk played on three Stanley Cup teams, appeared in 69 playoff games and scored 183 goals in the NHL.

Stubborn Hawks Fall in Six

Canadiens Stanley Cup Champions!

On the other side of the Canadiens' noisy dressing room, Yvan Cournoyer was surrounded by reporters questioning him about his third-period goal which won the game, set a playoff record and helped him win the Conn Smythe trophy as the most valuable player in the playoffs.

"Conn Smythe? I wasn't thinking about it," said Cournoyer.

"One man can do nothing. I didn't think about the record."

The goal was Cournoyer's 15th of the playoff season, breaking team-mate Frank Mahovlich's record set in 1971.

The Smythe trophy, awarded on a vote conducted by the Professional Hockey Writers' Association, was accompanied by $1,500. A sports magazine also gave Cournoyer a new car.

"All I was thinking about was the Stanley Cup—that's the only trophy that matters," said the Canadiens' right-winger. "When you work hard, things happen."

When asked if the victory marked the end of his 18-year career, Richard replied:

"I don't know. I need a few weeks to think about it—who knows?"

Reminded he had said the odds were 20-20 that he would retire, Richard said: "The 20 per cent chance I won't is still there today."

But Montreal coach Scotty Bowman was glad Richard was there Thursday night when he needed him.

The Canadiens had fallen behind 2-0 on Pit Martin's first two of three goals in the game's first period. The Canadiens were lagging and being generally out-hustled by the Hawks.

But with 12 seconds left in the opening period, Richard, who had been hustling and on the short end of several heavy checks, scored to put the Canadiens back in the game.

Henri's goal gave us a lift," Bowman said. "It got us going."

Chicago coach Billy Reay agreed.

"We were going along fine with a 2-0 lead, "said Reay. "We gave them a gift."

HENRI RICHARD
11 Winners

"Yes, this is one of my biggest thrills and it could be my last one," said Richard who has said he may retire this year.

Richard had played a vital role in bringing the Canadiens their 18th Cup—the 16th since the National Hockey League took sole possession of the trophy in 1927.

Montreal won its fourth Cup final in six seasons by defeating Chicago Black Hawks 6-4 in the sixth game of the best-of-seven NHL final.

Richard now has been a member of a Cup winning team record 11 times—one more than his predecessor, the now-retire Jean Beliveau.

"That's the 11th," Richard said proudly.

"I'm the only one with 11. Nobody else has that one."

Signs Contract

BUFFALO (CP) — Buffalo Sabres announced Thursday that Punch Imlach has signed a two-year contract as vice-president and general manager of the additional Hockey League club.

Imlach, 55, has been general manager of the club since it joined the NHL in 1970-71 season and also served as coach for about two years.

He retired as coach after suffering a heart attack in January, 1972, but carried on his duties as general manager.

Imlach succeeds Joe Crozier as the Sabres' Cincinnati farm team in the American Hockey League. Crozier, coach of the Sabres' Cincinnati farm team in the American Hockey League, succeeded Imlach as Buffalo's coach. Under Crozier, the Sabres gained the Stanley Cup playoffs this year, losing to Montreal Canadiens in the first round.

Crozier, whose one-year contract expires soon, has been vacationing in Florida. Imlach told a news conference he would talk with Crozier about renewal of his contract when he returns.

Imlach had considered retirement following his dismissal as place finish in the NHL East Division.

"I seemed to be the only one who wanted to retire," he said. "Everyone told me I was crazy . . . wait until they the Sabres left you they don't want you."

Saying his health was good, Imlach added:

"My doctor told me I might be worse off if I didn't work."

PUNCH IMLACH

The second period produced three more goals by the Canadiens as Rejean Houle and brothers Peter and Frank Mahovlich beat Hawks goalie Tony Esposito.

Rookie left-winger Dave Kryhow, up from Dallas of the Central Hockey League, scored his second goal of the series for Chicago, while Martin collected his third goal of the game before the period ended.

It was left to Cournoyer to hearts out and I blame myself for the loss," said Russell. Long after most of his team-mates had departed.

"I took two foolish penalties and they scored both times. This is my first series but I'll tell you it won't be my last."

Can a fat man be a right-winger? Claude Larose, who had performed the chore of checking by the Canadiens, Hawks left-winger Dennis Hull through most of the series, suffered a broken right leg in the opening minute of the second period.

Larose crashed heavily into the goal beside netminder Ken Dryden as he sprawled in an effort to stop a rink-wide pass to the onrushing Hull.

Larose was taken to hospital but later returned to Montreal with the team on a charter aircraft early today.

When Larose was injured Bowman sent Rejean Houle in to check Hull.

Reay pointed out the immediate substitution of Houle as a example of the strength show by the Canadiens.

"I've never seen an NHL team with 12 better forwards," Reay said. "There's no difference between their first and fourth lines.

"Depth was the difference in the series."

But Reay still felt that the fight the Hawks put up was "the best effort thi3throw ever had in the playoffs."

Wilt Admits Knicks Better

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "four in a row seems almost impossible," said Wilt Chamberlain, but he and his Los Angeles Laker team-mates had lost their National Basketball Association title to New York in a virtual sweep.

"New York was the better team," said the 7-foot-1 Laker after the Knicks had taken a 102-93 victory Thursday night and a 4-1 winning margin in playoff series games.

They had lost the opener and then come back to whip the defending champion four straight and there were few excuses.

"They are well - balanced, have tremendous passing and so many good shooters that you can't concentrate on one man. The key to the series was that the defence stopped our running game."

Last year, it was Los Angeles 4-1 over the Knicks who had won the NBA title in 1970 by beating the Lakers.

"I think we had more depth than we did the last time we won the title," said Knicks' coach Red Holzman. "We didn't have Jerry Lucas, Earl Monroe or Dean Meminger then."

Monroe took scoring honors for the finale on the New York side with 22 points and Bill Bradley, the Rhodes scholar, added 20.

Dave DeBusschere, who started two nights previously with 33 points, tallied just one field goal and sprained his right ankle in the fourth quarter when he finally did reach the scoring list.

The Lakers trailed by 14 points early in the fourth quarter, cut the margin to four and then sagged as Monroe and Willis Reed whipped in seven consecutive points.

A national magazine voted Reed most valuable player and he received a new car. In the final game he scored 18 points, grabbed 12 rebounds and had seven assists.

The Lakers had only one excuse. Rick Barry and Jerry West was hampered by strained hamstring muscles in both legs. The right was bandaged for the finale and he scored only 11 points.

"With Jerry hurt our quickness, our speed and our running game just aren't the same," said Los Angeles coach Bill Sharman and even efforts of 25 points by Gail Goodrich and 22 by Chamberlain could not compensate for West's injuries.

The Knicks won $100,000 from the final series and $197,500 throughout the playoffs. Los Angeles gained $65,000 from the finals and $167,500 for the three playoff sets. Generally the pot is split into 12 to 14 shares, meaning each New Yorker would get about $13,000.

ABA Playoff Goes Seven

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Artis Gilmore popped in 28 points and pulled down 21 rebounds to lead the Kentucky Colonels to a 109-93 victory over the Indiana Pacers Thursday night, sending the American Basketball Association championship playoff into a decisive seventh game.

The seventh game of the series will be played Saturday afternoon at Louisville.

TRIBE TRADES DUNNING

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indians traded pitcher Steve Dunning to Texas Rangers for pitcher Dick Bosman and outfielder Ted Ford Thursday. Dunning, 27, is 9-2 with a 3.50 earned run average this season in four games. Bosman, 29, was 2-5 with a 4.03 ERA with Texas this season.

Athletics Shell Rangers 17-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When you manage Texas Rangers, you have to scramble sometimes to find a silver lining. So it was with Whitey Herzog Thursday night.

"The only good thing I can say about this is that they can only chalk up one loss against us," the rookie skipper said after the Oakland Athletics pounded out 23 hits and shelled the Rangers 17-2.

Elsewhere in the American League, Chicago White Sox edged California Angels 4-3 in 12 innings, Kansas City Royals trounced Detroit Tigers 8-1 and Boston Red Sox nipped Cleveland Indians 4-3. In the only National League action, San Francisco Giants beat St. Louis Cardinals 6-3.

It resembled batting practice for the Athletics as nine of them got more than one hit, including rookie catcher Tim Hosley, just up from the minors.

Reggie Jackson doubled home the first two runs against Mike Paul. Ray Fosse singled home another and Dick Green singled for two more. Fosse hit a two-run homer in the fifth, Hosley delivered a two-run single as the Athletics scored five more in the eighth and Deron Johnson homered for one of four runs in the ninth.

Manager Dick Williams threw 16 players into action and received four singles from Bert Campaneris, a homer and two singles from Johnson and a double and pair of singles from Joe Rudi. In seven games as Oakland's designated hitter since coming over from the National League, Johnson is batting .368 with three homers and nine runs batted in.

"Since Gee put Deron Johnson we're 5-2 and he's played a major role in all of the games with his bat. I'll stick with him as my designated hitter and take my chances. I think he's a winner," Williams said.

Pat Kelly singled home Jorge Orta from second base in the 12th inning to give the White Sox and Wilbur Wood their victory over California. After Bill Singer held Chicago to three hits over 11 innings, Ron Perranoski came on in the 12th and walked Orta. Luis Alvarado sacrificed before Kelly delivered his winning hit.

Wood was touched for 12 hits in his 11 innings—Terry Forster pitched the 12th—and the knuckleballer became the major leagues' first eight-game winner.

Fred Patek's triple touched off a tie-breaking five-run outburst against Jce Coleman in the fifth inning as Kansas City thrashed Detroit.

The loss was only Coleman's second in eight decisions and knocked the Tigers out of first place in the American League East, where all six teams are under .500 and are separated by only one game.

Boston, held without a hit or a baserunner for 5 2-3 innings by Cleveland's Dick Tidrow, rallied for three runs against Jerry Johnson in the eighth to edge the Indians.

Chris Speier's two-run single in the fifth inning snapped a 2-2 tie and boosted San Francisco past St. Louis. Willie McCovey and Dave Kingman homered for the Giants, Ray Busse for the Cardinals, who lost for the 21st time in 27 games.

SELLERS TRADED

DALLAS (AP) — Ron Sellers, No. 1 wide receiver for Dallas Cowboys during the 1972 National Football League season, was traded Thursday along with a 1974 second-round draft choice to Miami Dolphins for wide receiver Otto Stowe.

Meet at Gardens

Fourth Place Money 'Menial'

TORONTO (CP) — Brian Oldfield, one of the less glamorous but more candid members of the touring professional track and field athletes, believes firmly in the future of the International Track Association.

"I wouldn't be in it if I didn't think it had great possibilities," he said in an interview Thursday.

"But I'll tell you, this," the Chicago shot-putter said, "I would like to see the ITA provide more incentive."

The athletes now compete for a first prize of $500 with $250, $200 and $50 for the next three finishers in each event. The amounts are not flexible, what ever the size of the crowd.

Oldfield, who is among at least 50 athletes who will perform in the ITA meet tonight at Maple Leaf Gardens, described it as "menial" the $50 award for last week.

"That's tantamount to an insult to athletes of this calibre," Oldfield said.

"I would like to see prizes of $1,000, $750, $400 and $200, plus $100 appearance money."

Nonetheless, shot-putter Oldfield and former NCAA pole-vaulting champion Buddy Williamson agreed that the ITA was showing improvement.

"I'm pleased with its development," said Williamson.

"We're off the ground now. Next year will be the crucial year," Oldfield predicted.

The 6-foot-5, 275-pound Oldfield, who placed sixth in the Olympic games at Munich last summer, set a world indoor record of 70 feet, 9¼ inches in a pro meet at Albuquerque, N.M., but Al Feuerbach has a pending mark of 71 feet, 7 inches, set

Bruce Crampton Is At It Again

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Australian Bruce Crampton, threatening to turn the American pro golf tour into a personal plaything, fired a four-under-par 66 and took a two-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $150,000 Colonial National Invitational tournament.

The sturdy veteran, winner of the Houston Open last week along with two other titles this year, visited six of the yawning bunkers on the testing 7,142 yards that make up the Colonial Country Club course and played those holes even par.

There's more than one way to skin a kangaroo," said the 37-year-old native of Sydney who joined the tour in 1957 and since has won almost $1 million in prize money.

Crampton, the season's leading money winner with $153,000, held a two-stroke advantage over 38-year-old veteran Ken Still, alone in second at 68.

Lee Trevino had to work hard for a 71, one over par and five shots of the pace-setting Crampton.

Crampton spent time in the sand, but got away without difficulty as he uncorked a timely putting stroke. Crampton used only 28 strokes on the greens.

Murdochs Hot

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Paul Murdoch and his brother, Bruce, shared 11 scoring points Thursday night in leading Etobicoke PCOs to a 14-13 victory over Oshawa Green Gaels in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A game.

Paul scored three goals and assisted on five while Bruce fired two and helped on an other.

Wally Cleeve scored three times for PCOs and Mike Fisher and Doug McLean each two each. Single goals went to Norm MacInnes and Dave Grove.

Jeff Mason led Oshawa with three goals, while Terry Lloyd, Joe Greentree and Jeff Rorabeck had two apiece. The rest were shared by Paul Landry, Chris Bone, Jim Duigman and Tom Wreggit.

The loss was the fourth in a row for Green Gaels.

Vikings Stay Put

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Club president Max Winter, clarifying comments he made on a radio talk show, said Thursday Minnesota Vikings have no intention of moving their National Football League franchise.

"We have no idea of moving anywhere," declared Winter. "We're thoroughly satisfied with the fans in this area."

Winter was a guest Wednesday on WCCO radio station and said potential franchise sites were bidding for the Vikings.

"I'm not threatening to move the club . . . I don't know if we can pass 'em up," Winter said, a recheck of tape Thursday confirmed the statement.

Winter, saying he was trying to put his statement in the proper context, said groups from Birmingham, Ala.; Memphis, Tenn.; Phoenix, Ariz., Seattle, Wash.; Tampa, Fla., and Orlando-Jacksonville, Fla., were interested in obtaining NFL expansion franchises, not in buying the Vikings.

Rovers Win 5-0

Quinte Secondary's Roger Chapman scored four goals but his efforts for the Saints were not enough to beat the BCI Collegians as they remain the only Bay of Quinte field lacrosse team with an unfinished record.

Under the three goal firepower of Rick Bell and Richard Burrows, the Collegians scored their way to an 11-4 victory over Quinte in the sixth game of the season. Brent Walkesley with two goals and Steve Cowan, Gord Wilcox and Mark Walkesley with singles completed Quinte's annihilation.

BCI led 8-0 going into the second half of play before Chapman's four goals added a measure of respectability to Quinte's fourth loss of the season. The Saints hold a 1-4-1 won-lose-tie record to date.

Centre Chris Johnson with inside right forward Kevin Kirby scored two goals apiece to lead the Quinte Help Fund Rovers to a 5-0 victory over Prescott in a Kingston and District Soccer League exhibition game Wednesday.

Inside left forward Fendic Dzravko provided the Rovers with the other goal while Gary Donovan earned the shutout with his work between the posts.

The QHF Rovers are presently running with 18 players according to club manager Fred Jones, but no later than Monday, the team will begin to sign players for the coming season.

"There are nine players who will definately make the team," said Jones, "since we'll be signing 14, there are still five positions to be filled."

The Iselo Canadiens will be at the OSD pitch Saturday at 5 p.m. for another exhibition game with the Rovers who will take on the undersized Sumner Games team Monday at Zwick's Island.

Howe Explains Finer Points

Lavender Uneasy Playing At Centre

Belleville Bobcats

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter
(Fifth of series)

PAUL LAVENDER
- - - shifts spots

Like Rick Meagher, Paul Lavender did his time at the centre spot for a single year with the Bobcats before the turn of the calendar forced him into the over-age category.

However, Lavender's anchoring duties were much more difficult between left winger Mark Coates and right winger Judy Ricketts than the time spent on the right wing of Meagher and Kenny Holmes.

Some of the playoffs in which he scored seven and helped on eight, Lavender said, "Rick and Kenny and I did alright in the Peterborough series, but Coates and Ricketts and myself, we could not get together at all.

"We were playing different styles. They didn't know where I was and we didn't do the right things at the right time."

The 20 - year - old Wellington grocmen hockey player was neither pleased nor displeased with his performance with the Cats after coming from the Trenton and Picton Jr. B. teams of the old Eastern Ontario League.

"It all depends who you're playing with. You get used to a guy — his positions, where he plays, how he skates. You know where he's going to be to make. It helps you play better."

Despite some difficulty adjusting to the lines he played on, Lavender's regular season tally sheet stood at a respectable fifth place with 17 counters and 19 assists.

The high point in his career with the Cats was beating out the Peterborough Lions in the playoffs.

"We still think they had the best team," said the recently married forward, "but they just went all to pot. They weren't as rough as they were in the regular season in the playoffs, or maybe we were just afraid of them then.

"We should have gone all the way after that. We had a better team with more experience than the Nats."

Though Lavender was offered a chance at a semi-pro team in the United States, the forward will be holding down a job and sticking close to the old Cats stamping grounds. He says he is thinking of playing some hockey with the Wellington Dukes in the North Shore Hockey League.

First Casualty

Jim Nichol of the Stewart-Warner entry in the Belleville Industrial Softball league became the first casualty of the season even before the first league game.

Taking part in a practice, Jim was struck in the face by a ball and suffered a broken cheekbone.

8 Juniors Are Signed

Terry Meagher, back from a successful hockey season at Boston University, heads the list of returnees who have signed with the Ellis Juniors entry in the Belleville Commercial Softball League.

A shortstop, Terry joins holdovers Ronnie Hill a pitcher, second baseman Brian Gargey, first baseman Steve Campbell, catchers John Romano and Peter Stailovich along with catcher-outfielder Glen Carleton and third baseman Dale Akey on the roster.

Referee Clinics for Lacrosse

Ned Rainboth, referee-in-chief of the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association, is having the same problems getting referees to officiate house league games as most of the other minor organizations in Belleville.

"As always there is a chronic shortage of officials," said Rainboth at the referee clinic held at Memorial Arena Wednesday. "For a summer sport we try to get a minimum of 20

Seek Contracts

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Swedish national team stars Borje Salming and Inge Hammarstrom will negotiate with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League on a pro contract next season, it was reported Thursday.

Ontario Lacrosse Association registered referee Bernie Howe (centre) explains some of the finer points of the job of officiating lacrosse matches to Jeff Gow (left) one of the Belleville lacrosse association's newer recruits. Gord Brown (from left), Rob Prewer and Sandy Waterson listen in on Howe's instructions at the referee clinic at Memorial Arena Wednesday.

"It's much harder getting officials for a summer sport, even though we don't play on weekends. Holidays take our officials for at least part of the summer."

Rainboth commented that the problem with lacrosse is that not enough people are familiar with the game and are therefore afraid to try officiating.

But the referee - in - chief is attempting to solve this problem by getting new bodies out to the referee clinics he hopes to be holding periodically throughout the coming season.

With the assistance of Ontario Lacrosse Association referee Bernie Howe, Rainboth was going through the mechanics of officiating with the three new recruits who came out Wednesday.

"Most of them have played the game so they know the rules. We're showing them the proper conduct of the floor, how to make a call, behavior when calling a penalty, basically the best places to be to make the best call.

"Basically the clinics are meant to improve the officiating, but it takes a couple of years before a referee can look after himself. It's a matter of experience."

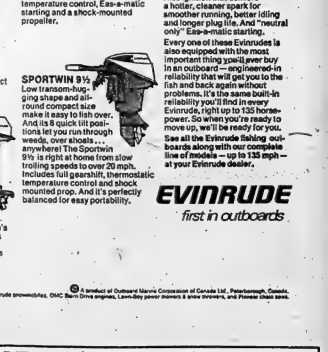
More fishermen are hooked on Evinrude than any other outboard.

Wherever the fish are biting you'll find an Evinrude to help bring them home. No other fishing motors outsell ours. Why? There are a lot of different reasons. Because there are a lot of different Evinrudes. But all of them are designed with features that fishermen appreciate. And built with Evinrude's reliability.



FISHERMAN 6
A feature-packed fishing outboard that will move most small boats along at up to 14 mph. It's also popular among larger boat owners as an auxiliary trolling motor. It has a forward-reverse-neutral gearshift, thermostat temperature control, Eas-a-matic starting and a shock-mounted propeller.

FASTWIN 18
With this big little motor, you can power a light runabout along at up to 30 mph, tow a teenage skier or troll hour after hour. It features Evinrude Quick Rise ignition that delivers a hotter, cleaner spark for smoother running, better idling and longer plug life. And "neutral only" Eas-a-matic starting.

MATE 2
This single-cylinder lightweight will move canoes and dinghys along at anything from a slow troll to over 9 mph. It features single lever control and full power reverse. Delivers up to 40 miles per gallon. All in a compact 24 lb. package.

SPORTWIN 9½
Low transom-hugging shape and all-round compact size make it easy to fish over. And its 8 quick tilt positions let you run through weeds, over shoals . . . anywhere! The Sportwin 9½ is right at home from slow trolling speeds to over 20 mph. Includes full gearshift, thermostatic temperature control and shock mounted prop. And it's perfectly balanced for easy portability.

LIGHTWIN 4
Here's a twin cylinder, 4 hp compact that will handle loads of car toppers, dinghys and rental boats with ease. Slow troll to over 10 mph, its angled Fisherman Drive lets it go through weeds and shallows — anywhere there's enough water to float a boat. Its companion, the Yachtwin 4, is designed to power sailing boats up to 25 feet long.

Every one of these Evinrudes is also equipped with the most important thing you'll ever buy in an outboard — engineered-in reliability that will get you to the fish and back again without problems. It's the same built-in reliability you'll find in every Evinrude, right up to 135 horsepower. So when you're ready to move up, we'll be ready for you.

See all the Evinrude fishing outboards along with our complete line of models — up to 135 mph — at your Evinrude dealer.

THIS ONE'S REALLY DIFFERENT

A three bedroom two storey with an exterior that has character written all over it. Imagine a mansard roof with a skirted overhang. Enjoy the view from a large cantilevered bay window. Master bedroom has shower room, separate wash basin and vanity, and walk in closet. Kitchen has large dining area, separated by wrought iron railing from sunken family room with fireplace. There is a separate dining room. Garage is attached.

This house is now far enough along that you can see its many features, and still not so far along that you can't pick your colors.

WANT TO SAVE NEARLY $2,000.00 ?

then take advantage of the chance to buy one of the few houses we have left to be built before prices increased and sales tax was added. We have bungalows, split levels and two storeys available. Some in the East end, some in the West. There is no way to save $2,000.00 any faster.

THEY ALL LAUGH

When we tell them a condominium can be bought for $26,500 down — "You've got to be kidding" — they claim. They all cry, however, when we tell them they are available only to those with earnings under $8,500.00 yearly. If you are in that category, call tonight and have the laugh on them. Very few left, so act fast.

Truce Body 'Broke' As Funds Withheld

By JOHN HAY

OTTAWA (CP) — With the Vietnam ceasefire commission flat broke and the lives of its observers endangered by repeated attacks, officials are toting up the facts for the impending decision to quit or stay in Vietnam.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp confirmed in the Commons Friday news reports from Saigon "that the International Commission of Control and Supervision is insolvent."

"This is a very difficult and serious problem for the commission," Mr. Sharp said.

ICCS members—Canada, Indonesia, Hungary and Poland—have asked for more cash from the combatants—the United States, South Vietnam, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong. But there has been no reply.

Meanwhile, the government will likely have to pay the costs of feeding its 256-member ICCS contingent. That expense is supposed to be covered by the four combatants.

An external affairs department spokesman put the food costs for a month at $116,000 for the contingent.

For other expenses, including air and ground transport, the ICCS must beg credit. But credit may be tight because of the bad-risk rating of the national Control Commission which sometimes went years without paying its bills.

Mr. Sharp said the problem stems from the inability of the ICCS to agree on a budget.

Under the Jan. 27 peace agreement, the belligerents each committed about $1 million to the commission.

But they have not replied o requests for additional funds while the budget is completed, and the original stake has dried up.

The issue is further irritation for officials already pessimistic about the role of the ICCS and Canada's future involvement.

Mr. Sharp has said the cabinet will decide by May 31 whether to remain on the commission or leave. Departure would be extended until June 30 to permit recruitment of a replacement member.

The Music Makers

For hundreds of students swarming through Centennial Secondary School yesterday, folk musicians Chris Gordon on flute and Dave McLellan, both 17, of Trenton, provided a refreshing pause. They were guest musicians during Festival Canada, a day-long special event on national themes organized by CISS students and staff. For details, see first page, second section.

Kissinger, Le Duc Tho Will Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States envoy Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho of North Vietnam will return to the Paris conference table next Thursday to renew the search for a stable Vietnam peace, the White House announced Friday.

Kissinger, who conducted the original peace talks with Tho in Paris, is expected to devote three or four days to the new round of meetings.

Viet Cong Says Raids Made

SAIGON (CP) — The Viet Cong said today United States bombers attacked Communist positions in South Vietnam on the eve of the truce with Cambodia earlier this month and in April. The U.S. embassy denied the charge.

Official spokesman for the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government told foreign correspondents at a news conference today that the illegal bombing raids caused heavy casualties.

The U.S. embassy spokesman said: "This is false. It just isn't true. We are not violating the accord."

"... the conduct of the government has placed the case in such a posture that it precludes the fair, dispassionate resolution of these issues by a jury," the judge said in dismissing the charges.

The judge, in a harsh condemnation of the government, said it appeared that the FBI authorized the special investigation on Ellsberg and that the Central Intelligence Agency, "presumably acting beyond its statutory authority but at the request of the White House, had provided disguises, photographic equipment and other paraphernalia for covert operations."

Convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt told the Watergate grand jury in testimony released by Byrne, that the CIA helped out with gadgets and disguises for the intruders who set out to get Ellsberg's psychiatric records.

Byrne noted that, when the government reported Wednesday that Ellsberg was overheard on a wiretap, the FBI said the logs and tapes of the intercepted conversations mysteriously disappeared. The wiretaps had occurred about two years before Ellsberg's indictment in 1971.

Asked about the future of the case against Ellsberg and Russo, Assistant U.S. Attorney Warren Reese muttered: "It's dead."

Trainmen End Talks

MONTREAL (CP) — Contract talks between Canada's two major railways and the union representing trainmen and yard crews broke off Friday and the union said it will ask for conciliation.

Talks between Canadian National and CP Rail and the United Transportation Union representing the 14,500 workers had been held for three weeks in the presence of federal labor department mediators after earlier negotiations failed to produce a settlement.

Both sides said the talks floundered on two issues: A rule change to permit the reduction of crews on certain freight trains demanded by the railways and a wage adjustment for yard-service employees demanded by the union.

Dollar Drops

LONDON (AP) — The United States dollar dropped sharply in Europe's key monetary centres Friday as the price of free market gold soared to new peaks in bullion markets, with no end to the rise in sight.

Bank Rate Raised Friday To Cool Inflationary Drive

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada again raised the bank rate Friday in continuing efforts to walk the fine line between dampening economic growth and controlling inflation.

For the second time in little more than one month, the central bank pushed up the rate by one-half of one percentage, this time to 5¼ per cent. The rate rose to 5¼ per cent April 9, the first increase since October, 1971.

The rate increase is a traditional signal to commercial banks to curb lending. It also has an impact on rates charged by other lenders.

The central bank's action in April prompted most chartered banks to raise their prime lending rates to 6½ per cent from six per cent.

While the central bank clearly wants to guard against credit policies that will spur inflation, it is also anxious to avoid applying the brakes to government efforts to expand the economy.

That apparently is the thinking behind the central bank's recommendation to the commercial banks to pay particular attention to lending to small businesses.

Earlier Friday, the Bank of Montreal echoed this policy in moving to raise its prime rate for the second time in about one month.

The chartered bank said that the rate for loans of $100,000 or less to farmers and small business will be tied to a small-business rate which will stay at 6¾ per cent "for the time being at least."

The commercial bank increased the prime rate to 6 per cent from 6¼ per cent and boosted the rate on mortgage loans under the National Housing Act to 9¾ per cent from nine per cent.

Pentagon Papers Case 'Dead'

Ellsberg, Russo Freed, Plan to Sue Officials

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo, freed of charges in the Pentagon papers case because of government misconduct, say they will sue President Nixon for "conspiracy to deprive us of our civil liberties."

"We will bring suit against all the conspirators, of which President Nixon appears to be the ringleader," Ellsberg said Friday after espionage, conspiracy and theft charges against Ellsberg and Russo were lifted by Judge Matt Byrne Jr. of U.S. district court.

Ellsberg told reporters the Watergate and White House involvement in his case reminded him of Mafia tactics.

"I think of the code of the Mafia," he said. "Silence. That has been the code of the White House."

Russo said he believes the sudden disclosures of wiretaps, a break-in at the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist and an undercover White House investigation of Ellsberg has shown that "our country has been run by criminals."

Ellsberg said lawsuits will be filed against officials other than Nixon—all those whose names have been implicated in the prosecution in the last two weeks.

He said he doesn't believe there is enough evidence yet to show that Nixon is guilty of a crime, but Ellsberg said he feels there is sufficient evidence to indict the president.

"I believe that President Nixon is innocent until proven guilty, and he deserves his day in court just as we did," Ellsberg said.

Ellsberg and Russo, both former researchers at government projects for the Rand Corp., were charged because they admittedly copied the Pentagon papers, a top-secret study of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Ellsberg later leaked them to news media.

Though the trial itself drowned in a flood of Watergate and White House revelations, the issues that precipitated the case were never resolved.

The revelations that Watergate conspirators broke into the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist, that the White House launched an undercover investigation of Ellsberg's leak of the papers and that Ellsberg was overheard on secret wiretaps showed "that governmental agencies have taken an unprecedented series of actions with respect to these defendants," said Byrne.

"... the conduct of the government has placed the case in such a posture that it precludes the fair, dispassionate resolution of these issues by a jury," the judge said in dismissing the charges.

The judge, in a harsh condemnation of the government, said it appeared that the FBI authorized the special investigation on Ellsberg and that the Central Intelligence Agency, "presumably acting beyond its statutory authority but at the request of the White House, had provided disguises, photographic equipment and other paraphernalia for covert operations."

Convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt told the Watergate grand jury in testimony released by Byrne, that the CIA helped out with gadgets and disguises for the intruders who set out to get Ellsberg's psychiatric records.

Byrne noted that, when the government reported Wednesday that Ellsberg was overheard on a wiretap, the FBI said the logs and tapes of the intercepted conversations mysteriously disappeared. The wiretaps had occurred about two years before Ellsberg's indictment in 1971.

Asked about the future of the case against Ellsberg and Russo, Assistant U.S. Attorney Warren Reese muttered: "It's dead."

Sopha Says Judges Yawn at Rights Bill

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Bill of Rights has suffered because of the attitudes of judges, lawyer Elmer Sopha said Friday.

Speaking to a luncheon of the Provincial Judges Association, the former Liberal member of the Ontario legislature said the Bill of Rights has suffered from "intellectual castration" because judges have approached it with "mental trepidation inherent in the notion that if they give effect to its terms, it shall harm the system. . . .

He said he was "more than a little dissappointed" at the treatment of the bill by judges, adding "terms my lawyer has emated the phrase 'Bill of Rights.' I have seen the sardonic smile that flickered the corners of the judicial lips."

"Indeed, occasionally, A has actually evoked a yawn on the bench."

Ontario Probe Wants Hydro, LCBO Run Like Private Firms

TORONTO (CP) — A government committee has suggested that private industry may do a better job of running Crown agencies such as Ontario Hydro or the Liquor Control Board than the province.

The committee on government productivity, in its ninth and final report released Friday, said in a key proposal that the government should "look closely" at the idea of the private sector taking over these operations.

"While there may be some aspects of private sector activity that are not compatible with public operations, we believe that the government should look closely at the corporate model to see whether it might not be usefully adapted for application to government commercial agencies, now in existence or to come."

It lists commercial agencies that could come under this review as Ontario Hydro, the liquor control board, Ontario Northland Transportation Commission and its subsidiary, Star Transfer Ltd., Go Transit, Ontario Place and the Niagara Parks Commission.

Commenting on the 161-page report in an interview, Dr. J. K. Reynolds, a committee member, said the group was not advocating that private industry take over these agencies.

"We're only saying that the government should take a look at this aspect of it."

Dr. Reynolds is deputy provincial secretary for resources development. Chairman of the now disbanded committee, which submitted 256 recommendations in its nine-volume study of government functions, was J. B. Cronyn, a London, Ont. industrialist. The committee was set up in December, 1969.

Dead Thief's Hotel Room Searched by Bomb Squad

WINNIPEG (CP) — Some material was taken by a bomb disposal squad Friday night from a Kenora hotel room believed to have been used by a bank robber later blown to bits during a holdup attempt, a national defence department source said today.

The spokesman said he had not learned whether any actual explosives were found but the two man squad from CFB Winnipeg reported the material had been taken into custody and there was no danger.

Senior police officers in the northwestern Ontario town were unavailable for comment.

The bomb squad was called in at the request of civil authorities in Kenora. First reports indicated a search of the man's room at the Kenricia Hotel had turned up a number of suitcases with wires attached.

The holdup man was blown up Thursday afternoon after he was foiled by a police bullet as he left a Main Street bank where he had been holding manager Al Reid hostage for more than an hour.

The man had warned that he had a bomb in a satchel strapped to his waist and wired to a "dead man's switch" clenched in his teeth.

Teachers Resist Invasion By Child Care Workers

TORONTO (CP) — Too many teachers looking for too few jobs is bringing out the strong union stand of the Ontario Teachers Federation OTF, Douglas Montgomery, OTF chairman of early childhood education, said Friday.

Speaking to a meeting of the Association for Early Childhood Education composed of nursery school and child care workers, Mr. Montgomery said the OTF has "to look after its group the same as the steelworkers union has to look after its workers."

Delegates to the meeting said Mr. Montgomery's remarks were meant to discourage the association from asking for the right to teach in Ontario's junior kindergartens.

Nose for News Embarrassing

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

Town councillor and Picton Gazette news editor Jack Evans is confronted with an identity crisis brought about by a series of scoops in the hometown paper.

The reporter, who first ran for office on town council last fall, now attends committee meetings that make him privy to certain information not released to other newspaper representatives in Picton.

"To print or not to print?" has become the question and on at least two occasions Mr. Evans has printed scoops based on discussions in committee. In the first instance, the Picton Gazette carried a story reporting the findings of the planning and development committee in relation to housing needs in Picton. A chairman of this committee, Mr. Evans was privy to information not released to other reporters here. His news story detailing housing requirements was published and read in the Gazette before several of His fellow councillors were given copies of the report.

Council's action was swift and decisive. At its next meeting a motion was passed stating that no committee report would be released to the press until they had been reviewed by all of council. In discussing this motion it was mentioned by a number of councillors that Mrs. Ward's remarks concerned the probable effects of the new Ontario budget on the municipal budget and the story ran front page.

When asked by The Intelligencer why her statement was released only to the Gazette, Mrs. Ward replied she did not have time to "look up" the other newspaper representatives here. She said she had given a copy of the report to Mr. Evans at a finance committee meeting and had authorized him to print it.

The incident surfaced at this month's council session and Mayor H. J. McFarland suggested committee meetings should be opened to the press to avoid similar occurrences in future. Councillor Evans made a motion calling for this policy but proved its only supporter. The motion was tabled on the outside looking in except for the regular meeting minutes of council at Shire Hall.

Mrs. Ward observed at the meeting that she felt she could issue her reports to whomever she pleased and did not think persons in Belleville or Kingston shared any interest in Picton's mill rate, mentioned in her statement to the Gazette.

Mr. Evans understandably did not hesitate to print her statement and did so with her permission. However, perhaps as Picton Gazette-reeve Ross Cronkwright suggested, the councillor should "write" himself as reporter or committee member when deciding whether to print or withold.

In the meantime, it would appear that a reporter's best hope for scoops from council is to win a seat.

Northern Sides Are Far Apart

Strikers at Northern Electric in Belleville may be in for a long wait before they're back to work.

Statements from opposing sides in the walkout by 3,400 members of the United Auto Workers gave indications Friday of a long-drawn struggle.

Union members walked out Monday in Belleville.

The strike has also shut plants in London, Ont., Kingston and Brampton, Workers at a second Bramalea plant have joined for a strike Monday night. Workers at the company's Montreal plant, represented by an independent union also are on strike.

Alex Crerar, of Montreal, Northern Electric's chief negotiator, called conditions at here "the said the company would not take part in further bargaining with a master negotiating committee, representing seven locals, but would insist on bargaining on a local level.

Mr. Crerar said the UAW is engaged in an institutional strike rather than one with the interest of the employees and that his company would take its case to the bargaining table hope they will exert pressure on the union.

Robert Nickerson, UAW chief negotiator, said it is only place the strike can be settled is at the master bargaining table and that the union is prepared to take on the company on all issues, including wages and fringe benefits.

At issue are wages and fringe benefits. Northern Electric has offered a wage

No Ontario Aid for Course

The Ontario Fire Marshal's Department will not be able to assist in the volunteer fire fighters' training course proposed to be set up at Loyalist College, according to a letter to Hastings county council from the fire marshal's office. The Quinte Area Mutual Aid Firefighters Plan has asked the county to give the course project its moral support. County Clerk-Administrator Carl E. Bateman said it was his understanding that Loyalist College will still pursue the matter, even though there will be no assistance from the fire marshal's department.

The letter to the council said the fire marshal's department had neither the authority nor the staff available to assist in the proposed course at Loyalist.

Teachers Protest Board Decision

BLOOMFIELD — The Prince Edward County board of education has refused to reverse its decision to limit principals' days to elementary school teachers following a unanimous decision and appeal from the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation for this region.

The ministry of education has advised that only 10 days could be granted to elementary teachers with the board's approval. As a result, the Principals' Association for Prince Edward requested an allotment of 18 days from the board.

Robert Hall, a spokesman for the OPSMTF Prince Edward Region Local, said meeting on May 9, said, "We, as teachers, believe we have a right to decide how we can be proud but are disappointed that our board doesn't have enough confidence in their principals to grant them the days we put to full and advantageous use.

"Instead of leading, we seem to be following. We ask the board to seriously reconsider the decision they have made," he told trustees.

Mr. Hall and two fellow teachers, George Frederick and Ron Brownell, formed a committee of three to explain the local OPSMTF's objections to the board's allotment.

"The public school teacher seems a second - class teacher, not because he is cast but because people regard him as such," commented Mr. Hall.

He said elementary school teachers spend much of their spare time in planning classes and could even extend the requested 10 days to the maximum 12.

The OPSMTF wishes to make it very clear to the board that we are in full support of the principals' brief requesting the use of 10 school days for professional purposes," he stressed.

The brief requested one day in October, two in Nov-mber, two in March, three in June and two "floating" days.

Teacher George Frederick observed, "It seems inconceivable that, when the ministry says we can have something and we want it, it can't be granted."

Trustee Edward Rutle- replied that the ministry did not intend an axis - and - you - shall - have policy but stated that the board must serve to grant the required ing the number of teaching days.

Prince Edward director of education, John McNeil, said that, in a spot study of the province, he learned that most boards were using 10 or 12 days; some allowed six to nine days to secondary schools. In Prince Edward, the secondary school allotment was reduced from 14 days to 12 days.

Mr. McNeil told trustees a schedule was built in as the high school in past years. This was studied carefully to effect the two-day reduction. Elementary schools lack such structure.

"I strongly suggest that elementary school teachers study their needs, establish the fact that five days is not enough, then come back to us with the facts," he said.

Board chairman, Clare McFaul, said trustees would be open to further presentations on this subject at a later date.

James Pioneer, immediate past chairman, pointed "out that the board is "very much under pressure" from parent's and other taxpayers regarding days.

Trenton Bureau Honesty May Be Inconvienient

By IAN ROBERTSON

Has it ever occurred to you that there are people out there keeping a watchful eye open for your car to appear in an unprotected parking lot? You know. The ones who just can't wait to dent, ding, or thunk anything that closeresembles fresh paint or an unchipped side.

I've become firmly convinced that there are legions of these people and there's little doubt in my mind about them. Unless you catch them in the act.

And then you have every opportunity to pounce with undisguised glee, spouting the names of insurance company, your favorite cop on the beat or lawyer.

But what if this denter of fenders doesn't stick around to partake of your calm and cool, or loose and frenzied approach to the situation? It kind of takes the wind from your sails. Right?

The other day, an incident on Division Street left me feeling completely becalmed. He left. No hide nor hair, not a trace.

It didn't look like a great deal of damage. I couldn't really tell, there's been so many size concentrated there before. But before we could exchange pre-9 a.m. amenities, she wheeled out into traffic, with hardly a look back.

"Okay lady, — if that's the way you want it," I thought to myself, reaching for pad and pencil. The one moment Make of car. Description of driver.

It's not good enough to simply identify the car involved these days. Police in Trenton and most centres say you have to identify the driver and preferably he or she at the wheel.

Not so much for the fender-mender, but the principle of the thing, was I prepared to report her. But no one seemed to give about my business than there was a rap at the door of the building.

My suspect explained on coming traffic made it difficult to remain with her hood blocking the road. She had rectified the block and returned to look for the driver of the car she'd hit.

I'm firmly convinced the fact she may have seen me write down her licence number down had nothing to do with her reappearance. It was a good feeling.

She said "thanks and I'm sorry" and left.

There's an old joke. The fellow who closes up shop and says you're away. A crowd gathers and he places a note on your windshield which reads, simply, "These people think I'm leaving my automobile to run". Most people don't even bother with that.

It's refreshing once in a while to find someone who is willing to own up and possibly suffer embarrassment, not to mention having to dip into is his pocket.

Of course it helps, too, if there was no harm done.

Mayor McFarland presented the visitor with a Prince Edward County cheese to mark his trip to Picton. Mayor Reenan also received a copy of the book, The County from the Picton Rotary Club.

UCS Backs Citizens Bureau

The United Community Services Thursday night unanimously supported the principle and practice of the citizens bureau and resolved to take steps to explore ways of financing it going following the termination of LIP funding.

The program, which began last December, is housed in the William St. offices of the UCS. It is scheduled to become defunct May 31 unless extended funding can be obtained.

The board decided to set up a committee to bring together members of the community who might help to perpetuate the bureau in the city.

According to information received, the program had been turned down for extended LIP funding by Toronto administration offices but was to be reviewed in Ottawa shortly.

Building Boom Worries Ameliasburgh Council

AMELIASBURGH — A boom in residential construction here continues to mushroom and has municipal authorities worried.

Reeve Russell Thompson indicated to his council at the regular monthly meeting that he is prepared to halt the growth rather than lose control.

Latest reports show that the new growth is well above projected limits. Permits issued for new buildings in March and April amount to 750,000, exceeding all figures for comparable periods by far back as 1960.

Reeve Thompson suggested the situation should be reviewed and perhaps stopped if development is seen to threaten to erode the quality of services provided to residents.

Commenting on the council's decision to examine the situation Clerk William Nightingale said the reeve and councillors were aware that expansion without planning in advance could result in a "nightmare" for township administration. Council has to think about the extra expense created by additional facilities for education, garbage collection, recreation, plus wear and tear on roads, be explained.

Hugh Pepper, president of the board, urged that the bureau be kept going and said Jack Ellis, MP for Hastings, had been contacted and requested to give the bureau priority in his government dealings.

During lengthy discussion as to the bureau's fate, one member of the board inquired if it could not become a participating agency in the United Appeal.

While the bureau was not represented at the meeting, another director pointed out that it wanted few local ties so that its movements in fighting for clients would not be restricted.

Mr. Pepper was instructed to formally correspond with Ottawa as to the worth of the program.

Eye Donation Made Easier

Local volunteers for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind hope to step up eye donations by making donor cards more readily available.

At Thursday's annual meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Advisory Board of the CNIB, held in St. Andrew's Church, members heard of several complaints from persons who wanted to bequeath their eyes but were unable to locate the proper forms.

The members were told cards are being distributed in Belleville General Hospital and are available from members of local Lions Clubs. In addition, the district office in Kingston always has plenty on hand.

An important legal change made in 1971 makes it easier for persons to donate their eyes. The Ontario Human Tissues Act now stipulates that only a donor's signature is required on the will to permit doctors to transplant eyes upon the donor's death.

In the past, permission was also needed from next of kin.

Last year, six eyes were donated by Trenton residents and two by persons living in Belleville. Twelve of the province's 702 eye donations were transplanted to blind patients in Kingston General Hospital.

Besides hearing about eye donation matters, the advisory board also passed two resolutions of appreciation for 1972.

Thanked were the municipalities of Belleville and Trenton and the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward for grants they contributed totaling $3,500. Also thanked were all conveners, canvassers and volunteers who assisted in the annual appeal and other work on behalf of the blind.

The board finished the year with a deficit of $1,818. Among its primary expenses were $3,253 for rehabilitation teachings, $1,398 for equipment and $2,398 for library services.

Chairman of the advisory board for 1973 is Ray. Lennox. First vice - chairman is Maurice Stoneburgh; second vice - chairman, Andy Mcilquist; secretary, Nancy Miller; treasurer, Lois Wishart; campaign treasurer, Roy Tripp.

Marmora Approves New Campground

Marmora and Lake township council has given approval for a deluxe family campground in Marmora township on the old Madoc road south of Highway 7.

Norman Bradley of Whitby has taken an option on a 190-acre farm owned by John Doyle. Initially, the proposed campground will occupy 10 or 12 acres for trailers and will be open from May until late September. If all approvals are obtained, the campground will open next spring.

Mr. Bradley is associated with Kampgrounds of America (Canada) Ltd. (KOA), a firm with 681 campgrounds in 47 states and five Canadian provinces.

Plans include a main building housing a grocery store, showers, laundry facilities, a lounge and restrooms.

A sewage system, with dumping facilities for trailers, will be installed. Other attractions include a swimming pool, play area for children and perhaps a small zoo.

D. R. Ricci, director of Canadian operations for KOA, said the number of people camping in crowded dramatically and public campgrounds cannot accommodate all of them. He said a KOA franchise involves a $120,000 - $150,000 investment.

Purchase of the Doyle farm is contingent upon approval for the campground from Hastings county planning board, Hastings and Prince-Edward counties health unit, the county building inspector and the department of parks and tourism.

Australian Visitors

One of the folk tales emanating from the immensity of Australia has to do with people who get lost in the legendary outback. The way Bill Wheatley tells it though, the time he took a wrong turning was no big deal; still, he admits, in his soft-spoken way, that his young woman companion was not amused.

"Rescue" did come eventually when they were directed to a homestead about 20 miles away. At that point Mr. Wheatley, an industrial relations officer at Mount Isa Mines Ltd., abandoned all thoughts of setting off for his original destination, some ten hours away back along the track. He says people who do get lost often have themselves to blame and in any event it is always wise to take along extra water.

Yes Australia is a big country, a continent in its own right and one whose sense of nationhood is taking a keener edge with each passing day, especially under the new Labor government of Prime Minister Whitlam. Members of the Australian party here on a Rotary Foundation group study exchange were of the opinion the Whitlam government, barring some political calamity, is in for a long run.

Group leader Dr. Keith Archer is also from the mining centre of Mount Isa, in northwest Queensland. Described by writer Bruce Brander in the National Geographic's special volume on Australia as an "industrial oasis," Mount Isa lies 600 miles from the populous east coast "and very much alone in the dusty outback." A seemingly limitless mineral lode supports its approximately 20,000 people, holding silver, lead, zinc, and one of the world's major copper deposits.

Most of the town's inhabitants, according to Brander, live in air-conditioned homes and the community's needs are brought in from cities as distant as 2,000 miles. Immigrants from 50 countries make up nearly one-third of the work force.

The flying doctor service is another facet of life "under" that is characteristically Australian, but consider also the work of a priest in the interior. Neville Green, one of the group visiting Belleville in recent days, has a parish covering 40,000 square miles centred on Charters Towers. Interesting visitors indeed, this group from Australia, and incidentally they are back among us this weekend — in Picton and Trenton — following a trip to Ottawa.

Not Yet Proved

News of the indictment of former U.S. Attorney-General John Mitchell and former Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice, coming as it does on top of the escalating Watergate affair, is a further shock to Americans and to the public conscience generally. But what is even worse is the prejudgment of these and the other men close to the U.S. administration involved in alleged wrongdoing at the political level in recent times. The temptation is to overlook the very foundation of the legal system in the western world — that a man is innocent until he is proved guilty. Yet in recent days there has been one syndicated Washington journalist at least, speaking on radio in connection with the Mitchell-Stans indictment, whose observations were as presuming of guilt, and therefore damaging, as indeed they were moralistic. The media and the public at large bear a heavy responsibility, not only to find the facts but to avoid pre-judgments of issues and individuals.

Better Than Jogging

Observed by Trenton businessman Albert Ward during Canada's trade exhibition in Peking (which he described to Rotarians here the other day): a "young man doing calisthenics Chinese style. As the body moved in long slow movements, the feet never leave the original position." The Canadians meanwhile had been jogging around the square outside their quarters . . . but the Chinese method, Mr. Ward said, is supposed to be more effective. Could be. Canada had basketball teams there, superbly costumed in red, but both the home sides' Pepteams were beaten by the home sides. Perhaps we should all take up calisthenics Chinese-style!

Poland Seeks Larger Role Here As A Trading Partner

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Ties of culture, race and even of war have bound Canada and Poland in the past and continue to do so in the present. Close allies in World War Two, when Canadians fought side-by-side with Polish troops in Italy and Polish warships at sea, the connection continued strong in postwar years when we finally returned the priceless art treasures to Poland in the mid-1950s.

For hundreds of thousands of Polish Canadians, the pull of the star land (the "Old Country") takes them back to the land of their birth or that of their parents and grand-parents. Polish families of the third generation since grandparents came here to settle, still teach their children the language of their fathers. Bi-lingual Canadians of Polish stock usually means they have fluency in both English and Polish.

Poland now comes to us seeking a larger role as trading partner and purchaser of a very wide range of appealing Polish manufactured and processed products and foods. The current place to see all these on tasteful and generous display has been "the Trade Exhibition of Poland" at the Canadian National Exhibition which was held from May 4 to 12.

Unfortunately for the trade promoters of the People's Republic of Poland, Polish-Canadian trade has been a drop in the bucket of the overall trade of both nations with 0.4-per cent of Polish exports coming here.

Part of the reason is the complementary nature of many Polish and Canadian manufactured goods, chiefly in such areas as fishing vessels, machine tools and clothing. Another part of the reason has been the slow move of Poland and other Eastern European states into the rich industrial and consumer markets of the capitalistic West.

The country was too long tied to the economic requirements of Comecon, the Soviet-dominated common market of the socialist bloc, with its demand for capital goods industries, steel mills, shipyards and truck plants. For too long, the Polish consumer suffered terribly, short of good housing, palatable foods and decent clothing.

As recently as two years ago, the harsh riots in the presently-pleasing Danzig (in Polish Gdansk) Shipyards, indicated how much consumerism had penetrated Poland. In any case, the country had been selling excellent Polish foods, stylish clothes, even camping equipment in Western Europe. So Poles knew these products were being made, but at the first not for them.

Given all these domestic difficulties, Canadians should trade more widely with a country where the goodwill extended toward us is as extensive as anywhere in Europe.

In fact, colloquial Polish has a word, believe it or not, "kanada," a play on Canada which means "good fortune" or "good luck." This columnist has heard it in spoken Polish both in Poland and in the Polish community in Toronto.

In assessing Poland's slow arrival in the competitive consumer markets of the West, we should remember that no country in World War Two was as thoroughly devastated as Poland. Cultural genocide was the avowed and public policy of the Nazi occupiers of Poland. The defeated German army and SS attempted to blow up every literary, palace, university centre in Warsaw when they left in late 1944.

Recovery has been slow, excruciating, replete with bitter memory. And while this was going on, more fortunate Western European nations with a less harsh road to recovery, captured most of the markets Poland would now like to secure.

Today Poland in its Toronto trade fair offered fine quality products ranging from the intellectuous machine tools to crystals, glassware, women's styles, food products, radio and TV, camping equipment, a wide and determined offering of Polish enterprise.

General Franco Is Under Pressure From the Right

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Recent street demonstrations in Spain have challenged Gen. Francisco Franco from an unusual direction—the far right—indicating that the jockeying for power in the post-Franco era already has started.

Tens of thousands of Madrid march this week by 6,000 nationalists and members of the far-right Falange movement, following a similar outburst five days earlier. Franco had been preoccupied with left-leaning workers, the students and liberal-minded leaders of the Roman Catholic church.

While the limited spectrum of politics in Spain it has been impossible for ultra-conservatives to find a niche to the right of dictator Franco, 81 and in failing health, and his rubber-stamp parliament. But the recent trend of strikes, violence and evidence of liberal thinking now has left him open to criticism from ultra-rights and fascist elements for being too lenient.

The fact that authority, did not seek to disrupt the demonstrations led to some speculation that Franco condoned them, since they served to strengthen his reported plans to replace some cabinet members with more severely right-wing men.

But in the broader sense, observers suggest the demonstrations were orchestrated by individuals looking to the post-Franco era rather than seeking to challenge Franco himself.

Signs and slogans at the rally were aimed at various cabinet members and urged Franco to rule through army power rather than through parliament.

Franco, head of state since the end of the 1936 civil war, has said he will not relinquish power until he dies or become incapacitated.

The hero in Madrid Monday was Gen. Iniesta Cano, who fought with the Germans against Russia in the Second World War and has been gaining increasing support among reactionary elements in Spain.

The crowds chanted "Iniesta to power," a reference to his proposal to succeed Admiral Luis Carrero Blanco as chief of government.

The cause of the outbreaks was the death, a young policeman stabbed during a clash with left-wing May Day demonstrators.

The crowds also seized the opportunity of the policemen's funeral to hurl abuse at Opus Dei, a Catholic lay association which is said to have many members and urged Franco to rule through army power rather than through parliament.

The crowds also seized the opportunity of the policemen's funeral to hurl abuse at Opus Dei, a Catholic lay association which is said to have many members and are affiliated.

And they called for the execution of Madrid's liberal archbishop, Msgr. Vicente Enrique y Tarancon, who earlier had condemned both the killing of the policeman and the recent beatings of priests and liberal Catholic workers by right-wing elements.

Speakers at the demonstration criticized him for linking the two incidents, saying the priests were "fellow travellers" who deserved what they got.

But while the rightists held the spotlight, with members of the fascist-rooted Falange giving their stiff-armed salute, workers at a Barcelona car plant were engaged in a 10-day strike and lock-out, although strikes are illegal in Spain.

Thus, whatever the right-wing resurgence may accomplish, most observers believe it is unlikely at present to distract Franco for long from what he considers is the most immediate challenge to his authority—the growing dissidence on the left.

Hydro Head Office Contract

Ottawa Journal

Premier Davis' wise decision to put a special committee of the Ontario Legislature to work examining Ontario Hydro's manner of awarding the contract to build its new head office should be welcomed most of all by Ontario Hydro.

Hydro has a fine reputation for efficiency and integrity throughout this province. It has handled billions of the Ontario public's dollars, and expanded its capacities to meet the extraordinary new demands for its energy. Its administrative decisions until now have been remarkably immune from serious criticism.

Investigations should not be launched frivolously in pavlonian reaction to charges which have become irritating or faintly embarrassing. In the spillover from the Watergate affair, there is probably a danger that governments will over-react and prefer investigations of almost any half-cocked charge. That will have to be guarded against. There is probably no considerable enterprise which cannot be second-guessed.

But Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, doing what an opposition leader is paid to do, has raised a many disturbing questions and there have been too many disquieting newspaper assertions for anything less than a legislative examination of the whole matter.

Mr. Nixon is never one to underrate anything the professes dissatisfaction with an inquiry less formal than a royal commission. But that kind of heavy artillery is certainly not called for.

An intelligent committee under a fair-minded chairman can extract enough factual information about a building deal for the legislators and the people of Ontario to make up their own minds.

Airport Controversy

Editor,

On March 25,1972 Prime Minister Trudeau said: "If the majority of people living in this area, even if only 51 percent, didn't want this airport, then we wouldn't proceed with it". He was speaking of Pickering.

Since that time the federal government has proceeded rapidly with the expropriation of lands for a second Toronto International airport at an estimated cost of $600-million dollars (first phase).

A recent poll by Peter Regenstreif of the Toronto Star showed 49 percent of the people in Metro Toronto were against the airport, 36 percent were in favour and eighteen percent were not sure. In addition, three-quarters of the elected federal members were stated they were against the second airport. The insistence by the federal government on building an unneeded, unwanted airport can be based on only one proposition - to avail a arm of federal spending will attract votes and support to the Liberal Party in an area which is dominated by the Conservatives and NDP. Such boondoggling in this time of national need for houses and schools, is political cynicism in fact of political cynicism.

Lougheed: Hard Line On Gas

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

More and more it is beginning to appear that Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta may be holding a pat hand in his controversy with Ottawa over increasing the price of natural gas.

Although Premier William Davis and special assistant Darcy McKeough have been attempting to fight back they have made little or no evident headway.

And chances of them doing much better in the future look remote.

The key question now and in the future, it seems, is whether a province has full control over natural resources within its borders, at least for internal use.

Alberta is taking the position that it does.

To date Messrs. Davis and McKeough while they have not attacked this stand frontally have been opposing it from the flank.

They have been calling on the federal government for a national energy policy.

Such a policy, presumably, would include all measures first of all should be used in the national interest and then would set out guidelines for marketing and co-operation.

But both Ontario has been putting on more and more pressure for the policy, so far it has not been making any effect on Prime Minister Trudeau.

The prime minister in fact, has said that the natural gas controversy is a direct argument between Alberta and Ontario and is not a matter of federal concern.

And it would seem doubtful that he can be budged from this position.

Mr. Trudeau has consistently tried to avoid direct confrontations over natural resources.

Even on the question of offshore mineral resources, where presumably he has had a federal ally to defend, he has been most delicate in his approach.

So you can't see him getting dragged into an interprovincial argument.

And without him and a national energy policy Ontario doesn't have much apparent muscle.

It conceivably might challenge Alberta's position on constitutional grounds. But even if its legal experts advised it could do this, politically it would have very severe reservations.

Anglicans Plan to Aid Fight
James Bay Hydro Development

REGINA (CP) — Preparations for the next general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada, in Quebec in 1973, started Thursday night as the 28th general synod drew to a close after declaring its position on a number of controversial issues.

Rt. Rev. Timothy Matthews of Quebec City, bishop of Quebec, assembled some of the diocesan delegates to discuss the next synod and to map strategy to help the native people of Northern Quebec fight a massive James Bay hydro-electric project.

The Anglicans and the United Church, both planning to unite with the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) to form the Church of Christ in Canada, have scheduled their 1973 national conventions for Quebec City.

"We are considering the possibility of holding our meetings at the same time in the same place," Bishop Matthews said in an interview. "One proposal is to hold them at Laval University in May or June, 1973."

The plan to form the new church, which would have a total membership of four million, is scheduled to be presented for approval by both churches in 1975.

One difference at the 1975 synod will be that a number of speeches and resolutions will be presented in both English and French, Bishop Matthews said.

During the 26th synod which was to end today, all speeches were conducted in English.

Delegates approved a resolution Thursday endorsing statements made earlier during the synod by Archbishop Scott to support the native people in their fight against the $5-billion James Bay project, which calls for the flooding of one-fifth of Quebec's land area and affects 6,000 native residents of the area, almost all of them Anglicans.

Bishop Matthews said he will seek meetings with Prime Minister Trudeau and Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa to express the church's concern over what it considers the violation of aboriginal rights by the Quebec government, which started the project two years ago without consulting the natives.

In other resolutions Thursday the synod condemned France's atmospheric testing of nuclear weapons but turned down attempt calling for a boycott of French goods, including those made by French companies in Canada.

A number of Eastern delegates expressed fear a boycott would leave many Canadians jobless.

Natives were promised direct participation in the development of a self-determining branch in the North by 1985. The synod passed a resolution to set up a subcommittee of eight native representatives to advise the national church on the development of the Northern branch.

The synod also instructed the church's national executive council to petition the federal government to break trade relations with South Africa in protest against the country's racial policy.

A resolution suggesting that the archbishop of Canterbury, recognized as the head of the worldwide communion of 50 million Anglicans, need not be a member of the Church of England was soundly defeated.

"God is not an Englishman," said Rev. R. H. McSherry of Richmond, B.C., who introduced the resolution. But all 300 delegates, save Mr. McSherry and his seconder, voted against it.

The synod also called for establishment of a church department on social public responsibility in recognition that the church must not divorce itself from the pressing issues of the day.

The department was instructed to develop church policies and programs on such issues as the environment, minorities rights, the arms race and equitable resources development.

Earlier in the nine-day synod, delegates approved guidelines for women, declared its position on abortions and tentatively approved voting procedures for Canada's 1.5 million Anglicans on proposed union, which can take place by 1977 at the earliest, said Chancellor H. R. Christian Science Society

Canadian Churchman Gathers All Awards

TORONTO (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada Thursday announced that its national newspaper Canadian Churchman had made a clean sweep of awards for a news journal at the annual convention of the Associated Church Press and Religious Education Press of North America in Minneapolis, Minn.

Categories won were general excellence in planning and production, best editorial, best reporting and best use of photography.

The 190-member non-denominational association has been made up of church publications in Canada, the United States, Mexico and meets annually. It is the fifth consecutive year that the Canadian Churchman has won at least one award.

Hugh McCullum, editor of the Churchman which has a monthly circulation of 275,000, won the best editorial award for his article on the Forgotten Rebellion in Ireland.

Mr. McCullum, who just completed a Southam Fellowship at the University of Toronto, had held senior editorial positions with the Kingston Whig-Standard, Regina Leader-Post and Toronto Star.

Carolyn Purden, 23, features editor of the Churchman won the reporting award for her feature on Ireland which was titled Reign of Terror. She also is a former employee of The Telegram.

She travelled to Ireland to make an on-the-spot assessment of the situation there from all sides.

The photography award was for photographs accompanying a story on a French monastic community.

Anglicans Make Plans

REGINA (CP) — Leaders of the Anglican Church of Canada have tentatively approved a constitutional amendment which outlines voting procedures for Canada's 1.5 million Anglicans on the proposed union of the United Church of Canada and the Christian (Disciples of Christ) Church.

The proposed union among the three churches to form the Church of Christ in Canada can take place by 1977 at the earliest, said Chancellor H. R. Ryan of Kingston, Ont., an Anglican church constitutional expert, after the almost unanimous approval of the amendment.

The next step toward the proposed union is for a plan of union to be presented at the next general synod in 1975. However, the plan and the amendment on voting procedures must receive two-thirds approval at the next synod before the proposed union can proceed.

Under constitutional provisions, constitutional amendment which was not unanimously approved the first time may be approved by the next synod by a two-thirds majority, Mr. Ryan said.

Our Judgments Reveal What We Really Are

By Rev. Gordon C. Smyth

Jesus said, "Judge not, that you be not judged" (Matthew 7:1) People often quote his words out of context. Taken literally, our Lord's advice would stifle opinion and produce a society without laws or law courts. In the first instance, Imagine how dull life would be. In the second, imagine the anarchy.

On occasion, Jesus gave no quarter. He could condemn: "Woe to you Pharisees- for you tithe mint and rue and every herb, and neglect judgment and the love of God. Woe to you Pharisees - for you love the best seat in the synagogues and salutations in the market places. Woe to you! - for you are like graves which are not seen, and men walk over them without knowing it."

Our Lord was no soft-spoken individual or one inclined to be sentimental. What he was in fact laying down in this saying is a much more profound principle the principle of the recoil of judgments. Your judgment of others is in reality a revelation of yourself. What you think of them is a key to your own nature. Your words may very well betray you. "The measure you give will be the measure you get."

This is a reversal of a common notion. We fancy that another life is quite interpretable in its motives. We think that our own lives are disguised. The fact is that nothing is more transparent than the motive of a judging life.

A man goes through the world and finds it suspicious, inclined to wrongdoing, full of capacity for evil. He judges it with his ready gossip of depreciation. He may be repeating what is correct or incorrect. But one truth he is reporting with complete accuracy — the fact that he himself is the kind of man who he professes to see in the world around him.

The cynic looks over the world and finds it hopelessly bad. However, the one certain fact is that the world is beyond redemption, but that his influence is to make it so. The snob surveys the scene and concludes that it would serve no purpose to get involved in community affairs since nobody would appreciate his talents or make way for him. The fact is not that the world which he thinks he knows would be unresponsive, but that he is a snob.

The person to be admired and followed is the person who makes his way through life, anticipating a fair deal, believing in his neighbor, expecting a reciprocity to good will and service. He is often deceived. However, he has at least proved that he himself has a genuine brand of religion.

Through his judgment of others he is himself being judged. And the measure he gives, to others, in the final judgment of him, made by either God or his fellow men, will be the measure he gets in return.

Sight And Sound Gifts

Even though today's newlyweds are truly individual in lifestyle and dress, practically all of them share a love for sights and sounds that are electronic.

That's why color television . . . the stereo record changer . . . and the tape player or player - recorder . . . are high on the list of desired wedding gifts that will help the modern bride and groom furnish their first home together.

In choosing a gift for newlyweds — whether it is for individual, office or any other group giving — space limitations for the young couple's apartment or house should certainly be considered.

For example, in color TV, the choice ranges from an array of compact portables and smartly designed table models to larger instruments such as the lo-boys, full - to - the - floor consoles, and all - in - one console combinations.

Remote Controls

One of the features to look for in this year's color TVs is: the super bright color picture tube (one tube comes in a range of different screen sizes — 16-19- and 25-inch diagonal). Other button color control; easy channel selection; an increased use of solid state circuitry, plus plug-in modules and component.

Doris Clark
Women Ahead of Men...

Very often, the key to success is patience. In many situations, it's the person who has the patience to persevere and do the job right who wins the praise.

Fortunately, patience is a quality that can be developed with a little effort.

Here is an example: When waiting in a doctor's office instead of fidgeting or sighing impatiently, school yourself to sit calmly as if the wait didn't bother you a bit. Soon it won't bother you or anyone else, your nerves will stay on an even keel.

One woman who knew that she needed a lesson in patience took up one of the most tedious hobbies, petit point. She forced herself to work neatly, steadily and accurately.

When she made mistakes, she tried to undo her work without her usual impatience. And it worked! She found a new serenity in her life, and a hobby which became a work of joy.

Dear Doris: It must be this the influence of a life such as Lester Pearson's goes on and on. Surely proof of our immortality?

Do you hear the former Moderator of the United Church speak at the funeral? I think I will never forget it. He quoted from the book of Ecclesiastes - "The Wisdom of a humble man will lift up his head, and will seat him among the great."

Mike had wisdom and humility and greatness. How we need such men and women in public (and private) life today! Yet I am sure there are many valiant souls, trying, against tremendous odds, to do right the wrongs in this seemingly confused day and generation.

Thank you too, Doris, for your own work, I always enjoy reading you and admire you for "following the gleam" and playing your flute as you go. Keep on keeping on, even when the going gets difficult, as it is bound to do at times.

— Irene.

Dear Irene: Why, I have it easy! You can judge from my letters that there are indeed valiant souls who are making difficult lives count for something.

I'm lucky. I have family, friends. My greatest concern is for the pile of mail which brings to me the heart-searching thoughts of troubled Canadians. Getting a message of hope across by means of a letter or a brief paragraph in a newspaper column takes both imagination and a lot of optimism.

Dear Doris: For four years I have worked as housekeeper for a man whose daughter is my best friend, now. Lately I started going out with him and he told me he loved me, but after we'd get home he'd accuse me of all kinds of things and slap me and a lot of around. He called me terrible names.

He has a brother who would like to take me out and I love him very much, but I'm afraid to go out with his brother he'll take his own life. I would rather that the little girl cries and begs me not to go or else to take her with me.

Everyone around here tells me I'm crazy with the brother if I want to. But this man thinks he owns me. — Don't Know What To Do.

Dear Don't Know: Walk out on him, even if it takes all the courage you have. Your life as you live now is practically slavery.

Let the little girl have her complain and talk with the social worker in your regional welfare agency about how they can bring this bad-tempered man to his senses. If necessary, she child can be made a ward of the agency and moved out of that threatening atmosphere.

Anonymous letters are bad manners and may be ignored. But I must see them in the newspaper, give Doris your right name and address. It will be kept confidential.) Personalized letters are hard very low heat. Do not brown.

Or you can poach the eggs: carefully slip eggs from a saucer into very gently simmering salted water in a skillet. Remove from skillet with slotted spoon.

Place cooked eggs on ham in oven. Make Hollandaise Sauce. Spoon Hollandaise over eggs.

Serve Spring Fruit Cup, Eggs Benedict, Coffee Cake and coffee or tea.

Then do the dishes.

SPRING FRUIT CUP

Wash rhubarb and trim ends. Cut two cups of one inch sections.

Place in saucepan with ¾ cup white sugar and about ½ cup water. Add a dash of lemon or orange peel.

Heat to simmering over moderate heat and cook for 15-20 minutes until just tender. Meanwhile, wash and hull two cups fresh strawberries. When rhubarb is tender, halve strawberries into the mixture. Spoon into small bowls or fancy cups. Chill.

COFFEE CAKE

Heat oven to 375 degrees.

Measure out: two cups flour, 1¼ cups sugar, ¼ cup soft butter or margarine, two teaspoons baking powder, ½ cup milk, two eggs.

In a bowl, combine flour, sugar, salt, butter. Mix very well with fork, spoon or fingers. Remove ½ cup of this mixture and save. Add remaining ingredients and mix quickly. Place in a greased 8-inch-square pan. Top with ¾ cup chopped walnuts and saved crumbs. Bake 30 to 35 minutes.

HOLLANDAISE

In a blender, combine four egg yolks, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ tsp. salt, dash pepper. Quickly turn blender on and off. Turn on high speed and drizzle ¼ cup melted bubbly butter into the mixture very very slowly. When all the butter has been added, turn off blender and spoon onto eggs. (If you don't have a blender the sauce can be made in a saucepan over a very low heat . . . add melted butter very slowly stirring all the time.)

Mothers' Day Breakfast

It's traditional. Mothers get breakfast in bed on Mother's Day. If it's been soggy scrambled eggs and burnt coat with burnt toast every May, take heart. Silver can be placed in a suitable place (in the sports' page? on top of the television?) this easy-to-follow menu for dad and kids can make a better breakfast for any mother come Sunday.

SPRING FRUIT CUP
EGGS BENEDICT
COFFEE CAKE
COFFEE - TEA

Shopping List: fresh strawberries, fresh rhubarb, thin slices boiled ham. English muffins. Be sure you have on hand: sugar, eggs, lemon juice, flour, chopped walnuts, butter or margarine, lemon or orange peel.

About two hours ahead of time: Make Spring Fruit Cup and chill. Make coffee cake. Take eggs out of refrigerator: four eggs plus one for each serving of Eggs Benedict.

About 30 minutes before you wish to serve breakfast, begin following this timetable: Turn oven to warm. Put coffee on to perk. Rewarm coffee cake in oven. Halve English Muffins (one-half per serving) and place on heatproof plates in oven. Top each muffin with one folded slice boiled ham. Place ½ cup butter in a small saucepan over low heat for Hollandaise sauce. In a skillet, melt a small amount of butter and gently fry one egg per serving over

Minto Institutions

VICTORIA (CP) — There are more women admitted to mental institutions than men, at least at the Eric Martin Institute, a major British Columbia psychiatric treatment centre.

Why?

Dr. Ian Kenning, head of the division of psychiatry, has been mulling over the question.

"I frankly don't know what the real reason are; I just have my own ideas." He thinks there are a large number of factors which act in combination.

Part of the explanation may be because jails are populated mainly by men.

Men are consistently in more difficulty with the law in society ways, from traffic offences to acts of aggression, he noted.

Perhaps women were more honest in recognizing emotional problems and asking for help, Dr. Kenning said.

"Little boys don't cry, that's the password for our society.

"To see a psychiatrist is a bad thing if you're not supposed to cry or get sick."

It has also been suggested that women may be more physically susceptible to mental illness but Dr. Kenning called that a "cop-out" answer.

"Women are more prone to depression premenstrually . . . but I don't think that is a big factor."

The same is true on common situations on menopause, he said.

Menopause has become a socially acceptable reason for all sorts of behavior changes so people frequently do not look for the deeper causes behind mental illness.

Menopause often coincides with a time of major changes in a woman's lifestyle—the end to raising children—which can be emotionally hazardous.

"That's been her job, maybe for 15 or 20 or 25 years. Then all of a sudden she's pensioned off, and she's not to look at getting a new thing that's meaningful."

Dr. Kenning also suggested that women, under stress, might be more likely than men to someone else for help while men choose another outlet, perhaps alcohol.

The higher number of women admitted to Eric Martin, he thinks, is probably partly due to doctors' offices.

He did note, however, that the institute has a policy flexibility on many of its patients whose problems are only with alcohol will not be admitted but will be sent to other treatment facilities.

He said also that women appear to be depressed more often than men and that depression is the diagnosis in as many as half the institute's cases.

However, there were many kinds of depression and a patient had to be learned. Frequently depression was merely a symptom of other problems.

"My belief is that depression relates to a lack of balance in your way of life. If you are not getting healthy expression, you may well get depressed.

"Women, I think on the whole, have a little greater trouble getting healthy expression."

OUR CITY - THE SILVER CITY

Another Belleville business that has been operated by the same family for three generations, is Woodley Furriers

In The Daily Intelligencer's Souvenir Industrial Number of 1909, we read: "Among the furriers and hatters of Belleville, there is none with a reputation exceeding that of Mr. George T. Woodley, a gentleman who has made a thorough study of his business, and is a practical cutter himself as well as a graduate of the Belleville Business College.

"He established the present business in October of 1904 and has built up an extensive business, wholesale and retail, the retail trade covering not only Belleville and the county of Hastings, but extending throughout the whole Dominion.

"The business is located in large building at 337 Front Street and only expert fur workers are employed, manufacturing every kind of fur garments.

"The finest skins are used and each skin is thoroughly inspected before it is made up. All Persian Lambs, Astrachans and Bocharaus are imported direct from the old country, while other Alaska sables, coon, fox, mink, muskrat, otter and other American furs are bought largely from trappers right here.

"Mr. Woodley makes it a point of keeping absolutely abreast of the times in fur styles and to keep his stock replete with styles for coats, jackets, fur stoles, muffs, etc.

"Not only is a complete line of these goods kept in stock, but garments are made up to order in any desired fur and style. A specialty is made of dyeing, remodelling and repairing.

"One of the great conveniences of ah establishment of this kind is the storage of furs during the summer months. Mr. Woodley saw the necessity of this some few years ago and has given the greatest satisfaction to the citizens of Belleville by keeping their furs free from moths in summer time, at a very small cost to them.

"This house also carries one of the largest and best assorted stocks of men's hats and caps to be found in Belleville, making a specialty of the famous Henry Heath silk hat, and has the exclusive agency for the "King" of Derby, as well as showing hats made by other leading manufacturers in the newest and most fashionable blocks, imported direct from the best houses in England and United States.

"Whether a customer is buying on a wholesale or a retail basis, and whether his order is large or small, he receives the same courteous treatment, and is equally sure of satisfaction as the result of his purchase.

"Mr. Woodley has built up for himself an enviable reputation since starting this business, and stands second to none in the same industry. He is a man of excellent business ability and intelligence and to these traits may be attributed the success which he has won.

"Working the year round as this factory does, the establishment is of more than ordinary value to the City, giving steady employment to many hands.

"Today Mr. Russell Woodley, son of the late G. T. Woodley, who carried on the business, is now president of the firm operated by his two sons-in-laws, Richard Woodley and Douglas C. Woodley.

"We are carrying on in the same store where my grandfather began," noted Mr. Douglas Woodley. "And speaking of men's millinery, we had the good fortune to get one of the original men's hats sold in the store here around the beginning of the century, which we hope to put on a window display soon."

We shall all watch for it, with interest, Mr. Woodley.

Now, Reactors for Sale

OTTAWA (CP) — Slowpoke, a can, for example, be used to laboratory-size nuclear power reactor, now is available on a commercial version, say officials of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited (AECL).

Salesmen from the Crown corporation's commercial products division are ready to approach universities, hospitals and small research establishments around the world, a spokesman said in an interview.

The first Slowpoke, which was the nickname for AECL's prototype design "Safe Low-Power Critical Experiment," recently was upraised by the Atomic Energy Control Board.

The board, which regulates all uses of radioactive processes in Canada, allowed the University of Toronto to operate Slowpoke by a power factor of four, to operate it 24 hours a day and to run it for long periods without supervision.

A news release from the university said the power factor would be increased to a level of 20 kilowatts—"approximately the heat equivalent of a dozen electric kettles."

The ugliurnity has Slowpoke on loan from AECL.

The spokesman said the company now is ready to offer these on a commercial basis. Cost is roughly $250,000.

The reactor, which is about the size of a large household waterheater, can operate in a variety of situations, he said. It

Doris Clark
Women Ahead of Men...

Very often, the key to success is patience. In many situations, it's the person who has the patience to persevere and do the job right who wins the praise.

Fortunately, patience is a quality that can be developed with a little effort.

Here is an example: When waiting in a doctor's office instead of fidgeting or sighing impatiently, school yourself to sit calmly as if the wait didn't bother you a bit. Soon it won't bother you or anyone else, your nerves will stay on an even keel.

One woman who knew that she needed a lesson in patience took up one of the most tedious hobbies, petit point. She forced herself to work neatly, steadily and accurately.

When she made mistakes, she tried to undo her work without her usual impatience. And it worked! She found a new serenity in her life, and a hobby which became a work of joy.

Dear Doris: It must be this the influence of a life such as Lester Pearson's goes on and on. Surely proof of our immortality?

Do you hear the former Moderator of the United Church speak at the funeral? I think I will never forget it. He quoted from the book of Ecclesiastes - "The Wisdom of a humble man will lift up his head, and will seat him among the great."

Mike had wisdom and humility and greatness. How we need such men and women in public (and private) life today! Yet I am sure there are many valiant souls, trying, against tremendous odds, to do right the wrongs in this seemingly confused day and generation.

Thank you too, Doris, for your own work, I always enjoy reading you and admire you for "following the gleam" and playing your flute as you go. Keep on keeping on, even when the going gets difficult, as it is bound to do at times.

— Irene.

Dear Irene: Why, I have it easy! You can judge from my letters that there are indeed valiant souls who are making difficult lives count for something.

I'm lucky. I have family, friends. My greatest concern is for the pile of mail which brings to me the heart-searching thoughts of troubled Canadians. Getting a message of hope across by means of a letter or a brief paragraph in a newspaper column takes both imagination and a lot of optimism.

Dear Doris: For four years I have worked as housekeeper for a man whose daughter is my best friend, now. Lately I started going out with him and he told me he loved me, but after we'd get home he'd accuse me of all kinds of things and slap me and a lot of around. He called me terrible names.

He has a brother who would like to take me out and I love him very much, but I'm afraid to go out with his brother he'll take his own life. I would rather that the little girl cries and begs me not to go or else to take her with me.

Everyone around here tells me I'm crazy with the brother if I want to. But this man thinks he owns me. — Don't Know What To Do.

Dear Don't Know: Walk out on him, even if it takes all the courage you have. Your life as you live now is practically slavery.

Let the little girl have her complain and talk with the social worker in your regional welfare agency about how they can bring this bad-tempered man to his senses. If necessary, the child can be made a ward of the agency and moved out of that threatening atmosphere.

Anonymous letters are bad manners and may be ignored. But I must see them in the newspaper, give Doris your right name and address. It will be kept confidential.) Personalized letters are hard

Ann Landers

From Sports Widow A Word to Wives . . .

Dear Ann Landers: Now that cause you are not up on things the "football widows" have laid their gripes to rest (until next season), may I say a word to all wives who feel that they've lost out to the boob tube?

After 14 years of marriage, my husband made it clear that his greatest joy in life is to sit in front of the TV with a can of beer in his hand and look at football, basketball, baseball, hockey, golf and bowling tournaments, tennis, swimming meets, anything involving sports. When he wanted to talk to me he'd let me know.

After four solid months of going to bed alone and falling asleep before he turned in, I decided to respond more affirmatively to an attractive man who liked me more than he liked sports on TV. I no longer felt that sinking feeling when my husband runs for the TV magazine to "see what's on."

My sexual appetite is satisfied and I've stopped biting my nails. I feel sorry for myself. Now I feel sorry for him. The dumb jerk.—Did It In Scarsdale

Dear Did: Some "solutions" can be the beginning of new and more complicated problems. To each his own.

Dear Ann Landers: You shouldn't be giving advice be-the tax on Regs. Don't they realize that we are not to blame? If it was up to us the prices would be lower and there would be no taxes.

Second, when we ask to see personal identification before cashing a check, they act like we are accusing them of trying to pass a bummer. They always say, "You know me. I've been coming in here for years." Of course I know them, but I need proof of identification, either the driver's license number, social security—something.

Most cashiers have bunions, flat feet, fallen arches and nervous headaches. Extra aggravation we don't need. Tell 'em, please.—Tired of Dray-Kaype

Dear Tired: I let you tell 'em, and you did it better than I could have—because I don't have flat feet, bunions, fallen arches, etc. Have a good day. Doll.

Opening lead — two of diamonds.

You can't expect the enemy to fall into a trap every time you give them a chance to make a mistake, but it stands to reason that the more such opportunities they get the more often they will oblige.

Consider this case where it would be easy for East to go wrong on defense. West leads his fourth best diamond, declarer winning the trick in dummy and returning a spade.

East's proper play is a low spade, not the ace, but the fact is that many players holding themselves to follow low on dummy's singleton spade. — First, let's see what happens if East goes up with the ace. South wins the diamond return, cashes the king of spades, discarding a diamond from dummy, plays a trump and easily makes four. He loses a spade, a trump and a club — perfect.

Next, let's see what happens if East plays low on the spade. South can make the contract if he's smart enough to play the king, but he gets favor his playing the jack.

He is likely to assume, once East follows low, that West has the ace, and he may therefore play the jack in the hope of finding East with the queen. In that case South would go down against proper defense thereafter, losing a trick in each suit.

The point is that East, who knows from the deuce of diamonds lead that declarer has precisely three diamonds — and hence a diamond loser — cannot lose a blessed thing by playing low on the spade. He gives declarer a chance to make a mistake and hopes that South will go wrong.

Only Three Vacancies

BLOOMFIELD — The ...ince Edward County board ...f education has p...laced a ...me on all teacher hiring ...xcept for three teacher posi... now being advertised.

...press release issued by ...board notes, "Although ...eachers are generally expect... to teach any subject assign...ed, the three teaching p...ositions being advertised (1st... teacher-librarian for K n t e ... school, music teacher for Wellington school, and girls' physical education teacher for Prince Edward Collegiate) by statute, require special talents and training."

To obtain fully qualified replacements for the teachers ...eceiving these jobs, the board has advertised the positions, since no staff members at present can fill all requirements.

Loss Reports Requested

BLOOMFIELD — Prince ...ward school trustees have ...ked to ask principals and teachers for prompt reports of all equipment losses.

The decision followed the discussion of a report of the theft of a tape recorder, band radio and antenna from Prince Edward Collegiate Institute this month.

The aerial was missed first. Later investigation showed that a radio unit had been taken. The incident was not reported to the police until several days afterward.

Business administrator, E. J. Sheet, said trustees likely hesitated to contact police since it was possible that a teacher or student was using the equipment. By the time it was established that the equipment was missing several days had passed.

Trustees agreed all equipment losses should be reported immediately to the police and the board offices.

Industrial Beat

Accidents Hurt More Than One

By MIKE PATERSON

Of all the losses an industry can suffer, those that result from on the job accidents are certainly the most frightening.

Frightening because industrial accidents cost Ontario industry about $150 million last year, and that doesn't count most patently in the impact a single accident can have on the victim and his family. The injury is often many-faceted, involving ...ic and psychological.

...ood whether it is a popular fact or not, an accident is to blame. Some human error or omission lurked behind it to the accident. Another worker, the victim or management ...may have been guilty. But someone has to bear the responsibility.

The Industrial Accident Prevention Division (IAPA) is the largest of several management - level safety associations in Ontario with staff covered under the Workmen's Compensation Act automatically a member of one or another. The division is headed by the category particular industries fall into.

IAPA member industries include those dealing with construction, vehicle, chemical, ceramics, grain, food products, leather, textiles, printing and electrical. Part of an industry's assessment to the Workmen's Compensation Board, about three cents to the dollar, is used to finance the IAPA.

IAPA field consultant John Twigg ...sumes that IAPA is not a policing body. "We're purely advisory and educational," he said. So far this year he has put on 24 training courses for about 244 people.

Much of the heavy work load at the local level is shouldered by local executives who muster their time and effort out of personal commitment to the division to running the regular meetings that generally take on an educational theme, organize courses, sponsor competitions, encourage safety and safety records and promote safety to industry, the schools and the public at large.

IAPA, with a core of full-time staff and the dedication of local executives, also provides client consultation ...eany industry that wants ...ger services. The field consultants will do complete accident prevention programs if required and have backed up by the services of the association's full-time technical staff.

IAPA maintains accident records, provides speakers, produces films, garners research and publishes ...ly a well-equipped Safety Training Centre in Toronto. Awards and trophies presented by IAPA take pride of place with the industries receiving them.

"Attitude, awareness and education of employees are the key to a safe working place," said Roger Armstrong, president of the Belleville - Trenton Section of the IAPA. "The IAPA also aims at making machinery and equipment as safe as possible — you try to make it foolproof, but unfortunately this world is full of fools so you have to make it accident-proof."

Full - time field consultant John Twigg ...ees that a lot of money paid out in compensation is only a small portion of the total cost of accidents. "It's like an iceberg," he said. "The bulk of the costs are underneath and these are the ones that are rarely looked at today."

Helen Nerska, full - time secretary for the IAPA Belleville - Trenton Section, said there were firms that could definitely save IAPA fees ed through participation in IAPA programs.

In the Belleville - Trenton Section in 1971 there was an 18 per cent rise in the incidence of compensable accidents compared with the previous ...vince - wide drop of 10 per cent. Between March 1972 and March 1973 there was a 24 per cent drop locally.

Helen Nerska said that in 1971 49.5 per cent of industries on her mailing list participated in IAPA activities. Last year 60 per cent of the industries on a longer mailing list participated.

Section President Roger Armstrong puts it: "The more participation we've had, the lower our accident rates have gone — there certainly seems to be a direct relationship. "But, he says, IAPA can not claim direct responsibility. It is the chicken and the egg argument. Which comes first, management concern or IAPA activities? But, like the chicken and the egg, the real question is — which came one..he without the other?

The increasing participation in IAPA locally, and the declining incidence of industrial accidents locally, is a credit to both the IAPA Belleville - Trenton Section executive and the area industries involved. It is to be hoped that the trend is to some extent self-generating, interest begetting participation, and good safety records getting better. It is an organization, after all, to be backed up by the services of the association's full-time technical staff.

Patriotism Gets Boost At Centennial Festival

Those in need of additional? ...ty nourishment might be found a tonic at Centennial Secondary School yesterday. Available was an inspirational capsule of Canadian culture, courtesy of about 400 students.

That's the number of young workers estimated to have created a unique school project — Festival Canada.

Despite a liberal sprinkling of special events without specific national identity — flute singing, bicycle - races, fashion shows — the program emerged with the Maple Leaf flying high.

Object of the program was to increase national cultural awareness. And that applied not only to the students, but parents and the public as well. Many toured the classrooms and watched stage events in the school auditorium at night.

The event wasn't concerned with nationalism, as such, but an exercise in Canadian traditions and history, said physics teacher Syed Haider, originator of the program.

The idea was first tried out in Hamilton last year when a survey disappointed teachers on how much students were aware of Canadian culture and heritage.

The response at GSS stunned even the most impressive when school authorities gave the go-ahead earlier this year.

Hard Training Begins for North

Members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment last night spilled some sweat as Belleville's northbound industrial park in the first session of training toward their support role in Operation New Viking near Resolute Bay, June 27 to July 10. For the first time in many years the militia unit will retain its own identity on the regular forces exercise, rather than being seconded under regular force officers and NCOs.

Hasty Pees to Be Tested

Training 'is beginning in earnest for a platoon of Hasty Pees from Belleville, under Warrant Officer Dave Nicholls who will support the Ammonite Regiment during a two-week regular forces exercise at Resolute Bay.

Purpose of the exercise is cited as "to show the world at large that Canada controls her own northern frontier". The support role of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is unique in that they will not be seconded under regular force officers and NCOs as in the past.

The platoon will be commanded by Capt. Wayne Gilroy, B Company Commander, Peterborough. It will operate as a distinct unit, providing ground support for the regular forces' Airborne Regiment.

Maj. Carl Hubel, A Company Commander, Belleville, sees the role as "a step in the right direction" as far as the future of the militia unit is concerned.

"The whole thing will be tactical and, once in the area, all transport will be by helicopter," he said.

Before any man is eligible for the exercise, scheduled for June 27 to July 10, he has to pass a rigorous test of physical endurance.

The tests, at Camp Petawawa June 27, consist of making a 10 - mile forced march in two hours and 15 minutes, climbing up a 12-foot rope, along a 20-foot span then down a 15-foot rope at the end, a nine-foot running broad jump, scaling a six-foot wall carrying a man 50 yards in two minutes, then treading water for 10 minutes — all without a break.

Townships Still To Pay Twice

The three southern county municipalities of Sidney and Thurlow townships and the village of Frankford are going to have to continue paying both the Quinte Planning Board and the Hastings Planning Board.

And this despite a letter from Hon. John White, minister of the Ministry of Treasury, Economics and Intergovernmental Affairs, suggesting that Hastings Planning Board levies against the three municipalities be terminated.

Elsewhere, the response was enthusiastic, with various Canadian themes from poles to poetry on the program.

SWEEP Activity Branches Out

The 1973 SWEEP program in the Moira River Conservation Authority will provide summer jobs for 21 high school and university students.

Periods of employment will range from 10 to 20 weeks with pay rates in three categories ranging from $90 to $116.

Several of the students are already hired and are at work at projects ranging all the way from maintenance ...tensence to long - term planning and mapping of the authority's conservation areas.

The SWEEP program has been designed to meet a number of specific projects.

One group of four will work at developing the O'Hara museum north of Madoc, working as museum guides, ...ntendents, and marking and cataloguing of artifacts.

They will also do some ground maintenance and prepare an old fashioned garden, complete with herbs.

A second group of three, already at work, will do long - term planning and mapping of the authority's three conservation areas — Rice's, the Vanderwater area, and O'Hara's Mill. They will prepare scale maps showing roads and current facilities and project possible development for future years.

Another group of two will do a detailed study of present water quality in Moira and Crow lakes, taking note of chemical, bacteria and plant life counts. Purpose of the study will be to determine the present conditions so they can be compared with future conditions.

Another group of three will do a survey of canoe routes along the Moira and its two main tributaries, the Skootamatta River and Black Creek, marking the portage trails. The survey will cover two seasons — May and July — with the different water levels.

An authority official said with the increasing popularity of canoeing more and more inquiries are being received regarding canoe routes along the Moira.

Other projects of 8 SWEEP employees will work on regular maintenance along with the conservation authority staff and in co-operation with constituent municipalities on roadside c leanup and other projects.

Another summer job in the program is that of a student with picture - taking capability taking progress photographs of the various summer and distribution of - authority pamphlets and publications available.

Senior supervisor for the entire authority's SWEEP program is Stephen Flaher of Thomastorp.

Inquest Unlikely

Coroner Dr. William Beattie said Friday he doubts there'll be need for an inquest into the death of Bernard (Barney) LaMorre, a Moira St. E. resident whose body was recovered by police in a Tripp Avenue house last Saturday morning.

"I understand there is a logical sequence of events to explain what happened," the coroner said, adding an inquest would be called only if no explanation could not be found.

Dr. Beattie also ruled out the possibility of foul play.

An autopsy conducted on Mr. LaMorre showed he died either from heart failure or from a fall. Police said he is known to have taken several falls earlier in the week.

Mr. LaMorre was a former security guard at Belleville General Hospital and lived in the city for 22 years. He is survived by his wife Mary and four sons.

Access Roads

...funct York River dam proposal.

The road development suggestion was made at county council this week by Farmdy Reeve Jack MacKenzie, following receipt of a letter from the Bancroft Chamber of Commerce.

The letter asked that consideration be given to a year-round tourist attraction for the North Hastings area to take the place of the once-prosperous York River dam development.

The letter was referred to the ARDA committee.

The ARDA committee report read by Grant Whitehouse, deputy reeve of Tyendinaga, noted that Deseronto and Wallaston had requested an investigation into the cost of municipal services in the north.

At the present time one veterinarian services the nine northern Hastings county municipalities, and Mr. Brewer who receives a subsidy of $1,000 for the service. The subsidy is made up of $1,000 from the local municipalities and $1,000 in matching funds from the province.

The county administrator has been authorized to contact the northern Hastings municipalities of Carlill and Chandos township to ascertain if they would be interested in having the area designated as a Contract Veterinarian Unit and if they would be prepared to support it financially.

Students Make Views Known

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

Whether you blame R on the ...ecent rise of youthful idealism ... student protests are ...ing.

Three incidents in recent weeks illustrate the issues that many classrooms and school boards are facing.

Some students at Queen Alexander School picketed a Hastings county board of education meeting in February to protest the June closing of the Thurlow school. They might only have been seeking escape from the classroom, but children, to let the friendly crowd of youngsters seemed to be expressing a genuine reflection for their school. They brought their dogs and their banners and sit - ins and sit - ins behind. Having made their feelings known, it's to be avoided further entanglements. We have to assume that them to involvement beyond their depth.

The current issue was at stake last week when students at Centennial Secondary School in Kingston walked out to protest conditions at their school. They were due to write provincial examination in June, a ...ack of discussion with staff before policy changes are made, absence of a forum for discussion and a refusal to ...ling polices regarding tests and exams.

They had a point.

In most Frontenac, and all Hastings county schools, students with an average of 80 per cent and over are released early in June without writing exams. The thinking was at some point LaSalle students to school while those released early from their high school snapped up summer jobs. Their student council said the provincial exams, only a fund-raising body, hamstrung when it came to getting student opinion back to faculty. And they said too much time was being spent on tests and exams and too little on teaching.

The crisis of attending hours to testing hours was never resolved. But the Ontario board of education ... if it knew. It's g to testing hours was never resolved. But the Ontario board of education ... if it knew. It's all a result of the anxiety created profitably by the Hastings board. Tests, exams, evaluation, assessment, call them what you will, are encroaching further and further on available classroom teaching time here as well as in Toronto.

The LaSalle students were, the complaints seemed more ...ed, more ...ed, more ...ed,

Terriers Crush Mohawks 11-2

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — St. Boniface Mohawks were plagued again Friday with the second-period blues as Orillia Terriers trounced the Manitoba team 11-2 to take a commanding 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven Allan Cup finals.

In four games Mohawks have tallied only one goal in the second frame.

Dave Richardson, playing coach for Mohawks earlier in the season but now just a player summed up the plight of Mohawks in Friday's fourth game.

"We had a good game plan in the dressing room but between here and the ice it disappeared."

Gary Kwasnitza echoed an earlier statement he had made that Mohawks could come back.

"We were down against Spokane (Jets) and we came back. I feel certain we can do it again."

Grant Moore led Terriers with three goals and three assists. Garrie Vaughan and Mike Draper each scored twice while single goals went to Gary Milroy, Ray Marsh, Jim O'Brien and Hank Monteith.

Harry Buckstell and Nels Johnson replied for Mohawks.

The teams were tied 1-1 after the first period but Orillia added three unanswered goals in the second to lead 4-1. St. Boniface got their second goal early in the third before Terriers began their seven-goal onslaught.

Jean-Louis Levasseur returned to the Orillia net after sitting out the third game. He faced 26 shots while Bob Rogers in the St. Boniface goal was bombarded with 61 drives.

Mohawks took six of nine minor penalties. Each team was assessed a major and Orillia captain Tom Polanic was given a game misconduct for being the third man in on a fight.

Terriers are confident they have the series under control. Garrie Vaughan who scored the winning goal in the second period said: "We have 18 top hockey players on this squad and you can bet we're going to give it our best shot at the year in order to keep the Allan Cup in Orillia."

The cup arrives here today for the presentation ceremony ahead of Terriers wrap up the series tonight.

Doug Gelgher, playing coach for Terriers, said he will stick with the same lineup that won Friday's game.

Voyageurs Stay Alive

HALIFAX (CP) — Randy Rota scored three goals Friday night to power Nova Scotia Voyageurs to a 5-3 win over Cincinnati Swords and their first win in the best-of-seven Calder Cup series.

Cincinnati now has a 3-1 lead in games in the series for the American Hockey League championship, won by Nova Scotia last year. The series resumes in Buffalo Sunday night.

Rota, a little winger with a booming shot, scored his third goal early in the third period. He tied the only marker in the second and also scored in the first.

Chuck Aranson and Yvon Lambert were the other Nova Scotia marksmen while Jake Rathwell and Randy Wyrzoxo replied for the Swords.

Pro Track Meet Fails to Draw

TORONTO (CP) — The International Track Association's professional tour moved on to Philadelphia today with its president still professing confidence in the future despite a poor performance here Friday night.

Maple Leaf Gardens announced the crowd at 5,180 for the ninth meet on the tour which had little to offer those who did show up.

Among the featured events that fell flat were the pole vault where none of the six competitors could get above 16 feet six inches, and the mile run where Kenyan Jim Keino failed to show up for his expected confrontation with Jim Ryun.

Despite the lack of excitement, Mike O'Hara, president and founder of the ITA tour, refused to say he was disappointed.

"No, I wouldn't say disappointed," O'Hara said in an interview.

"We never know when we get into a new city what to expect," he said he was concerned that the National Hockey League Stanley Cup finals which ended Thursday in Chicago may have overshadowed any advance publicity on the track meet here.

"This is hockey world and you understand that going in, but I think next year we'll book it earlier here."

Despite generally low attendances through the nine meets so far, O'Hara said the tour has enough backing to keep going.

"We are already booking dates for next year. We've got substantial backing—several billion-dollar firms now are organized with us and we just signed a major television contract with ABC yesterday.

"It was a multi-year television contract and we're very bullish."

And as long as the tour can keep going long enough, said sprinter Wyomia Tyus Simburg, things should improve.

Mrs. Simburg won the women's 50-yard dash with a time of 5.7 seconds, one-tenth of a second ahead of Barbara Ferrell.

"It's not going the way we'd like it to go but it is going," said Mrs. Simburg when asked about the general reaction to the tour thus far.

"The more meets we have, the better it will be because more people will get interested.

"It's giving the athletes a chance to do something. Most of the people in track and field have no place to go."

Ralph Boston, who was what had happened to Keino. Officials said the distance runner had advised them he was leaving his Kenyan home to come to the Toronto meet but he never arrived.

In his place, Jerome Howe provided the best competition for Ryun, taking the lead near the start and staying there until the last lap when Ryun sprinted by to win by three-tenths of a second.

Ryun's time was four minutes. 7.7 seconds, well off his pro indoor record of 3:59.8.

"Right the pit where the two cushions come together and I went right through and hit my nail bone right on the concrete," said Seagren who holds the pro record of 17-7.

At first if he thought he would be able to compete tonight at Philadelphia, Seagren said:

"Well, I hope to. I'll have to see how it feels."

Until Friday night, the ITA tour had one undefeated athlete but that string ended when Lance Babb defeated Leon Coleman in the 50-yard high hurdles.

Both the previously-unbeaten Coleman and Babb were clocked in six seconds flat, while Paul Gibson came third in 6.1.

Buyer Has Team-No Arena

Blazers Move to Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Millionaire industrialist Jim Pattison bought himself a hockey team Friday and now all he needs is an arena.

Pattison, 44, who parlayed a Vancouver automobile franchise and financial acumen into a leisure-oriented conglomerate, Neonex International Ltd., shelled out $1.9 million to purchase Philadelphia Blazers of the World Hockey Association.

Pattison plans to move the team to Vancouver, thus setting up head-to-head competition with the established Vancouver Canucks of the rival National Hockey League, but first he must find an arena for the team.

The Pacific Coliseum, home to the Canucks, is the first choice and Pattison made the initial formal step Friday in presenting an application to lease the 15,706-seat arena for playing dates from the Pacific National Exhibition, which runs the building.

The PNE board didn't make any firm decision, lacking a quorum, but did pass a motion that they view with favor entering into a contract with the new WHA team for use of the Coliseum and other facilities of the PNE, as long as the provincial government goes along.

The provincial government seemed amenable, with recreations minister Bob Williston of the PNE under new legislation, saying in Victoria that the Canucks don't have any exclusive right to play in the Coliseum.

Williams said a new PNE board would have been required to renegotiate a new lease with the Canucks in any case and Pattison said the proposal he presented for his team to lease the facility offered the PNE a better deal than they now get from the Canucks.

Under his proposal, the Blazers would get second choice of playing dates after the Canucks.

Pattison had mentioned that his team might play in Seattle if no arena could be found here, but that locale seemed doubtful, with Seattle's arena dates already tied up by the Totems of the Western Hockey League, Canucks' farm team, and the Supersonics of the National Basketball Association.

Pattison said the purchase was strictly personal and wasn't tied in to his other activities.

For the money, he received the franchises and 26 players already under contract, along with the rights to 60 protected players. Separate contracts were negotiated with Johnny McKenzie as playing coach and Phil Watson as general manager.

Goalie Bernie Parent, who spent last season with the Blazers but became unhappy over alleged breaches of contract by the team, is not involved in the deal.

The purchase came as a complete surprise, with the final papers being signed at 5 a.m. Friday after a 10-day round of phone calls and flights between here and Philadelphia.

Pattison said the reason for the quick negotiation with Philadelphia was the need to start selling season tickets quickly in order to compete with the Canucks.

"We're bringing winning hockey to Vancouver," he said. "I put my money where I believe."

Transfer of the franchise was approved by WHA trustees in a telephone poll Thursday. League president Gary L. Davidson announced the Blazers would become part of the league's Western Division with Edmonton, Winnipeg, Los Angeles and Minnesota. Either Chicago or Houston will be shifted to the Eastern Division.

Marlies, Remparts Tonight

Season Ends Abruptly For Medicine Hat

MONTREAL (CP) — The hockey season ended abruptly Friday night for Medicine Hat Tigers, the so-called Cinderella team of the Western Canada Hockey League.

The Tigers dropped a 7-3 verdict to Quebec Remparts, crashing the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League champions to advance to tonight's sudden death final game against Toronto Marlboros. Game time is 8:00 p.m. EDT an it will be carried on the CTV network.

Guy Chouinard, Andre Savard and Richard Nantais scored two goals each for Remparts while Bob Landry added the other for the Remparts, who skated to a 6-1 lead in the first period.

Ed Johnstone scored twice for Medicine Hat, while Brampton also scored the other.

Only three years ago, the Tigers joined the WCHL as an expansion team and finished at the bottom of the league standings.

In the WCHL playoffs this year Tigers knocked off Calgary, Edmonton and Saskatoon Blades to win a Memorial Cup berth.

"It was a good year," said Lysiak, shortly after his club's defeat Friday. "It would have been nice though if we could have taken the cup home.

"Quebec's got a good skating team. I think they are a bit faster than Toronto. We penalized at the start but us and we couldn't really get going. The referee was calling almost everything."

Referee Jim Lever in the first period called 15 minor penalties, instead four to the Tigers in the first two minutes and 40 seconds of the game.

Quebec coach Orval Tessier, who coached Cornwall Royals to the Memorial Cup champion ship last season, couldn't contain his satisfaction with the win.

"We played a solid hockey game. They wanted to hit but we weren't intimidated one bit.

"We showed again this year that our league belongs in the Memorial Cup with the best in the province and for the Quebec League. It's been a long time since a Quebec team has been out of the finals."

For the past two seasons, teams representing the Quebec Junior A Hockey League have won the Memorial Cup. In 1969 and 1970, Montreal Junior A were the national junior champions.

Tessier said tonight's final against Toronto, this year's OHA representative, should be a "hell of a hockey game."

Crampton Still Leads

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Sirocco's Mike Crampton added a 69 Friday to go with his opening 66 for a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the $150,000 Colonial National Invitational golf tournament.

"If this was a feature to my round, it was then I hit a lot of good recovery shots," said Crampton, who missed seven fairways, nine in the sand four times, missed four greens and still escaped with one bogey.

His 135 total, five-under-par on the 7,142-yard Colonial Country Club course, made the 25-year-old Australian a solid lead in his quest for a fourth title on the American tour this season.

Crampton, who won last week at Houston, is the only player under par. Two rounds of 71 each left Jerry Heard, Lou Graham and Bill Kratzert tied for second and consecutive 69. Graham blazed in at 66 and Elder shot 68.

Gene Littler, Hale Irwin and Ken Still, at 138, were the only others in the field able to better par after two rounds.

Graham made a big comeback from the sick list, slipped to a 72 and was nine strokes back at 144.

Crampton's only bogey came on the fifth hole, where he drove to the right into a water hazard. He recovered with a third into a bunker, hit it out to three feet and made the putt.

His birdies came on an 18-foot putt for a deuce on the eighth hole and a remarkable seven-iron shot from the right rough on the fourth.

The sturdy, curly-haired veteran hit that one to within two feet from the hole and then sank his putt.

But his recovery shots were the key to his round—just as they were Thursday—as he continually scrambled out of potential trouble.

George Knudson of Toronto, who shot an opening round of 70, ballooned to a 78 Friday, but remained in contention for the third round, beating the cut-off score of 149 by one stroke.

Smrke Doesn't Put Stress on League

By AL ZARAS
Staff Sportswriter
(Sixth of series)

Centre Peter Smrke does not agree with Mark Costes in that "the calibre of hockey is not necessarily going to improve your play. What is told to you and how you put it to use is.

"I don't see the point of playing hockey if you're not playing your best," said Smrke.

PETER SMRKE
- - - Starring Role

Though Smrke is only 17-years - old, the centre who starred in the playoff series with the Bobcats against the likes of league pennant winning Peterborough Lions, Oshawa Legionaires and Toronto Young Nationals, will not be back with the Belleville Metro Jr. B entry next year.

Though he was asked by the Cats to join the club at the beginning of the year, he preferred to stay playing saying "I wanted to go where I could learn the most the area needs I had."

Once the OMHA playoffs were over for the Western Tire Juveniles, Smrke signed with the Cats "because after the last game, if not that day."

His playing skill had a telling effect between Robbie Robbie Foster on his left and Mike Watt on his right wing as the line was used by coach Moe Hunter to check the big power lines of the Cats' playoff opponents.

"Personally, I didn't like being used in a defensive role," said Smrke, "but it's something you have to learn.

Playing on a checking line restricts me, but as soon as you get the puck and make the break, you've got to make it count. Our line scored pretty well.

Smrke's line provided the Cats with 16 goals and 18 assists throughout the playoffs with the centre providing nine markers and seven helpers. During the 16 regular season games, Smrke posted five goals while earning eight assists while with the juveniles, he scored 31 goals and assisted on 30.

Smrke will continue to spend time on the ice after what he hopes will be a season on the senior squad for Belleville United as he will likely go to Montreal's Loyola University for a Bachelor of Science degree.

55-year-old Riggs To Meet Mrs. Court

Margaret Court is enroute to an unprecedented second Grand Slam of tennis and as a tuneup for her upcoming French Championship matches she's meeting the self-admitted "King of the tennis players," Bobby Riggs on Sunday, May 13.

"I don't mind meeting the lion in his own den," said Margaret. "It's more than just a tennis match at stake. I feel I'm playing for all women.

"I know Bobby has said some rude things about women tennis players, so maybe we can even things up a bit."

Award for Alex

DETROIT — Sponsors of Italian-American Night which will be held at Tiger Stadium Thursday, May 17, have selected Alex Delvecchio, veteran ice star of the Detroit Red Wings, to receive their annual "Athletic Achievement Award".

Delvecchio, who has spent 22 years in Red Wing uniform and has been captain of the team 13 years, will be saluted in ceremonies preceding the Tigers' game with Boston at Tiger Stadium. He is to receive went to Tiger Manager Billy Martin last year.

The 55-year-old Riggs, a former World Champion, has come out of retirement and challenged Mrs. Court to the $10,000 Mother's Day match in San Diego. It will be seen on the CTV coast-to-coast network from 3:30-5:00 p.m., E.D.T.

"When I was playing they (women) couldn't win a match or a set or a game against me unless they were lucky," said Riggs. No woman ever lived who could compete with a man on an equal basis — even a 55-year-old man like me."

Bobby is not as decrepit as he sounds. Last year he won the national 45 and over grass championship and was runner-up in both the senior clay and hardcourt championships.

"I'm ready for him," said Margaret. "I'll play my own game and the concrete court will suit me more than him. Knowing Riggs he'd likely get something put on the court to slow it down."

Margaret is having a phenomenal tennis season winning 17 of her last 19 matches and $83,000. With the 1973 Australian Championship already in her court, she has her sights set on winning the French, Wimbledon and United States championships — this would give her a second Grand Slam, a feat that has never been accomplished.

Official Recognition

The Ontario Amateur Softball Association recently made formal recognition of a pitching feat turned in by Mead Johnson squirt right - hander Tim Soule. The Belleville youngster turned in a no-hit game August 1, 1972 during first round OASA playoff action against Napanee. Bert Trice, vice - president of the Belleville Minor Softball Association, presents the certificate to Tim. Bert says all the young fellow needs now is a repeat performance this season. But Tim is content to approach the 1973 campaign with an "I'll just do my best" attitude.

Mayberry the Wrecker

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After 19 games, Minnesota Twins have finally lowered hoe to pitch to John Mayberry—very carefully.

The Kansas City slugger continued to wreck the Minnesota Twins with a home run, triple and single Friday night that powered the Royals to a 6-2 American League baseball victory.

"I just go up there to hit," said Mayberry, whose three runs batted in gave him 27 against Minnesota in the last 19 games dating back to last year.

"He has a beautiful future," said Kansas City manager Jack McKeon after his slugger hit his ninth home run this season. "He has the chance to be the outstanding hitter in this league."

In the American League's other games, Baltimore Orioles blanked New York 3-0, Boston Red Sox beat Cleveland Indians 4-2, Detroit Tigers defeated Milwaukee Brewers 6-5, Oakland A's turned back Texas Rangers 4-3 and Chicago White Sox stopped California Angels 7-4.

Mayberry knocked in a run in the first inning to give the Royals a 1-0 lead, extended that margin to two runs in the fourth with a triple and then struck a two-run homer in the fifth.

The home run off Bert Blyleven was on a fastball, said the Royals slugger.

After his triple to left-centre in the fourth, the Twins put on a modified shift to left when he came up in the fifth, but it didn't matter because Mayberry put the ball out of sight.

Along with Mayberry's batting show, Kansas City winner Bruce Dal Canton had the support of four double plays.

Jim Palmer pitched a three-hitter and Ellie Hendricks slugged a two-run homer as Baltimore stopped New York.

Luis Tiant pitched a four-hitter and John Kennedy hit a two-run homer as Boston defeated Cleveland. After giving the Indians runs in the first, two in the third and Hendrick's sac-

MAYS SIDELINED

PITTSBURGH (AP) — New York Mets said Friday they will be without outfielder Willie Mays for a weekend series against Pittsburgh Pirates Mays, who is struggling with a .105 batting average, injured his right shoulder last Sunday—on his 42nd birthday—making a throw from the outfielder.

Excelsiors Win

BRAMALEA, Ont. (CP) — Bob Burke's four goals paced Bramalea Excelsiors to a 19-13 victory over St. Catharines Metros Friday in Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A league play.

Chuck Williams and Wayne Sterrill scored three goals each for Excelsiors. Rob Wilson, Jim Robinson, Brian Davey added two each. Duncan Evans, Gordner Connor and Greg Walmsley each scored once for Bramalea who is unbeaten in two starts.

Bruce Richardson of St. Catharines with four goals. Three-goal efforts came from Tom Patrick and John Mourdian. John Howe, Jim Hapgood and Bill McKenzie scored one each for Mohawks, winless in three games.

Bramalea led 7-5 after the first period and 14-7 heading into the final 20 minutes.

Foster's Comeback Fatal for the Expos

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitcher Alan Foster hadn't won a major-league baseball game in almost three years, but he made his comeback a big one Friday night.

Foster, whose career faltered when he suffered torn ligaments in his shoulder in 1968, pitched a four-hitter while his St. Louis Cardinals team-mates battered five Montreal Expos pitchers in a 12-9 National League victory.

In Friday's other National League games, Houston Astros defeated Cincinnati Reds 5-1, New York Mets beat Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3, Chicago Cubs edged Philadelphia Phillies 4-3 and Los Angeles Dodgers defeated San Francisco Giants 3-2. San Diego's game at Atlanta was rained out.

Foster's victory was his first complete game in the majors since July 18, 1971, and just about capped his struggle to return to the majors.

He'd been heralded as a Los Angeles Dodgers' next super pitcher in the mid 1960s. But in 1969 he had a composite 13-22 record and earned-run averages of 4.39 and 4.25.

So Los Angeles traded him to Cleveland, where he was a 8-12 with a 4.15 ERA in 1971. Then the Indians swapped him to Cardinals for relief eight games, he found himself in the minors, pitching his way to an 8-8 record and 3.81 ERA.

It was during the 1972 season with Salt Lake City in the Pacific Coast League that Cardinals' personnel director Bob Kennedy got a look at him, liked what he saw and traded for him.

Foster thinks the time he spent kicking around the majors and minors may have helped him.

"As a $100,000 bonus baby, you think you're pretty hot," he said. "They have a tendency to pamper you until they find out you're not nothing," he said of the Dodgers.

"You get a distorted sense of importance. I think that might have retarded my progress. I hope I've learned it. I can't tell that easy."

That was easy going against the Expos—so easy, in fact, that manager Red Schoendienst, suffering to the Cards' dismal 7-21 record this season, said the game was "just like going to the back and getting a big loan without any collateral."

The Cardinals drove starter Mike Wallace to defeat with a four-run first inning, and another run in the second. Shortreliever Ted Simmons slapped a two-run single and Ray Busse and Mike Tyson delivered RBI singles in the early spree. Luis Melendes drove in two runs in a three-run second inning.

Record Crowd For NASL Game

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Atoms made up for their English players, battled to a 0-0 draw with Dallas Tornado here in a North American Soccer League game Friday night.

The Atoms made their local professional debut before a Veterans' Stadium crowd of 21,700 announced as a record for the NASL.

Dallas remains undefeated, having beaten Toronto 2-1 in its opening league game. The Atoms were beaten in their opener by the St. Louis Stars 1-0.

THIS ONE'S REALLY DIFFERENT

A three bedroom two storey with an exterior that has character written all over it. Imagine a mansard roof with a skirted overhang. Enjoy the view from a large cantilevered bay window. Master bedroom has shower room, separate wash basin and vanity, and walk in closet. Kitchen has large dining area, separated by wrought iron railing from sunken family room with fireplace. There is a separate dining room. Garage is attached.

This house is now far enough along that you can see its many features, and still not so far along that you can't pick your colors.

WANT TO SAVE NEARLY $2,000.00 ?

then take advantage of the chance to buy one of the houses we have left that were built before prices increased and sales tax was raised. We have bungalows, split levels and two storeys available. Some in the East end, some in the West. There is no way to save $2,000.00 any faster.

THEY ALL LAUGH

When we tell them a condominium can be bought for $626.00 down — "You've got to be kidding" — they chuckle. . . . They all cry, however, when we tell them they are available only to those with earnings under $8,500.00 yearly. If you are in that category, call tonight and have the laugh on them. Very few left, so act fast

Sunday, May 13

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The morning situation is best kept light as you repeat familiar Sunday amenities. Gather friends for an exchange of views.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Begin with an expression of faith. Afterward the day is full of surprises, uninvited people, switches of arrangements.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Being the subject of fun and games may not be comfortable, it may be inevitable. Nothing to do but make the best of it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Sunday comes with the blessing of serenity. Explore what is happening, contribute your creative flair to unconstructive goals.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The intangibles of life are foremost. The less you tinker with material concerns, the better. Take care with travel plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): While fulfilling your share of weekend customs, give a thought to your resources and how you may turn hobbies and unused items to cash.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You're high in your cycle of betterment. Live up to your ideals —You'll find others favor you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's time for quiet enjoyment, thanksgiving for blessings you usually take for granted. Let others make the big moves today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Social goals may be formulated and progress made. Celebrate this special Sunday with open expressions of love and joy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Put aside material concerns, see the open gate to a more spiritual way of life—use it, allow freedom for others to do likewise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your faith is visible to all but you. Be open to greater truth, willing to evolve. Select with care a symbol of your love.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): On this rich and varied Sunday many facets of your life come to sensitive expression.

Monday, May 14

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Even trivial matters turn into commotions today. Patience is rewarded, haste penalized. Find the faults, but do nothing drastic.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The week begins with intangible resistance. Retrospect will give you a better view of what you are really meeting.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are apt to find a discrepancy today. It's good for a bizarre joke, but requires serious corrective effort.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Poking through memories of the past turns up items that could be profitable. Allow time for unexpected activities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Trends indicate a difficult workday; nobody is willing to help. You have an opportunity to solve an old problem.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Very little goes as scheduled. Try an easy-going attitude. You benefit by learning the inner workings of minds and machines.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your streak of luck changes. Let well enough alone, including letting others settle their own conflicts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Once you get through the crosscurrents of mixed reckonings, you have a good opportunity at hand. Plan for early action.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Delayed reward for past achievements brightens the day. Be alert for opportunity offered by a friend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Events of the day move quickly. Avoid making any final decisions or establishing specific limitations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Moderation is your best route. Something you thought was finished has to be done over. Change little and future revisions will be easier.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Intuition leads the way. Find a short cut during this day of deliberate restraint, reteing over details helps nothing.

Crowned

EWELL, England (CP) Long hair doesn't appear to be the scourge of every schoolmaster. Reginald Saunders, head of a boys' school in Surrey, long-marched six pupils with shoulder-length hair to barber Ronald Cohen to prove that flowing locks well groomed are acceptable. Cohen, hair-stylist to Prime Minister Edward Heath, trimmed the locks to the satisfaction of all concerned. "My hair feels just as long but much tidier," one pupil said.

To Your Good Health

Gonococcal Form Arthritis Spreads

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was told by a relative that the cause of arthritis has been found, but because it is venereal disease, the information is not being published. Is there any truth to this, or is it just another one of the stories that goes around?—J.P.

There is some truth to it—but W.D. isn't the cause of arthritis. There isn't any single cause.

Your relative undoubtedly referred to some interesting, but also nonetheat frightening, information which emerged from the meeting of the Arthritis Foundation in Pittsburgh not long ago.

There are many forms of arthritis, and one of them is gonococcal arthritis, which is caused by the same germ that causes gonorrhea, the most prevalent of the venereal diseases.

Dr. Frank R. Schmid of Northwestern University warned that this type of arthritis comes on suddenly and can cause extremely rapid destruction of joints if it is not treated as quickly as possible.

The amount of this type of arthritis seems to be increasing rapidly, which sounds reasonable since we already know, beyond any doubt, that venereal disease is spreading out of control.

If the disease is treated soon enough, it stops both the gonorrhea and the arthritis, but the unhappy aspect is that it is much more prevalent in women than in men. This is because, as I've pointed out often in this column, gonorrhea most of the time is promptly obvious in males, but may go undetected in females.

This form of arthritis sometimes is hard to diagnose, Dr. Schmid said, and he added that it often is preceded by an odd type of rash. Once the disease is suspected, it's short work to make a test for the gonococcus germ.

Not everyone who gets gonorrhea also gets this dangerous type of arthritis, giving rise to the suspicion that there is more than one form of germ, or ailment, involved. Be that as it may, your relative got part of the story right and it needs to be publicized.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Recently I was told I needed an operation to remove cataracts from my eyes. I'm 68.

A health book I was reading mentioned exercises and referred to a certain school. I sent for the literature and was told I could purchase the kit for $60 (or visit the school) and do eye exercises that would remove the cataracts non-surgically.

I would appreciate any information on this.—Mrs. R.C.

There are no exercises that will remove cataracts, and more than there are any exercises that will remove freckles or wrinkles or tumors. Or scars.

Since you can see well enough to read this health book, you can see well enough so this school probably can kid you along for a few months, but in time they'll have your $60.

Better save your money for the operation when you realize that cataracts don't go away by exercises. Or anything else, except, at the appropriate time, surgery.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What makes lips peel and burn almost to a split? It seems to get worse in winter. I was wondering if it was a vitamin deficiency.—Mrs. R.R.R.

It could be and you might try a mixed vitamin B preparation. There are lip balms which are colorless and afford some protection from the cold. Be sure, too, that you aren't licking your lips, which can keep the trouble going instead of easing it.

Bid to Prevent Sales Tax Being Retroactive Defeated

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Progressive Conservative government wielded its majority Friday to squelch a Liberal motion that would have destroyed the retroactive aspects of the new provincial sales tax.

Provincial Treasurer John White proposed in his budget last month that the sales tax be raised to seven per cent from five, effective May 1, but the legislation to put the increase into effect still is bogged down in committee.

Members of the Liberal and New Democratic opposition parties have charged that collection of tax at the seven-per-cent rate by merchants is illegal since formal approval has not been given by the legislature, although the extra tax has been collected since May 1.

Under a Liberal proposal put forward in committee Friday, the government would refund the extra tax collected before final approval of the legislation to people with sales slips to prove their purchases.

In committee, the Progressive Conservative government rejected the Liberal proposal 53 to 19.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon shouted: "You are using your juggernaut to push it through."

Gordon Walker (PC—London North), helping shepherd the legislation through committee as parliamentary assistant to the revenue minister, added fuel to the opposition claims of illegality.

Mr. Walker provoked a heated exchange when he said if the matter were leaded "it may well be" that the court would find the retroactive collection illegal.

NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said:

"Do you realiser what you are admitting ?It is incredible. . . . You are admitting that you are so poorly organized that if challenged in the courts it could well be seen to be inoperative."

The government bungling was without precedent.

Donald MacDonald (NDP—York-South) said the government was operating on a might-makes-right principle.

Mr. Lewis demanded that the government's legal advice be read to the legislature.

Taxless Sale Refused So Editor Files Suit

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's controversial increase in sales tax to seven per cent from five has resulted in a legal action started Friday by a Globe and Mail employee.

Cameron M. Smith, assistant to the newspaper's editor, issued a writ against the T. Eaton Co. Ltd. after one of the firm's Toronto stores refused to complete a sale at the five-per-cent tax rate.

The increase, under debate in the legislature, was put into general effect May 1. It has not been passed yet.

Mr. Smith, who said he initiated the court action on his own behalf, was attempting to buy four pairs of tennis socks valued at $5.

"I object to paying the extra two per cent (sales tax) because it's not yet law," he said. "There's 10 cents involved, but a great deal of principle."

Eaton's has 10 days to file notice of dispute of the claim.

Harry Kimber, Mr. Smith's lawyer, said he isn't sure how the action would affect passage of legislation enacting the tax increase.

A clerk of the legislative assembly said the house traditionally does not debate matters which are before the courts, but added that this would not prevent debate of proposed revisions to statutes.

Mr. Smith said that letters were sent to Allan Reuter, speaker of the legislature, and leaders of the three political parties notifying them of the action and suggesting that debate on the tax bill be shut down while it is before the courts.

New Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis said public action demonstrates "the folly of the government in persisting in the application of this tax retroactively."

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said he couldn't see any point in standing the bill down.

"Discussions on the statute should not influence the principal of the case," he said.

Premier William Davis referred his letter to Treasurer John White.

Trudeau Says Benson Had No Interest in Firm

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau confirmed Friday that Edgar Benson once gave his former accounting firm a contract to audit Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., but he held that no conflict of interest was involved.

Mr. Trudeau told the Commons the contract granted while Mr. Benson was minister responsible for housing in 1968—was given to members of the firm from which Mr. Benson had broken all associations many years before he entered politics.

Lalonde Has Little Success Selling His Health Scheme

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde tried Friday in the Commons to convince his critics that they misunderstand his new ideas for financing health care.

He had little success. The opposition parties stood shoulder-to-shoulder and heaped scorn on the proposals, which received a chilly reception at a federal-provincial conference earlier in the week.

The most common opposition criticism was that the minority government is trying to wash its hands of its responsibilities in the health care field.

But Mr. Lalonde, speaking on a New Democratic Party motion condemning his proposals, said this isn't true.

"The federal government is not proposing or considering abandoning the two great health-insurance programs or in any way watering down their standards, which mean so much to Canadians."

Mr. Lalonde's plan is to give the provinces a larger share of income taxes and all federal excise taxes on alcohol and tobacco. They would use this money to help them take over complete financing of health care programs.

The provinces and Ottawa now share hospital and medical care costs on a 50-50 basis.

To help the provinces assume these costs gradually, there would be a transitional period when federal financial contributions to health care would be on a per-capita basis.

National standards for medical care and hospital insurance will not be affected by the new formulas, he said.

T. C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) said the formula will lower national standards and allow the government to abandon its health-care commitments.

"The result is going to be a mishmash of health services across the country."

His remarks were supported by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, while Heath MacquarrieP(Hillsborough), the Conservative health critic, said it was "a bum deal and the provinces very smartly rejected it."

The NDP motion did not come to a vote, and was designed merely to allow the opposition time to lambaste the government. It also urged the government to finance all health services on a 50-50 basis.

Monday the Commons resumes debate on the government proposal to extend the moratorium on capital punishment.

Parks Head

TORONTO (CP) — John Sloan of Cornwall, a career civil servant, has been named general manager of the St. Lawrence Parks Commission, succeeding D. M. Peacock.

Mr. Peacock earlier had been appointed executive-director of a provincial parks and recreation study.

Fees Cut

TORONTO (CP) — Organized youth groups will only have to pay half price for camping fees in Algonquin and Quetico provincial parks under a policy announced Friday in the legislature by Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier.

The exemption won't apply during July and August when the parks are operating at peak vacation capacity.

OHIP Limit $1,620 A Week

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario family doctors have been told that the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) will not pay them more than $1,620 a week, or $6,480 a month, for patients treated after May 1.

The medical review committee of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons told the doctors in a statement dated May 1 that they cannot maintain high-quality care if they see too many patients.

Almost immediately the plan drew criticism.

Dr. Louis R. Harnick, president of the Ontario Medical Association (OMA), said Sunday night that although the college's intent apparently is to promote standards and not necessarily to restrict money, many OMA members do not believe that.

Dr. Harnick said the OMA warned the college that its solution will not be accepted "gracefully or quietly," by many doctors. He said college representatives will explain the situation today at the annual meeting of the OMA council.

Meanwhile, published reports here Saturday that the province's 14,000 doctors will approve a request by the OMA to accept a two - year fee freeze have been denied.

"There is really little basis for drawing that sort of conclusion," said Dr. Carl Moore, president of the Hamilton Academy of Medicine.

Ontario doctors have not had an across-the-board fee increase since 1969, when the OMA schedule for medical services was raised by 4.5 per cent.

The review committee's statement outlines a formula for payment to family doctors based on a 35 office visit, as one unit of service. A doctor can see 200 patients a week for an office visit or first fewer patients requiring more extensive and time-consuming procedures provided his claims meet the same maximum—$1,800 a week, less 10 per cent.

OHIP pays doctors 90 per cent of the OMA 1971 fee schedule.

About one-half of the OMA's approximately 13,000 members are family doctors.

Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto High Park, said the college's move will serve to clog hospital emergency departments because doctors will cut back on the number of patients they see.

"I sympathize with what they are trying to do, but they have come up with the wrong solution," he said. "This won't solve the problem; it will just produce new problems.

Shells Hit Truce Team Compound

SAIGON (CP) — A team site of the international peace supervisory force, about 25 miles north of Saigon, was hit by artillery fire Sunday night, sources said today.

They said that nobody was injured although the compound was damaged when it received a direct hit. Personnel with the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) were not in the compound during the day but spend the night some distance away at permanent living quarters.

ICCS sources said at least three rounds were fired into the compound but there was no indication where the fire originated.

The four countries of the ICCS, Canada, Hungary, Indonesia and Poland, have personnel serving at the Ben Cat team site but names were not available.

Meanwhile, the ICCS unanimously agreed today to investigate charges from the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) that United States bombers have recently struck targets in South Vietnam near the Cambodian border in violation of the Paris peace agreement.

The attacks allegedly took place in April and earlier this month.

Countdown Is on Schedule

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The countdown advanced on schedule today for the launching of Skylab, the first United States space station, which is to serve as a giant "cabin in the sky" for nine astronauts in the next eight months.

More than 700,000 gallons of liquid oxygen and liquid hydrogen fuel were pumped into the Saturn booster as the count entered the final hours for the planned 1:30 p.m. EDT liftoff.

Skies were cloudy and there was a possibility of rain during the day, the weatherman reported.

If the laboratory orbits successfully, the three-man Skylab 1 crew will rocket into space Tuesday and link up with the station for a record 28-day mission.

The astronauts—Charles Conrad, Dr. Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz—were to watch the Saturn liftoff from a viewing area three miles from the launch pad. The 33-story-tall rocket is to drift the station into a 270-mile-high orbit.

Then the spacemen will make preparations for their own launch aboard a smaller 22-storey Saturn 1-B rocket at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Costs Above Expectations

Self-care Unit Is Floundering

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — Ontario's health minister, Dr. Richard Potter, Saturday night conceded his ministry's pet experiment, the Queen's Self-Care Unit for pre or post-operative hospital patients, is floundering.

He said the former motel in Belleville has been operating since 1971 with the co-operation of many but not all of the city's doctors.

"Costs are running higher than anticipated," the Quinte MPP said.

"Unless we find alternative uses for the other beds, we won't be able to continue operating this facility," he declared.

The health minister, speaking at the annual meeting of the Prince Edward - Hastings Progressive Conservative Association, said only 58 percent of the former motel's beds are being used whereas, to be economically sound, 90 per cent use should be maintained.

Now, only with 3,432 admissions during 1972, a percentage occupancy of 53.49 and a total bill of $435,582, the project seems to have proved too expensive.

Dr. Potter would not put a deadline on the self-care experiment. But, when questioned after the meeting, he hinted that a decision on its future would be arrived at "within the next few months."

The health minister said that, so far no doctors from outside Belleville have referred patients to the experimental unit. He added that, because of the minimal use being made of the 80-bed facility, he would welcome their participation.

Patients are transported the few blocks from Belleville General Hospital in a bus donated by a local food retailer organization. Dr. Potter said other hospitals in Trenton, Picton, Napanee and Campbellford could make use of the facilities, but distances for transporting patients would range from 12 to 30 miles.

Dr. Potter offered several alternative uses for the self-care centre to justify rent and salary expenses. "We can't just leave it like it is."

If the Queen's Self-Care Unit is closed down, it will not mean failure of the experiment, he said.

"Far from it. We're going to open more centres like this in Ontario," he said. "The idea has met with praise from both patients and the medical profession."

As an experiment, he explained, the actual buildings may have been too large for the city's needs. Smaller, more compact units will be selected in the future, in order to hold back on operating costs.

Besides about the project were voiced three weeks ago by Dr. K. M. Dunphy, 1972, president of the Belleville General Hospital medical staff, in his annual report.

Dr. Douglas' report said the project "has been an interesting idea with some merit — but has also raised considerable controversy as to its use and future role in the health care system."

The pilot project was launched in an attempt to cut back on costlier general hospital bed-care services.

It was felt that at least 10 per cent of patients in hospitals did not require the intense care of full hospital services, and the self-care unit project seemed the answer.

Burundi Villages Attacked

DAR ES SALAAM (Tanzania (AP) — More than 50 persons have been killed and scores injured in fighting in Burundi, reports reaching here said Sunday.

Tanzanian government officials said anti-government rebels in Burundi, armed with spears and arrows, launched dawn attacks Thursday on villages six miles from the Burundi-Tanzania border. Later more than 100 refugees fled to Tanzania seeking sanctuary, they added.

About 80 persons were killed in March when Burundi troops chasing rebels crossed the border and attacked five Tanzanian villages.

Five Escape Laval Prison

MONTREAL (CP) — Police continued their search early today for five prisoners who escaped Sunday from the maximum-security, special correctional unit of St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary in nearby Laval.

A Quebec Provincial Police spokesman said 100 OPP officers, together with prison guards and Laval policemen, were searching several square miles of woods, fields and homes around the penitentiary. Tracking dogs and a helicopter were being used, he said.

Sought in the manhunt are: Jean-Paul Mercier, 28; Andre Ouellette, 33; Robert Imbeault, 24; Gilles Gingras, 26; and Michel Lafleur, 23. All were described as dangerous but unarmed.

Police said the men previously had broken out of penitentiary or jails. Mercier was serving two concurrent life sentences for non-capital murder. The other men had been sentenced for armed robbery.

The spokesman said police manned several bridges north and south of Ile Jesus where Laval is situated 8m-the roadblocks were lifted later in the evening because of a heavy volume of Sunday night traffic.

Penitentiary director Pierre Goulem said an investigation has been launched to establish the circumstances of the escape.

He said preliminary reports indicate the men escaped during a lunch period by sawing through a bar and fleeing the building.

"They squeezed through a cell window, went down a ramp, slid through an asbestos siding wall and got to the greenhouse," he said.

They carried a knife out of the greenhouse and put it against the prison wall and put a bench vertically on top of it.

"They climbed up that and I guess they put down a rope made of bedding and got down the outside."

Mr. Goulem said the guard normally stationed in a nearby tower was on duty inside the penitentiary at the time.

The Skylab, which will be blasted aloft unmanned today, stands at right, atop a Saturn V rocket. The rocket which will carry Astronauts Charles Conrad, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul Weitz, is at left. It is a Saturn 1-B. The three astronauts will rendezvous with the Skylab and live in the lab for 28 days.

Protection Sought Against Layoffs

Organized labor is seeking legislated protection for workers in Ontario's small, non-unionized plants against mass layoff without notice.

Focus of attention is the provincial Employment Standards Act, a seminar sponsored by the Quinte Area Labor - Management Institute at Loyalist College was told Saturday.

The Act now defines mass layoff as temporary termination of 50 workers.

But, said John W. Eteen, Ontario Federation of Labor research director, organized labor now wants the total reduced to 15 to remedy what is described as "a defect in legislation."

This would make notice of mass layoff or closure mandatory in myriad, unorganized smaller plants, which now employ about two-thirds of Ontario's workforce, Mr. Eteen estimated.

It should also be mandatory for government to meet and cooperate with management and union representatives where mass layoffs or plant shutdowns threaten, the seminar learned.

Also being sought is redefinition of the 'work week from 48 hours to 40 hours.

The 48-hour work week as defined in the Act is "an anachronism" when unions now usually negotiate on the basis of 40 hours, said Mr. Eteen.

Legislation should also provide for severance pay in the event of layoff. The problem is all the more acute for those earning only the minimum wage — $1.80 an hour — which doesn't permit a worker to build up a financial cushion.

Equal pay for equal work whether by men or women is also needed, he charged of officials enforcing the act, said M. E. Howard, the provincial government's Equal Pay Standards Branch director.

There is a serious problem in determining if men and women are doing the same kind of work.

But "we are going to put more effort" into enforcing the terms of the Act, he said.

Women traditionally have been clustered for lower-paying jobs — even though they may involve the same amount of work as a man's job.

Also, employers may not realize that the equal pay rule is mandatory under the Act.

Motorcyclists Injured

Two motorcycle riders were taken to Belleville General Hospital Saturday night after colliding with a car at the corner of Station Street and Bleecker Ave.

Thomas Matthews, 19, of Waterloo, and Kathleen Gierasch, 17, of 18 Woodland cres, Belleville, were treated and released. Both had cuts and bruises.

Mr. Matthews told city police he pulled to the left to pass a car driven by Robert McCulloch of RR7, Belleville, as he was about to turn. However, the car turned in the opposite direction, causing the collision.

Preparation for Leisure Overlooked by Society

By lamenting high unemployment, society may be cruicifying accomplishment of a leading authority on leisure.

It's one mark of a work-oriented society unable to accept the challenge of free time it has created, laureles Prof. John Farina of University of Toronto's faculty of social work.

One of the "great failures" of modern times has been lack of education for self-fulfilment through leisure. Such education is crucial as work demands a diminishing amount of the individual's time Prof. Farina told United Community Services seminar on leisure at Lakefield College Saturday.

The seminar was the latest of the UCS-sponsored Quinte 1984 discussion series aimed at increasing awareness and insight into possible future social patterns.

Changes in work and free time patterns have created a conflict of social values, Prof. Farina said in an interview.

Society thus finds it difficult to respond" in a rational way" to the increase in leisure time.

Machines were invented to free men from work. But inbrained tradition still measures individual worth in terms of work.

"So having freed men from work we're now in despair.

"We now have six per cent unemployed. But, if we take the simple, naive notion that we invented machines because we intended to free men from work . . . we should be triumphant. This is an achievement.

"Instead we're trying to get those six per cent trained red back to work — despite the fact that the jobs they're being retrained for will disappear and they might have to be retrained again and again."

Bramalea Shut Down

The walkout of about 2,000 Canadian Union of Electrical Workers members at Northern Electric Co. Ltd.'s Bramalea plant has forced a complete shutdown there.

Monday last week about 600 clerical and engineering workers at the Bramalea plant joined other United Auto Workers members in strike action at Belleville, London and Kingston.

Work continued at Bramalea after the walkout by members of the CUEW workers. Only 400 of the plant's 3,000 workers are now not on strike, but they are out of work. A second plant at Bramalea has been shut down since Monday last week.

While Northern Electric Co. Ltd. chief negotiator Alex Creegan insists he's talking to a local level, Robert Nickerson, UAW chief negotiator, has said the only place the strike can be settled is at the master bargaining table at Toronto. Wages and fringe benefits are main issues at stake in negotiations that began in February.

Tax Must Be Paid On Unsold Liquor

Here's a sobering discovery for organizers of special events where drinks are sold: Unless consumption is carefully calculated in advance, money may be lost on sales tax. The tax now has to be paid — even on liquor that isn't sold.

It all has to do with new provisions in the Ontario budget announced last month for a special occasion licence, popularly known as the banquet permit. The new regulations have been in effect since May 1.

Organizers of receptions, parties and other special events where liquor is sold previously obtained a permit from the province's liquor licencing board. Sales tax was charged on drinks sold. Organizers returned unconsumed liquor, then held several days in which to file sales tax returns

Many licence holders apparently failed to comply with these regulations over the years, one Belleville liquor company salesman says. This may be a reason for the new rule.

The new rules exact the sales tax at source — when supplies are purchased at provincial liquor stores. But, should unconsumed liquor be returned, the sales tax is not refundable.

The tax is $1.50 on 40-ounce bottles, $1 on smaller bottles; 25 cents on a 12-pack of beer; $1 on a case of 24; 50 cents on wine.

The salesman commented that the new regulation seemed "rather strange."

"When you return shoes or any other item to a store the sales tax is included in your refund," he said.

For organizers of special events it means "sharpening their pencils" in estimate that "what they purchase is going to be consumed."

What happens to events drawing a big attendance, impossible to calculate in advance, was not emerged as a problem at Woodstock, Ont.

There, organizers of the big, annual Woodstock Festival scheduled May 21 - 27, have voiced complaints.

Bill Thompson, a festival committee chairman, called the new regulation "absolutely ridiculous" "this is a tax on something which isn't sold."

It's impossible "to calculate how many people will be there, because you don't know what the weather is going to be," he said.

Passing Car Causes Crash

TWEED (Special) — A brown car, its driver unidentified, is being sought by police for an accident that caused a total of $2,000 damage Saturday on Highway 7 east of the L a d O'Lakes restaurant.

The unidentified car was the middle one of three proceeding east on Highway 7 at 3 p.m. when the rear car, driven by Bryan Richard Bowen of Cherry, pulled out to pass. The unidentified car then pulled out, forcing the Brooks car to the shoulder of the road. Brooks lost control and struck the first car in the lineup, a station wagon driven by Mary Lee Parkes of Deep River. The station wagon was rolled and the Brooks car skidded into a tree at the side of the road. The Parkes station wagon and the Brooks car each received $1,000 damage. The unidentified car left the scene.

Sailboat Aground

WELLINGTON — The Yeoman, a sailboat from Toronto to Oswego to Toronto ran aground in Wellington Bay about 6:30 p.m. Friday night.

The craft was piloted by a Toronto man, Maxwell Lehmann. There were no passengers.

The vessel first was sighted in trouble by two Ottawa hydrophs, Robert Dale and Iola Crucby as they drove along Highway 33 in the county on Mr. Lehmann waving for help and went out to him in a small fiberglass dory they were carrying on their car. The pilot was given tow by Mr. Hale but ran ashore off Huyck's Point as he attempted to navigate a narrow channel between West Lake and Wellington Bay.

Mr. Hale said he tried to assist the sailboat a second time and later it was the intention to cross the marsh gymnasia as "frills", said Prof. Farina.

But even physical education still has an "optional aura" and is viewed more as a recreational rather than educational function. As a result, physs ed teacher often is "low man on the education totem pole . . .

"I'm not yet convinced that there is really acceptance of physical education as an educational subject," he said.

Moira Possible Olympic Course

Belleville could be a host city for the 1976 Summer Olympics, if enough water can be made to go over the dam.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey met with representatives of the International Canoe Federation Friday to discuss the possibility of using the Moira River for Olympic-canoe competitions. The question comes down to whether the city could guarantee sufficient water could be held behind dams and gradually released for the race.

Before contacting the International Olympic Committee, the mayor has requested the city engineer and the Moira River Conservation Authority to assess what water would be available when two new dams are constructed on the river near College Street.

Mayor Jeffrey said the event is an "interesting idea" and that investigation follows a proposal made by Alderman Stu Meeks in council last Monday.

Helma Poens, an authority on international competition, described the Moira River as it runs through the city as a "natural" for the sport.

If it is determined enough water would be available for the race (to be held in August when the river is at its lowest ebb) local officials will contact Montreal, host city for the '76 summer games.

Martin Lewis, a member of the executive of the Canadian Canoe Federation, said the site should be appealing to Montreal organizers. "There is no river in that area of the country that can offer the same amount as the Moira."

Canoe competitions were first introduced to the Olympics at the last summer games held in Germany. At that time organizers spent more than $3 Million creating an artificial course.

Mr. Lewis said a bulldozer could shake the river bed to create additional turbulence at a fraction of the German cost.

The course would be three quarters of a mile with 25 to 30 gates around which canoers would navigate.

Books for Bursaries

The University Women's Club loaded more than 7,000 books of all description into Nicholson Catholic College Saturday to raise money for scholarships. Each year the club presents scholarships to students falling just short of the 80 per cent requirement for the Governor General's Award. Paperbacks sold for as little as five cents and an entire set of reference books sold for $4, another set for $20.

Hospital Workers Seek Wage Hike

Deadlocked contract negotiations involving more than 200 non-professional staff workers at Belleville General Hospital may go to arbitration, a union spokesman said today.

Conciliation talks so far have failed to resolve a difference centering on wage increases, said Douglas Martin, president of Local 183, Service Employees International Union.

The union is seeking increases starting at eight per cent for a work force that includes BGH housekeeping dietary and maintenance staff, said Mr. Martin.

The Ontario government has stipulated that hospital budgets may not be increased by more than five per cent this year.

Mr. Martin said the hospital has "consistently" refused any wage increase over five per cent since negotiations began on a contract that expired at the end of last year.

It was unfair that the budget was being maintained "at the expense" of Local 183's membership and some non-union supervisory staff have been granted wage increases of more than five per cent, he claimed.

The cost of living index has climbed 5.8 per cent in a year since February 72 and the increase will be even greater this year due to higher food and clothing costs," said Mr. Martin.

"It is inconceivable that any management body would consider a wage increase for its employees that is below the cost-of-living index," he said.

Since unionized hospital workers are not permitted to strike, Mr. Martin claimed there was "no undue pressure on hospital authorities to resolve the deadlock.

Sex Can Be Job Issue

Has an employer the right to medically determine a job applicant's sex?

With modern styles of hair and dress, it's not as frivolous a question as it may sound, a women's group was told a Quinte-area Labor Management Institute seminar at Loyalist College Saturday.

Ms. Adams told of a company where a worker was hired on as a male, even using the men's washroom. The personnel officer was told the worker was actually female.

The employee was asked to submit to a doctor's examination to determine sex.

The request was refused — on ground that it violated the worker's human rights.

The Saxsmith car received $800 damage and the truck $200. The car driver was charged with impaired driving by Madoc detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Barber Decision Appealed

The battle of the Monday hair cut is not over yet.

The city this morning launched an appeal in Hastings County clerk's office against an April 12 decision by Provincial Court Judge J. L. Clendenning in which he acquitted Bill Kokaras, manager of the Quinte Hotel hair-style shop, who was charged with breaking the city's barber closing bylaw by staying open on a Monday.

In making the decision, Judge Clendenning said the bylaw did not contain a definition of the term barber shop, rendering it virtually useless.

But Mayor Robin Jeffrey said today the appeal will be based on an amended bylaw which council directed city solicitor, John Miller to draft after the city lost the last case.

"We felt the city has no alternative," Mr. Jeffrey said. "The bylaw was written on behalf of the Belleville Barbers' Association and we have a concern with their interests."

She said a barber shop definition, written in accordance with the Ontario Labor Code, had been inserted into the old bylaw.

The appeal will be heard in County Court.

Standing Ovation For Yardmen

The house of more than 700 went wild Saturday night and gave a standing ovation to the Yardmen Drum Corps, the opening act for Cavalcade of Corps held in the Belleville arena. Enough local interest was shown in the cavalcade that Yardmen organizers are attempting to set up a top flight competition this summer to be held in conjunction with the Quinte Exhibition. This was the Yardmen's first taste of concert life after forming five months ago.

Band Extravaganza A Success

Cavacade of Corps has come and gone, but not gone forever with many more hours to be taken by the Yardmen Drum Corps.

The Yardmen, deriving their name from their financial backers, the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund, opened cavalcade and brought the house to a standing ovation.

More than 700 attended the hour, the first of its kind to be held in the city, organized by the Yardmen.

The group formed five months ago, and even then with little fanfare. Rehearsing in a public school gymnasium, the band's repertoire grew. Reputation began to grow just more than a month later when the band made a surprise appearance on the Santa Claus Parade circuit in the Quinte area.

In crimson and black uniforms, delivered just prior to the Saturday evening performance, the Yardmen came on like they had been playing for years and the crowd loved it, clapping wildly between numbers.

In five months the corps has come from nothing more than a dream to a very respectable competition band.

The show, scheduled to become an annual affair, drew some of the top bands, including De La Salle from Toronto — Canadian national champions for three years running and the Guachos from New York state.

A splash of color and sound was each band's specialty, each with precision and poise. The music, reverberating through the Belleville arena, ranged from Shark to Walk on the Wild Side to A Place to Stand.

More than 400 musicians took part in the band spectacular and while in town rehearsed at Belleville Collegiate Institute. Before leaving the school, bandsmen swept the floors to leave it as they found it.

Jubilant over the success of the evening, yardmen executives are investigating holding a top-level competition in the city during the Quinte Exhibition. Was the bands who performance said they would return for the competition.

Organizers broke even financially after receipts were counted but said this was expected.

"We weren't out to make money but to promote the activity," said Keith Pearce, playing member and co-founder of the group.

Those bands in the show were the Kinsmen Krescendos from Peterborough, and Kingston Grenadiers and the Commanders from Burlington.

Restaurant Rebuilding

TWEED (Special) — The rebuilding of Mother's German Restaurant on the Black River Road southwest of Tweed is progressing at a rapid pace.

The restaurant, owned and operated by Fred Kuch, was destroyed by fire last winter. Ken Gordon and Joseph Ash are constructing the new building, a chalet design, in keeping with other buildings on the property.

Mayor, Russell Appeal to Ottawa For East Zwick's

Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey and Alderman Paul Russell, chairman of the parks board of management, are in Ottawa today on a mission which hopefully will see the city obtain ownership of the bay front property known as East Zwick's Island.

Until the Sidney township garbage disposal area was opened, the city used the East Zwick's area as a sanitary landfill site with the view of turning the 35 acres of useless marsh land into a park.

Since 1965 the city has spent approximately $153,000 for fill ing, haulage and hiring of earth moving equipment at the site with future costs for park development, estimated at about $665,000.

But the corporation holds the property only by way of a renewable five - year lease and the city's culmination is that it cannot expend upwards of $¼-million on land it does not own.

That Tax

We don't know if the womenfolk have more spunk in such matters or not, but here was a young woman in the supermarket and she was refusing to pay the new 7 per cent tax. What transpired escaped us, but it is known that in other stores the ruling seems to be, either you pay or else you give your name and address — the idea being that when the tax finally does become law then look out, for the Government people will be after you.

The tax of course, as it is now being collected, is an unconscionable edict because it has not yet received final approval in the legislature. Moreover, the fact that this is seen as a matter of course is beside the point.

It is the kind of thing that does the image of the Government no good and is scarcely guaranteed to give the public a more agreeable impression when overall the Davis administration is in no grand favor. Recent by-elections that returned Liberal candidates were an indication of what we mean. Meanwhile the word is that Premier Davis believes the time may be opportune to bring in legislation to give government the right to collect taxes while legislative authority is sought — in other words, to fill this very loophole we have been discussing.

At least, if such legislation were on the books the Government would be coming by its money more honestly than is now the case. But meantime, as we pointed out recently, it is trying to have its cake and eat it.

A Rocky Road

The road to rapprochement — as the French view restoration of friendly relations — understanding and, ultimately, peace, is invariably a torturous one. Wasn't it Lord Palmerston who was among the great pragmatists of his day, as Churchill was in more recent times and, also in Britain, Labor foreign secretary Ernest Bevin who said, in part, "We must agree with whom we can agree."

So it is that the Western world has moved to a position of much closer ties with the Communist world — with Russia, Soviet Union and China —while relations with Germany and Japan, once arch enemies, could scarcely be more cordial. Not that east and west will ever see eye to eye in any complete sense — our political and sociological systems are too at odds for that and understanding that the friendliness of the moment is maintained in large part by the so-called "balance of terror" (each side could destroy the other); but the fact is, things are much better than we might have dared hope not many years ago.

What can be said, then, let alone people, not be like this all the time? Why must misunderstandings and wars be a matter of course in human and national relationships? Because it is the nature of the individual and political beast to be such. Even such concord as is enjoyed is invariably the result of much negotiating, wrangling — and often bloodshed.

Here is an example of how things can turn out for the best in international relations, even in just a small way. Remember the time when the Red Guards in China, the organization of young people who during the cultural revolution of a few years ago roughed up British and Soviet diplomatic personnel and generally acted as if all foreigners were not to be let loosed out of the country. One of their numbers, a young woman by the name of Tu-Wei-chong, has come to Canada with eight other Chinese students to study at Carleton University. She was once a Red Guard vigilante.

Canada has done much to pave the way for generally better relations with the Communist citizenry, and the student presence here is symbolic of this. It is one of the ways in which peace may be preserved in the world of tomorrow.

The First 75 Days

Government 'Progress' Booklet Does Some Back-Slapping

By HENRY HEALD

OTTAWA — Both the Liberals and the New Democrats are sensitive about what Parliament has been able to accomplish since the general election last October.

NDP Whip Stanley Knowles, in a television interview, argued that the record of achievements of the 29th Parliament in its first 75 days compared favorably to the first 75 days of any previous Parliament.

Justification for their continued support for the Liberals depends in preserving the idea that minority government is good government. But even the NDP would never range so far afield to claim credit for achievements as did the Liberals with their publication — Progress, The Liberal Record, January to April 1973.

The sheet, listing more than 100 items, was sent home with the Liberal MPs when they departed for the Easter Vacation. It was to help them persuade their constituents that all was going swimmingly on Parliament Hill.

Some of them, like most of the cabinet, decided not to meet their constituents but to holiday instead in the sunny climes or the cultural centres of Europe and Asia.

The list is remarkable both for what it takes credit for and for the obvious gaps — the things it omits.

Although the title specifically states January to April 1973, the list includes the increases in the gross national product and expected for 1973 over 1971; it claims $1.2 million in multicultural grants dating back to Oct. 8, 1971 and it lists a series of "significant events" none of which have yet taken place. It even takes credit for the Ontario Liberal leadership convention scheduled for Toronto in late October.

It also claims DREE grants of $124.7 million awarded in 1972. Apart from being outside the stated time frame, the figure is false and it does not explain the grants, but the latest report of the Regional Development Incentives Act shows something less than $50 million in hard cash paid out under the program began three years ago.

There are a number of items, such as amendments to the National Housing Act, that should be set aside carefully in a "don't - count - your - chickens - before - they're - hatched" department.

The Housing Act amendments are in committee, and given the delicate nature of minority governments, there is no hard and fast guarantee that they will ever get out.

The same can be said for the Foreign Investment Review legislation and the Criminal Code amendments banning wiretapping — both of which appear on the list.

Also on the list are such things as wheat sales to Brazil, India and Russia, announcement of the dairy policy and various federal - provincial agreements that have been under negotiation for some time. Presumably the Canadian Wheat Board will go on selling grain regardless of who is in the prime minister's office and the dairy policy has to be announced before the end of March by whoever is agriculture minister, or the system will break down. If he had announced a five - year dairy policy, as the dairy farmers have been urging, it would be something to crow about.

For some strange reason the list ignores some of the actual legislation that was passed by Parliament and given Royal Assent. And while it claims that the Liberal - led government has announced it will do but has not yet enshrined in legislation, such as the basic principles for implementation of bilingualism in the public service — it carefully avoids any reference to the tax cuts for manufacturers and processors or the accelerated depreciation allowances for corporations.

Does that mean that Finance Minister John Turner does not plan to proceed with them? Does he just plan to wait until after the National Liberal Party convention in Ottawa in September?

The Conservatives take a somewhat different view of the productivity of the 29th Parliament. Tory House Leader Gerald Baldwin, while agreeing that Parliament is working more quickly than the previous minority Liberal government, has announced it will do but has not yet enshrined in legislation, such as the basic principles for implementation of bilingualism in the public service — it carefully avoids any reference to the tax cuts for manufacturers and processors or the accelerated depreciation allowances for corporations.

Does that mean that Finance Minister John Turner does not plan to proceed with them? Does he just plan to wait until after the National Liberal Party convention in Ottawa in September?

The Conservatives take a somewhat different view of the productivity of the 29th Parliament. Tory House Leader Gerald Baldwin, while agreeing that Parliament is working more quickly than the previous minority Liberal government, has announced it will do but has not yet enshrined in legislation, such as the Throne Speech. And most of the matters covered in the three budget bills actually stemmed from the 1972 budget.

A true measure of the coalition's inability to present meaningful legislation is the fact that the Liberal House Leader cannot yet even tell when the next one of a budget bills, including the corporate tax cuts, will be introduced," Mr. Baldwin said.

Actress on Male Chauvinism 'Down Under'

By Joshua Cohen
In The Globe and Mail

Someone once called Judith Anlay an iron fist in a velvet glove and the Australian-born actress currently playing the title role in The Secretary Bird at the Royal Alexandra Theatre is inclined to agree.

Battling the odds to make a name in the theatre is part of the explanation, but growing up in Australia probably had a lot to do with it as well. A lithe intense woman who is forgive about her age ("If I told you I was 26, would you believe me?") and speaks in bursts of words that frequently leave sentence ends dangling helplessly, Miss Anlay recalls growing up down under with hints of bitterness.

As a child in Brisbane, for example, there was constant competition with the boys for top grades or debating contest points. "I was hated in those school debates—I did well," she recalls.

But Miss Arlay insists she's no Women's Libber.

"I don't look at life as a battle of the sexes," she insists. "It's simply that growing up in Australia you're always made aware that a woman is not supposed to go on to bigger things, like a better education, because she's going to get married. I had to study at night to complete my matriculation."

Those night studies were part of what Miss Arlay calls her practical side. Acting is what she really wanted to do from the time she played in an amateur production of The Diary of Anne Frank at 16, but she stuck with her teacher training "because in Brisbane I couldn't see how I could turn professional. My family had no money so I had to be self-reliant."

Her teaching career died before it got started, however, when she got an opportunity to appear in a play in Melbourne. "The play was called One Day of the Year, the part of the girl was dreadfully written and I wondered if I would ever work again. Then I appeared in The Fantastics and it was a hit. That did it for me—television, stage, a film. It was a comedy, a delicious film in Australia, but the slang makes it difficult for anyone else to understand."

The roles generated a lot of publicity and got her picture on the covers of magazines, but didn't do her a whit of good when she set off for England.

Arriving in London she quickly discovered "there are 8,000 other actresses on Equity's books and no one gives a damn what you've done in Australia because they haven't seen it. They think Australia is some remote convict settlement."

Within a month, however, David Green, later the director of the film version of Godspell, had "taken a chance on me" and cast her in the movie. The Shuttered Room, with Carol Lynley, Gig Young and Oliver Reed.

"I want to be acting when I'm 90 and with the help of yoga I think I will. I believe in yoga and I practice it. I believe it's the only thing that's going to save me. From what? Well, I'm not interested in running up and down tennis courts and screaming in the surf. I'm not that kind of an Australian."

Hydro Head Office Inquiry

By DON O'BEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Bureau Queen's Park

TORONTO — The annual hunting expedition is on.

It seemed this year we might get away without a "scandal" committee.

But no it wasn't to be.

And now we have a select committee appointed to inquire into Ontario Hydro's purchase of its new $45 million head office building. Political Implications?

There are a few points to note about this affair.

One of them is that Opposition Leader Robert Nixon wanted a royal commission appointed rather than a select committee.

Mr. Nixon contended that as there was the possibility of political implications that it would be preferable to have a completely independent inquiry rather than one conducted by a committee on which the government had the majority of members.

The opposition leader would appear to have a good point.

Government supporters are hardly to be expected to be assiduously into matter that might hurt their party politically.

In rebuttal, of course, it is argued that last year's select committee on the Workmen's Compensation Board didn't hesitate to inquire into political matters.

This is true. (Although that committee could have gone further) and it also is true that legislative committees today tend to be more independent than they used to.

But realistically an independent inquiry still would seem to be better.

Then there is the fact that this inquiry could be healthy beyond its immediate scope.

Over the years Ontario Hydro has tended to be a closed corporation.

The government has known what has been going on as it should, and a representative on the Commission.

But the petulature has never really been able to get into its day to day operations.

Although from time to time there have been demands that it should be open to closer scrutiny, and even on occasion the hint of scandal, its books have not been available and there has been no close examination of its affairs.

This committee should be diligent deeply at least into the matter of the building purchase.

And as a fringe benefit the result might be the result of a closer examination of Hydro itself.—

Patients Support Self-care

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

With regard to the item recently published in The Intelligencer, on April 28, concerning the Queen's Self Care Unit and its controversial future role, I would like to express the viewpoint of a group of patients who have very much enjoyed their stay at the Unit.

It is our feeling that should the Queen's Self Care Unit be forced to close, not only would the public suffer but the hospital would feel the pinch as well. As we have all read, it is well worth relicensing again. The patients of the Self Care Unit was to take the load off the hospital by freeing some of treatment beds and this, I feel, it has done. If patients, not well enough to go home and yet not sick enough to stay in hospital, did not have the privilege of going to the Queen's Self. Care Unit not only would they be deprived of a great experience, but, they would be depriving other patients from themselves of an active treatment bed; and at the same time, costing the Government considerable amounts of money.

The Self Care Unit, as the name it says — you learn to take care of yourself. Patients are given the opportunity to live a normal day. The office and dining room staff at the Unit are always available and cheerfully obliging in assisting the patients.

I would like to take this opportunity to clear up a few doubts that I have heard expressed by former patients. It is not true that the patients in the unit are expected to make their beds, clean their rooms or stand in a cafeteria-type line for meals. The housekeeping staff, a happy, cheerful group of girls, daily clean and vacuum the patients' rooms; the attractively decorated dining room waitresses serve the patients themself and guests in a country-club atmosphere, and have their meals served by waitresses.

Then, to all, it's a marvellous place, which this growing community could ill afford to be without. And for the life of me, I cannot understand why Dr. Douglas feels that the Unit is not needed and is too costly.

A semi-private hospital bed costs approximately $23 per day compared with $28 at the Queen's. It should be understood that 1972 was the first official year of the unit's operation, and included in the mentioned operational costs were the funds required to equip it — funds covering the cost of such necessities as bed fittings, medical equipment — supplies; and I am sure that these costs will not have to be duplicated in future, it is our impression that if the Queen's Self Care Unit was given half a chance to prove itself, and was not met with so much indifference and opposition it would accomplish the purpose for which it was intended.

Sailmaking Hobby Became Charles Keeble's Full-time Business

By MIKE PATERSON
Staff Reporter

This is the busiest time of the year for one man who happens to be on leave of absence from Stewart Warner Corporation of Canada Ltd.

In fact Charles Keeble has been on leave of absence since 1957 when a spare-time activity became a full-time occupation.

This year Mr. Keeble will manufacture close to 500 sails for yachts that range in size from the humble car - topper to 70-foot cruise yachts.

Learning his trade as an apprentice, Mr. Keeble first made sails when he was 15. He had joined Tom Taylor Co. in Toronto and spent 6½ years there before joining the air force in August, 1939.

Out of the service, Mr. Keeble married a Belleville girl and settled down to work for Stewart Warner Corporation. "I had bought a 30-foot hull that needed rigging so I did it myself," he said. "Then friends started asking me to do their sails."

"I did it in my spare time until 1957 when I took a leave of absence to clear some of the sail-making work that had accumulated," said Mr. Keeble. "I'm still on leave of absence.

"I kept getting more and more orders from around the lake and had to move from the upstairs of the house," he said. Mr. Keeble is now president and owner of Keeble C. For Sails at 11 Water St., largest boat chandler between Toronto and the east coast.

Most of his business is done between March and August with the rush peak right around now. "From September to December we run a special discount period to encourage people to get their sails made when we're not so busy," he said. "We also fill out the year with work for industry, making tent and trailer awnings, truck tarpaulins and so on.

"It's only over the past 15 years that sail has really started to come back," said Mr. Keeble. "There's not nearly the amount of handwork done as there used to be — none of those fellows are living now."

Nevertheless individual work and skills go into each sail. "We don't have any stock lines — as a rule we custom-make sails to an individual's order," said Mr. Keeble. The orders come from across Canada and the United States.

Several sets or "suits" of Keeble sails have been around the world.

"Our work is very different from most of the sewing trades," he said. "Our machinist - operator has to be quite an expert — the materials are polished, shiny and very slippery; it takes a lot of experience to get a proper seam in a sail and it can be a poor working sail if it's not done right.

"We train our own people," said Mr. Keeble, "and if they like it they'll stick with it." His present staff has been with the company between three and 10 years. "They have to be more conscious of quality than speed."

Dacron, rip-stop nylon, dynalite and sail nylon fabrics coming in six or seven different soft to hard-tempered finishes and a range of thicknesses give the cruising and racing yachtsmen quite a choice of sail materials. Widths of the particular material will be sewn together as 18- or 36-inch panels to form the sail.

"The designer supplies the sail plan and specifications," said Mr. Keeble, "but each sailmaker has his own gimmicks that he involves into his own type of cut for a sail." Layout and cut, he said, were the most important aspects of sailmaking.

After the seams are machine - sewn and the corners are reinforced, the traditional hand-sewing begins. Rings, wires, and ropes, used to brace and attach the fixed sail are all hand-stitched in place. Rows of reef-points, used to secure the sail at less than full-mast in a heavy wind, are hand-sewn.

The skilled, precision work is only realized when a new set of sails flutter and snap to life before a stiff summer breeze. And we may have to wait a little while for that, according to Mr. Keeble.

Until the lake level drops, many boatowners can not put their boats in water. Water covers their docks and their yachts would only be damaged against the sunken piles.

Old Craft Hangs On

Lorrie Fraser, sailmaker's technician for Charles Keeble ,hand-stitches a ring and liner in place. Hand-stitching is a greatly reduced part of the sailmaking business, but essential for some jobs.

All Their 'Achievements' at Quinte Secondary

Girls' 4 - H Homemaking Clubs in West Hastings Area had an eventful day Saturday at Quinte Secondary School.

Their past year's achievements including record books representing nine clubs, homemade garments for leisure wear and club demonstrations and skits were judged by home economists.

Areas attending were Sidney South II, Wellbridge II, River Valley, Bay of Quinte, Mount Pleasant, Sidney South I, Harold and Uxbridale.

Welcoming the clubs, Kate Ann Wahl, home economist, introduced home economists Mrs. Doreen Armstrong of Trenton and Christine Hoffman, from Lindsay. Each aided Miss Wahl assessing garments and discussing projects with the more than 70 girls present.

The four suggestions for next year's projects were block printing, dairy fare, the third meal and "taking a look at yourself".

Projects exhibited for leisure wear included gowns, pyjamas, housecoats with trimmings and dresses.

During the afternoon, 4-H Club members had an opportunity to appear on stage (a first for some). Each club displayed their theme for the project on leisure wear.

Advanced, Provincial and County Awards were presented in the afternoon.

"Learn to do by doing, fulfilling, earning, conquering and winning," the theme of Miss Wahl's Achievement Day was described to 4-H members.

A lot of seams had to be ripped out said Miss Wahl, and she complimented the girls on their finished projects.

A special thanks was also voiced to all 4-H leaders and their assistants.

Know Limitations of Old Age Then Start Your Planning

Old age- let's face it! We were all going to get there some day, if we live long enough, since medical science has taken such tremendous strides over the past half century.

What are we going to do with them - those 20 or 25 extra years? And all that wealth of wisdom, experience and know-how which we have accumulated in the half century preceding that? Retirement at first glance sounds like a lovely escape from the distressing problems which are a part of every life.

But if we don't get ready for retirement we are going to have the far more distressing problems of nothing to do. Oh, sure, there are "Golden Age" clubs, Senior Citizens' Clubs, Over-Sixty Clubs (even one "Borrowed Time Club"!)

At Age 15 or 25 or 35, it is practically impossible for us to think of ourselves as anything but young and on the threshhold of the happy adventures of living. Maybe somebody we are fond of is 65 and of course we will never be that age. We will be kind to Aunt Ella and to Grampa but they don't count for much. Even if we love them this kind of attitude is somewhat prevalent for comment.

What we need to do is look these retirement years square in the face, recognize the limitations that come with physical aging and then take an inventory of the plus values. The bodily functions slow down; the heart and arteries cannot take the heavy strains, at 60 and 70, that we put upon them at 35. I might add that even in their 40's we are losing far too many of our prized young - how do we withstand the pressures of our modern pace of living.

Once we know our limitations: our need for more sleep and less food, our need for special diets, perhaps, and certainly the good nutrition that keeps human tissues in repair, we can welcome retirement as a period of freedom to do some of those charming and useful things we haven't found time for before. - Time, perhaps, to indulge our desire to write a book, our experiences; or to serve as consultant in the area of our greatest competence. It might be a time to take up a new language or learn a new skill.

One husband wife I know are finding a whole new world of interest in belonging to a meals-on-wheels team. They use their car to deliver the meals. The recipients become their good friends.

A maintenance foreman I know has it all planned that when he is retired from his job he will drive through the northern farming area of his province in his own truck, with the equipment and knowhow to help small farmers with maintenance of their machinery.

Travel is the ambition of some: this is good too, if you don't think that it is large gobs. To travel for a year can be pretty wearying - even for young people. We need roots. A three-week trip, arranged at a pace we can stand (not 10 cities in 20 days!: some thing to anticipate and find funds for.

Young people and middle-agers: Don't think it won't happen to you. Start pinning down right now the things you are going to want to do with the free time which will be yours later on.

(We now have some understanding of wife-people act as they do. Write to Doris in care of this newspaper. about your particular problem and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Wigwam Living Like Ancestors

GOSAMA, Ont. (CP) — The exterior covering of elastic sheets rather than deer hide and the thin branches forming the skeleton are tied together with store-bought twine.

But the two families inside the wigwam just off Highway 144 are living just as their ancestors did before the arrival of the white man.

Bert Diamond and John Welsichee set up trap lines every winter in this area near Gogama, 65 miles southwest of Timmins and another 30 miles south of their summer home at Rupert House, Que., on James Bay.

In the wigwam, Mrs. Welsichee is skinning a beaver with a knife carved from bear bone while four-year-old Bernie Diamond practises skinning a squirrel and his mother puts an otter on a stretcher.

"They learn fast at that age," Mrs. Diamond said. "And later, when they go to school, they forget everything and then you have to teach them all over again."

Apart from their lucrative yield of furs the trap lines provide meat, clothing and a useful side income from passing moorhens and other articles made to order by the women.

The ministry of natural resources lends a hand by providing storage space for their furs and transportation if the trap lines are inaccessible by road.

Ann Landers
Hubbie's Dog . . . Wife's Nightmare

Dear Ann Landers: I've written this letter ten times, but this one is going into the mailbox. I'm terrified.

My husband has a Doberman Pinscher. The dog is nine months old and true to the breed — unpredictable and vicious. Last week that awful hound scared me out of my wits. Tony and I had an argument. It ended up with him slapping my face. The dog was right there — hanging — mad. Luckily, I was able to escape to the bathroom and shut the door.

The next day Tony bragged to his friends, actually laughed about how he now has "protection." He is a heavy drinker — in fact, that is what most of our fights are about.

Last night Tony and I were fooling around and wrestling — all in fun. The Doberman came after me again. When her "master" commanded her to lie down she obeyed. I keep having nightmares that one of these days when Tony is drunk, or mad at me for some fool thing, he'll order the dog to tear me to pieces.

Do I have the right to demand that he get rid of that animal? Or he'll never do it. — Scared Stiff

Dear S.S.: Insist on a compromise. Tell Tony that unless he agrees to keep the animal in the beast when he is in your presence you will see a lawyer about separate maintenance. If he refuses, I hope you will go ahead and do it. That's no way to live.

Dear Ann Landers: Here's a reply to the couple in Florida who thinks her is responsible for all the evils of the world.

Dear J. and J.: Has it ever occurred to you that sex, like fire, needs to be harnessed if it is going to be used effectively for the purpose for which it was designed?

Fire and sex are two of the most powerful and indispensable forces on earth. Surely we would not condemn fire because some people get burned by it.

It is a pity that you cannot look upon sex as it was meant to be — holy and complete union with your spouse. You have my heartfelt sympathy. — Happily Married and Close to God in Lorain, Ohio

Dear Happy And Close to Ohio: Your letter contains a message that is excellent analogy. My thanks to you for writing and my warm regards to the people in Sweet Lorain.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 27, have never been married. I've been through a lot. A year ago I met Jack, age 35, divorced and the father of five children. The last two years of their marriage Jack's wife was sleeping with her boss. When she asked for a divorce, Jack assumed the boss was going to leave his family and marry her. So he agreed. He felt he had no choice.

I was sure that when Jack was free he would marry me, but I was wrong. Four months after the divorce Jack's wife called him to say things didn't work out and she wants him to come home. So now he tells me they are going to be remarried because he misses his kids and he wants to be back in the good graces of his church. What kind of church will let's rat like that back in? What do I do next? — Damned Fiesel in Pensacola

Dear D.P.: Probably Catholic — which does not recognize divorce. In the eye of the church Jack and his wife were never anything but married. As for what do you do next: For openers, take a pledge not to get mixed up with any more married men.

'Legs' Important At Bank

TORONTO (CP) — High hemlines are every bit as important as high finance for women employees at one bank in Toronto's downtown financial district.

And if a girl puts her foot down about skirt lengths, she's not likely to get her nose in the door at the King and Bay Ia branch of the Toronto Dominion Bank.

Here, mini is the mode of dress by order of the management.

"Before hiring the girls we explain our mini-skirt preference," says staff supervisor Norma Rakomaki. "If they don't like it, they don't have to work here."

Midi skirts are allowed, but personally, Mr. Collier says, he thinks they are ugly.

Midi girls are allowed, but personally, Mr. Collier says, he thinks they are ugly.

Knee length skirts are the rule for the girls at the bank.

Legs, he says, play a "small but important" part in the hiring of bank staff

Trudeau Asks Liberals Tell Him of Thoughts

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau faced 1,200 supporters in nearby Laval Saturday with an appeal for greater Liberal party effort in Quebec.

"We have need of Liberals," he told party representatives from 12 Montreal-area counties, "not only to tell us what the population is thinking, but also to explain the decisions made by the government.

"We have need of Liberals to fight for the ideas we have chosen.

"We have need of you, every one of you. When people come to you with the claim that the government hasn't found solutions to these problems, it is necessary to tell them that all problems can't be resolved at the same time, everywhere, for everybody."

Discussing his party's performance in the last federal election, he said that the poor showing was due to the party trying to do too much, and allowing itself to get out of touch with the people.

He said, too, that over the last 10 years "too many people asked for too many things at the same time," and the result was a "revolt of desires."

New Provincial Body Sought To Care for 20,000 Retarded

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Members of the Ontario Association of the Mentally Retarded voted Saturday for the formation of a new provincial body for the handicapped to care for the province's estimated 20,000 retarded adults and children.

The resolution was adopted at the closing business session of the group's 20th annual convention attended by more than 600 delegates from across Ontario.

This stand and two other resolutions formed the association's response to an interim report tabled by the provincial government in March on the future care of the retarded.

The report suggests improvements in services to the retarded in the following areas: Guardianship and protection; residential care and re-integration into the community; co-ordination of all future services.

Margot Scott, of London, Ont., elected president of the association, said members have become increasingly dissatisfied with "fragmented service" to the retarded. She said such service is administered by seven branches of government and "so many acts I can hardly count."

The association's directors recommended that responsibility for programs for the retarded now supervised by the ministry of health, be transferred to the ministry of community and social services. They also recommended that a mental retardation division be created within this ministry reporting directly to the deputy-minister.

Members voted to ask the province to try a three-year experiment to co-ordinate these programs. With the understanding that local associations have a substantial say in where these programs would be established.

African Development Spreading Pollution

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Africa's drive for development is polluting its waters, eroding its jungles and killing its wild animals.

Monkeys have become victims of insecticides.

Environmentalists estimate that the population of lions, zebras, gazelles, leopards and other animals in East Africa has been reduced to one-tenth of what it was 50 years ago because of poachers' seeking hides and the loss of thousands of acres of wild grazing lands to farmers and land developers.

A recent study in Kenya shows that humans in that East African country are retaining residues of three different types of agricultural poison, including DDT.

West Africa's beaches already are being spoiled by giant oil tankers carrying crude oil from Saudi Arabia to the United States and Europe via the Cape of Good Hope.

The ships' oil tanks are cleaned off the West African coast, dispersing an oily film that hardens into a tar-like substance when it reaches the palm-fringed beaches.

Peasant farmers, who make up 80 per cent of black Africa's population, are eroding soil with cash firms, improper rotation of crops and indiscriminate cutting of trees.

"Eco-catastrophes are much more likely to occur in developing countries than in the industrialized countries that have far more resources to deal with them," says Maurice F. Strong, the Canadian secretary-general of the United Nations Conference on the Human Environment.

Laughing Stock

LONDON (CP) — It was a bank raider's unlucky day when he passed a note demanding money to a cashier at a bank in Chelsea. The cashier, Peter Richardson, burst out laughing at the message which read: "I have a gun. Hand over the money." Richardson passed the note to a colleague who also collapsed in laughter. The raider fled. "I can't understand it," Richardson said later. "I was scared stiff, but for some reason I couldn't help laughing."

Young Pilot Rewarded

Randy Daoust, a 19-year-old bush pilot, will receive a $200,000 gift from four wealthy American businessmen he rescued in a summer after a canoeing accident in the Northwest Territories. Mr. Daoust, who works for Lathone Island Airways in Yellowknife, said he will get the money when he is 25. He said the four businessmen have already invested $100,000, which will grow to $200,000 in the next six years. (CP Photo)

Israelis Are Said Employed By U.S. Oil Firm in Libya

TRIPOLI (AP)—President Moammar Khadafy says that the largest United States oil company in Libya employed several Israelis in its desert fields, but the Libyan leader gave no indication of any retaliatory action.

Khadafy told a six-hour news conference Sunday that a people's committee" of company employees discovered that the Israelis worked for the Oasis Oil Co.

There was no comment from the company, owned by Amerada Hess Corp., Continental, Marathon and Shell.

The president said he believes seven Israelis were discovered, but the matter is still under investigation. Oasis has been negotiating with the government for months over government participation in the company. The government is reported to be asking a 50-per-cent interest, and Oasis is reported to have rejected this and made a counter-offer.

"This is a scandal for America, that Israelis crept into our oil fields," said Khadafy. "We can sacrifice our oil if necessary to keep Israelis off our soil."

Secret Learners

LEEDS, England (CP) — A special series of seminars has been organized by volunteer teachers at Leeds University to teach illiterate people to read and write. However, several pupils, among them business men, are so ashamed of their handicap that secret lessons have to be arranged for them. "We realize how embarrassing this can be," said local education officer Martin Whitlock. "So we're trying to make any arrangements necessary."

Goal Record Belies His Own Thoughts

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter
(Seventh of Series)

For someone who doesn't think he's good enough to further himself in the ranks of the game of hockey, Jim Richardson's point getting record with the Bobcats and the Western Tire juveniles over the past season belies his own thinking.

During the Cats playoffs—11 goals, 10 assists. During the Cats' regular season — eight goals, eight assists. During the 30 odd games he played with the juveniles — 22 goals, 13 assists. That's not the record of a poor hockey player.

After playing in the unaccustomed centering position with Richard Barrett and Russ Livingston, Richardson signed with the Cats after the juveniles were knocked out of the OMHA playoffs by Kingston.

Part of his goal getting abilities, Richardson attributes to what he called "one of the best coaches I've ever had" — Lou Smrke. "He gives you more confidence in yourself," said "the right winger. "he started to play me and play me and play me. He showed that he had confidence in me and I began feeling more confident in myself."

With the Bobcats, Richardson was slotted alongside centre Rick Meagher and Ken Holmes back into the right wing, a position he said he feels most comfortable in.

"I'm not fast enough skater to play centre," said the 5 - year - old Centennial Secondary student, "besides, I've never had coaching before. I've played right wing all my life, except with the juveniles, but then they were short a centre so I filled in."

JIM RICHARDSON
. . . good record

Still eligible to play another year with the Cats, Richardson will be starting his preparation for the coming season early this year. Unlike last summer during which he played third base for the Ellis Juniors of the Commercial Softball League, Richardson will be going through a program of exercises to keep himself in good condition for hockey.

"Softball is not a good conditioner for hockey," said the winger. "last year I didn't do any exercises and I really felt it for the first couple of games of the season. My back and legs were really sore."

Having no interest in soccer as do Mark Coates and Peter Smrke, Richardson said he might be playing for Ella Jr. again this year, but he doubted he could beat out Jerry Meagher for the third baseman's job.

As for the future, outside of hockey with Belleville's Metro Jr. B entry, Richardson has no definite plans as of yet.

Iasenza's Young Team Prepares for Test

In the few exhibition games remaining before the Belleville and Trenton area under-21-year-old-Soccer team takes on Peterborough later this month, coach Joe Iasenza will be trying the 18 players he has selected in various positions on the soccer pitch.

Iasenza has chosen seven players from Trenton and the remainder from Belleville for this club which will be qualifying its players for a spot on the Ontario Soccer Association's area four representative team for the Oshawa Summer Games.

"We've got too many forwards, but we'll be putting them in other positions to see where they play best," said Iasenza. "But we've got good middle men and they're the body of the team.

"The problem is that they play the ball too long before passing it. By that time, the opposition defence has recovered, and then your forward motion is stopped. I have to break them of that habit.

"It's fine if you can control the ball, but you don't score. The wingers do a lot of the setting up of the scores but they have to be smart enough to come back and take the streets from the middle men."

According to Iasenza, those players who did not make the team weren't poor players, simply in some cases too young or needing a "little more experience," said the coach. "Some of them have good potential."

Industrial League Openers

Industrial Softball League teams may have been thwarted by the weatherman in their attempts to hold practices or anything remotely resembling ideal conditions but they'll attempt to get the 1973 season under way this week.

League openers are scheduled tonight on three fronts. With some half decent weather, action will take place on ball diamonds at Prince Charles Public School, Sir Mackenzie Bowell Public School and at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

AUCO and Dresse Bond hook up at Prince Charles while at Sir Mackenzie Bowell, it's Independents and Mead Johnson. Post Office plays Stewart Warner at OSD. All games start at 6:30.

League games continue through the week as the 13 entries get their first taste of competition. Watch the sports pages for information on who plays when and where.

Brunswick League Banquet

The Brunswick Thursday afternoon ladies' league wrapped up another successful bowling season recently at its annual presentation banquet.

Hotpoints carried off the honors as the top team. Members of the winning team are Bonnie Cook, Fran Trenouth, Sue Gorman, Mary Wills, Doris Elston and Sandy Barnes.

Winners of individual awards were Edith Brunet, high average, 200, Helen Towns, high triple, 760 and Eve Campbell, high single, 320. In the high handicap division, Fran Thomson scored the best triple and Doreen Gill chalked up the high single.

Other bowlers who received recognition for their achievements during the 1972-73 season were Jackie Faggarty, Wyn Kelly, Isobel Harris, Mae Olaverson and Jan Donaldson.

The league's new executive: Betty Colborn, president; Mary Grossett, vice-president; Sandy Burton, secretary; Helen Jones, treasurer; and Bernice Burnham, social convener.

Badminton Playoffs

Junior champions in the Belleville Badminton Club will be decided Thursday night at Centennial Secondary School. Play for the club championships is scheduled to get under way at 7:30.

Singles and doubles events for boys and girls will be staged as well as mixed team competition. The players will compete in A and B classifications.

Making Regrets

Sometimes, racing cars isn't all it's cracked up to be as Willard Cormier of Batawa learned Sunday during trials at Brighton Speedway. Willard had to take time out to replace broken axle after short spin around the track. He wasn't out of action long. Repairs completed, he was soon rolling again and got in plenty of practice runs as did dozens of other drivers who showed up for the chance to try their machines and get the "bugs" out. The racing season at the Brighton track is scheduled to open May 19.

Rovers Post 2-0 Win

The Quinte Help Fund Rovers could be off on another successful season in the Kingston and District Soccer Association play.

In one of the first exhibition games of the KDSA season, the QHF Rovers defeated Hala Canadians 2 - 0 with John O'Neill and Fredie Zdralo providing the goals Saturday. Zdralo gave the Hala Canadians further trouble in the second half with two shots that hit the post.

The QHF Rovers completed their season last year tied in first but lost on their goal average. As if to make up for their second place finish, they won the playoffs in the ninth team soccer league.

Blocks for Eaton's Car Manufactured in Belleville

By DOUGLAS J. TAYLOR

Belleville's importance in the field of automobile racing is being established by a local manufacturing firm. E. V. Burtt Manufacturing, a foundry business involved mainly in boat and marine hardware and industrial castings is casting engine blocks for George Eaton's new indy car.

Eaton, a member of one of the more well known families in Canada, is himself a former indy rookie of the year. He enjoyed some successful years of auto racing which saw him start from scratch to quickly rise from the minor ranks to the highest level of the sport, that of a Can-Am racer.

Now, along with Lobo Engines, Ltd. (formerly Fejer Brothers Racing Team, of which he is president, Eaton is out to develop a completely new concept in race car design.

The idea is to build a car which is "super low" to facilitate higher straightaway speeds, the result of reduced drag.

To build a car of such design created a necessity for a different type of engine. One of far less height than the conventional Offy of Ford design was the target.

Plans were drawn up and Burtt Manufacturing was awarded the rights for casting the blocks.

Essentially a flat eight, the complete blocks and heads are cast in aluminum alloy. It is a DOHC configuration employing four valves per cylinder.

Casting of the block is done in two separate parts. One section houses the crank and five main bearings along with the cylinder walls for that particular bank while the other houses the cylinder bores for the remaining bank.

Wet liners are used in the cylinder bores which measure 3.50 inches with a stroke of 1.08 inches. With the addition of turbochargers, the displacement will be 161 cubic inches.

Air and fuel will be injected into the engine between the overhead camshafts in the pentroof combustion chamber with the spark plug centrally located between the angled valves.

Exhaust gasses will leave from the underside and travel to the turbocharger which will be housed at the rear of the block, beside the transmission to allow for better aerodynamics.

Dimensions of the new engine are; length, 22 inches; width, 28 inches and the thickness a scant 11 inches.

One aspect of the boat operation is the care that goes into the castings. The molds are made from sand which is held together by a special binder to harden like concrete. The metal must be at exactly 1300 degrees when poured into the moulds.

In all, it involves a four-day operation to get one complete engine block. The block takes 130 lbs. of metal to cast. When finished, the main engine block weighs about 78 lbs and the other section about 31 lbs. Al castings are X-rayed for flaws before being machined and heat treated.

The engine which is at present supplying approximately 300 horse power at 11,000 revolutions per minute, will be slung low in the chassis, below the centre line of the wheels to lower the centre of gravity and provide better cornering.

Due to a shortage of time, it is expected Eaton and his associates may have to purchase a chassis in order in have the car running for this year's Indy 500.

Meanwhile, Eaton has a full time designer who at one time worked on the designing of Mig fighter planers, working on the problem.

Who knows, if the engine is a success at indy, it could offer a challenge to the turbo Porsche in Can-Am racing in a year or so. And a Belleville Industry will have played a major role in the development of then ew concept in racing.

Shop foreman Ed Quinn displays the finished product. Blocks are ready for machining.

Looks Like Potvin Will Be First Pick

Montreal (cp) — In the past, players graduating from the junior hockey ranks had to wait until the second week in June to find out which professional hockey organization was interested in them.

But this year, the suspense will end quickly for two young skaters as both the National Hockey League and the World Hockey Association unveil their draft of over-age juniors this week.

The NHL draft, usually a part of the NHL's annual meetings in June, will take place here on Tuesday while the WHA draft will be in Toronto Friday and Saturday.

The general consensus is that many scouts attending the Montreal Cup playoffs here last week is that Denis Potvin of Ottawa 67's will be the No. 1 pick in both drafts.

Potvin, who stands six feet and weights 195 pounds is a rugged defenceman and who can handle the puck when he wants to.

Potvin finished fifth in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series scoring - race with 32 goals and 81 assists. He also had 232 minutes in penalties.

New York Islanders have the top pick in the NHL session and they made no secret during the regular season to try and secure the services of leading Potvin. They acquired his brother Jean in a trade with Philadelphia Flyers.

Who will be drafted No. 2 is a matter that sparks a lot of debate. Montreal Canadiens, who have the second pick in the NHL draft by virtue of an earlier trade with California Golden Seals are looking for centre strength.

Some feel Montreal will opt for Tom Lysiak, who led the Western Canada Hockey League in scoring with 154 points on 56 goals and 86 assists while tolling for Medicine Hat Tigers.

Others think that Andre Savard, the team captain of Quebec Remparts, runner-up to Toronto Marlboros in the Memorial Cup series, will be chosen.

Lysiak was a bust for the 73-game stint in the Montreal Canadiens' white Savard, who had 67 goals and 84 assists during the league season, was Quebec Major Junior A Hockey league season, was named to the All-Star team as the outstanding defenceman. A finals here.

Lysiak has already said he is not interested in being drafted by Montreal not because he has anything against the organization but because he doesn't speed the rest of my life with the (Nova Scotia) Voyageurs."

"I'd rather go to an expansion team or maybe some established team that needs strength at centre," Lysiak said last week.

Savard on the other hand wouldn't mind being picked up by Montreal. He was the teammate Guy Lafleur in the Canadian national junior team.

Savard played on Quebec's Memorial Cup championship team in 1971.

Other top forwards in the draft are:

—Dennis Ververgaert, a left winger who fired 51 goals and added 89 assists for London Knights of the OHA.

—Lanny McDonald, who scored 52 goals and 77 assists, while playing on a line with Lysiak.

—Blake Dunlop, a centre who won the OHA scoring championship, scoring 55 goals and adding 9 assists for Ottawa.

—Darcy Rota, brother of Randy Rota now in the Canadiens' organization and a 72-goal man for Toronto Dixie Kings of the WOHL.

Toronto Marlboros, this year's Memorial Cup champions, have four players who are prime picks.

Defenceman Bob Dailey, who stands six feet five inches and weighs 215 pounds, is expected to be one of the top 10 selections.

Other Marlies expected to go high are Paulin Bordeleau, a right winger, his linemate Peter Marrin, who had 42 goals and 64 assists, and Glen Goldup, another right winger, who had 42 goals and 57 assists for 86 points.

The top goaltender available, appears to be John Davidson, who had a 3.30 goals against average during the 1972-73 National Hockey League season. Korab had 12 goals and 13 assists.

Tallon, 22, was Vancouver's first choice in the amateur draft when the club joined the NHL in 1970. He played every forward position plus defence and he's a lawyer. Alan Eagleson said two weeks ago that Tallon was threatening to go the World Hockey Association if he wasn't traded.

Eagleson said Tallon felt the Canucks had no confidence in him because they kept shifting him around.

Tallon Traded

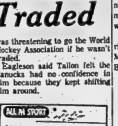
CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Black Hawks announced Sunday they have traded goalie Gary Smith and defenceman-forward Jerry Korab to Vancouver Canucks for defenceman-centre Dale Tallon.

Hawks manager Tommy Ivan of the Hawks said: "Tallon is the big centre we have been looking for. Tallon will play centre full time for us."

Smith had 10 victories and 10 losses with a 3.30 goals against average during the 1972-73 National Hockey League season. Korab had 12 goals and 13 assists.

Tallon, 22, was Vancouver's first choice in the amateur draft when the club joined the NHL in 1970. He played every forward position plus defence and he's a lawyer. Alan Eagleson said two weeks ago that Tallon



"I hope the game doesn't go back over-the-top. They'd probably strike for overtime pay!"

Mark Howe Sparkles In Marlies' Cup Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Remparts coach Orval Tessier, his team knocked 5-1 by Toronto Marlboros in the sudden-death championship game for the Memorial Cup, Canada's national junior hockey crown, had no excuses Saturday night.

"I don't think there's a junior hockey team in Canada that could beat the Marlies tonight," he said.

"They are the best junior club I've seen in a long time. Toronto would have beaten anybody, anywhere tonight."

"And that Howe, he's some hockey player," Tessier added, referring to Mark Howe, who scored two goals and assisted on three others in Saturday's finale. Howe also was named the most valuable player in the week-long tournament.

Glenn Goldup and Peter Marrin also scored goals for the Marlboros and team-mates Brad Winton, Paulin Bordele.

Preakness Preparations In High Gear

BALTIMORE (AP) — The final week of preparations for the 98th running of the Preakness Stakes moved into high gear today, with Kentucky Derby runner-up Sham scheduled for a last workout.

Secretariat, the long-striding chestnut who trimmed Sham by 2½ lengths while winning the Derby in record time, got in his final major run Sunday in readiness for Saturday's $150,000 classic.

Jockey Ron Turcotte sent the son of Bold Ruler through five furlongs in 57.2-3 seconds, then galloped the mile-and-a-quarter in other six furlongs in 1:10.

"That's it, that's all," Lucien Laurin said after watching Secretariat work out. "He'll blow out the later part of this week. I caught him myself a little slower than 58 seconds for the five-eighths."

Laurin said he was "very satisfied" with Secretariat's performance Sunday, "but imagine if I had put blinkers on him." Secretariat generally wears blinkers on the track.

Senior Title For Terriers

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Orillia Terriers capped eight years of rebuilding Monday night by defeating St. Boniface Mohawks 8-1 to capture the best-of-seven Allan Cup final, emblematic of Canadian senior hockey supremacy, in five games.

The Orillia club got off to a rickety start in senior hockey but was launched on a dynasty in 1967-68 season when the nucleus of the Toronto Marlboros senior club was moved here.

Mohawks' playing coach Gary Kwasnitza gave no excuses for his team's showing.

"If we had won, it would have been a miracle," he said.

"There's no doubt they were the better club. I must say we had a lucky break that we showed in this series."

Terriers jumped into a 2-1 lead in the first period and exploded for a 6-1 entering the final 20 minutes. They outshot Mowhawks 53-27 on the night and 202-142 in the series.

Mike Byers and Hank Monteith scored two goals each for Orillia while Gary Marsh, Grant Moore, Claire Alexander and Bob Cipolla added single goals. George Watson tallied the lone St. Boniface goal.

Terriers had nothing but praise for the Orillia fans. With 4,000 persons into it Saturday's game, the 2,200 spectators rose to their feet, sounding sirens, horns and trumpets.

"The ovation the fans gave us sent chills up and down my spine," said Moore a forward.

"I have never heard such a roar in my life. It bothered me so much that I could not control my shots.

"They have to be the greatest fans in the world," said Gary Milroy, another forward.

One of the standouts in the series was Terriers goaltender Jean-Louis Levasseur who made several spectacular saves in the final game.

"One man can't win the Allan Cup," the Sorel, Que., native said. "The players on this club have more than proven on any other club I've ever seen.

"They are just great and the fans are something else. Several times this season I let in easy goals and I never heard them boo me once. It's great to playing Orillia."

Mohawks were forced to shuttle players back and forth to Winnipeg during the series because of work commitments and Aime Allaire, the St. Boniface goaltender who played every format should be altered.

"They've got to change the system for the Allan Cup," he said. "All the games shouldn't be played in one city. There should have three in the East and then four in the West, with the other way around. I really that would cost the CAHA (Canadian Amateur Hockey Association) more money but I intend to bring it up at the annual meeting."

Terriers dropped only the second game of the series by a 6-1 score, taking most of the others by lopsided margins.

Profitable Weekend For Toronto Melita

Milan Defeats Bologna

ROME (AP) — Milan easily defeated Bologna 3-1 Sunday and kept its one-point lead over Juventus of Turin and Lazio of Rome atop the Italian major league soccer championship race.

With only one more round to go, Milan needs to defeat weak Verona next Sunday to take the title, the 10th in the history of the Milanese team.

Milan has 44 points from 29 games and tops the standings followed by Lazio and defending champion Juventus, both with 43 points.

Milan, with its captain Gianni Rivera back on the pitch after a two-round disqualification, had an easy task defeating Bologna with goals by Riccardo Sogliano, Giuseppe Sabbadini and Alberino Bigon.

Lazio edged Verona 2-1 and Juventus defeated once-powerful Internazionale of Milan, also 2-1.

Pembroke Hangs On In Centennial Final

WINNIPEG (CP) — Pembroke Lumber Kings overcame the strong goal-tending of TV Langston Sunday night to defeat Portage la Prairie Terriers 6-4 and force a fifth game in the Centennial Cup final.

Portage la Prairie leads the best-of-seven final for the national junior championship 3-1 with the fifth game tonight in Winnipeg.

Pembroke, the Eastern Canada champions from Ontario, grabbed a 2-1 first-period lead, maintained the one-goal edge through the second period as each club scored three times, and added the only goal of the third period.

Pat Hahn and Bob Wright each scored two goals for the Lumber Kings while Steve Crocher and Bill Sweeney getting one each.

Randy Penner continued his strong play for Portage la Prairie, picking up a pair of goals before 8,962 spectators. Grant Fuyarchuk and Frank Leswick scored the others.

Langton, the individual hero who almost single-handedly took the Manitoba and Western Canada champions to their third game victory, moved into the Portage la Prairie goal to start the second period. John Memryk played the first period, kicking out nine of 11 shots.

Langton was beaten on four of 30 shots in the final 40 minutes, but all four goals came on rebounds after he had made the initial saves.

Although the Terriers had 43 shots on the Pembroke goal, the shots were not as dangerous as those which Memryk and Langton faced. Pembroke held a distinct advantage in the game, despite the closeness of the score and shots on goal.

Portage la Prairie had a chance to tie the game midway through the final period when Randy Hextall fired point blank from in front of the Pembroke net but Terry Dennison came up with a glove stop.

Seeking their first national championship since 1942, the Terriers grabbed a 1-0 lead early in the game when Penner banged in a rebound at 1:44, little more than a minute later Hahn's wrist shot got past Hextall when he deflected the puck and missed.

Wright made it 2-1 about three minutes later when he intercepted an errant pass in front of Memryk and had little difficulty finding the corner of the net.

Penner tied the count early in the second when he poked a puck beside the Pembroke goal as beat Brian Shields before he had a chance to react.

But Wright and Hahn then clicked again to give Pembroke a lead to stay. Farncombe and Dennison exchanged goals, both coming after the goaltenders had made difficult stops and had no chance on the rebounds.

Leswick pulled Portage close at 15:07 when his shot was wide of the goal, but Shields put his glove out, caught the puck and then pulled it into the net when he had trouble handling it. Dennison then replaced Shields.

Pembroke took six of nine minor penalties, but neither club could muster a goal while having the man advantage.

Two More for Aaron As Braves in Split

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

On a day when tennis buttler Bobby Riggs struck a blow for the elderly men of America, baseball slugger Hank Aaron struck two blows for them.

Aaron, 39, is a kid compared with Riggs, 55. But he's in a daily battle with time and history, and, like Riggs, he won Sunday's showdown easily.

Aaron slugged a pair of home runs, one in each game, as Atlanta Braves split a doubleheader with San Diego Padres. The Braves wasted his two-run pinch homer in the ninth inning of the opener, losing 6-4. But his 700th homer of the season and No. 683 of his career helped Atlanta take the second game 6-2.

For the season, Aaron, steadily advancing on Babe Ruth's homer record of 714, now has 27 and his career total of 685 homers. He now trails Ruth by 31.

In other National League games Sunday, New York Mets clowned Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4, scoring five runs after a doubleheader from Philadelphia Phillies, 4-2 and 9-3, St. Louis Cardinals edged Reds shutout Houston Astros 2-0 and Los Angeles Dodgers walloped San Francisco Giants 15-3.

In Saturday's games, New York defeated Pittsburgh 8-0, Chicago beat Philadelphia 3-1, San Francisco edged Los Angeles 5-4, Atlanta thumped San Diego 14-2, Montreal beat St. Louis 3-1 and Houston topped Cincinnati 7-2.

Aaron was on the bench in the first game and when the Braves got around to using him in the ninth, it was too late. By then, the Padres had a 6-2 lead and his two-run homer just made it a bit closer. Jerry Morales had driven in three runs in the opener for the Padres rally.

With a single and a sacrifice fly.

In the nightcap, Aaron was in the line-up and tagged No. 10 against loser Fred Norman.

"I'm a little surprised," said Aaron of his fistful of early homers. "I didn't think I'd have that many this early. Of course with me, it's been a case of home run or nothing and the way I've been going this season, I have to take what comes."

Jim Beauchamp drove in four runs with a pair of singles, leading New York to its third straight victory over Pittsburgh as the Pirates dropped their fifth straight.

Beauchamp's timely hitting helped the Mets to a 6-0 lead but the Pirates chopped the margin in half with three runs in the seventh and Richie added another in the eighth before reliever Tug McGraw shut off the rally.

Riggs in Effortless Win

RAMONA, Calif. (AP) — As an early ancestor of Bobby Riggs might have put it, the race is not always to the swift.

"She's better than me in every department," the frail-looking, 55-year-old Riggs said Sunday after secretarial prodigy put the opposite in his celebrated match with women's tennis champion Margaret Court.

Putting his racket and court wisdom where his mouth was in 1970, issuing a challenge to all women players, Riggs promptly an effortless 6-2, 6-1 victory and pocketed $10,000, plus another $7,500 from the television broadcast.

"She has a better serve, a better volley, a better forehand, better backhand," Riggs said, "But the question is, can you pull that game out when you need it? Can you play your best when the money's on the line?

"Margaret's a great player and a great sport. But in this kind of contest, you know, deep down in the ocean, she was out of her depth."

Riggs started his "attack" Sunday with a bouquet of roses for his opponent on Mother's Day.

Then, against the slashing serves of the 30-year-old Australian, Riggs countered with a deceptive array of lobs, drop shots and chips that left the net by mistake and died after a pitch shot on a wet green.

He ran from side to side to the other, toyed with the opponent, then started to mock it with it, fed her overheads that she netted or hit out of court, joined the crowd in applauding her winners, and made the world's best woman player—may be the best ever—look very much out of her league.

She won only two games on her service and a third when Riggs, playing to the camera and a largely pro-Court crowd of 3,500, nearly missed the ball completely on a backhand swipe and committed his only doublefault.

"He kept changing his pace and breaking up my rhythm," Mrs. Court said afterward. "I started badly and never got back in the match."

Two years ago Riggs said he'd like to play the top-ranked woman, Billie Jean Ring, "every day and twice on Sunday." The remark eventually led to Sunday's match with Mrs. Court, after Mrs. King rejected the challenge.

"I guess it proves that the top ladies are about equal to a 15-year-old boy or a 55-year-old man, or maybe not so good," commented Jack Kramer, the former star who promoted both men's and women's pro-tennis several years ago.

"That's the way those women should play Margaret," said Riggs. "Give her a lot of deep, high, slow stuff. If just played very sloppy, nonlogical pat game, I didn't have to hit a really good shot all day.

"Now I'll bet them that on Margaret," Kramer agreed.

But you have to have super control of a lob good second serve, plus the ability to lob deeply.

Art Pollard 34th to Die

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Funeral services will be conducted tonight for race driver Art Pollard, whose life was snuffed in a ball of flame and flying parts after skidding into a wall during the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

The crash occurred 90 minutes before Saturday's start of qualifications for the 38 th Indianapolis 500. He died at hospital 61 minutes after the crash.

Pollard, 46, was the oldest driver seeking a starting spot in the $1-million Memorial Day classic. He was the 34th driver killed at the speedway since the first race in 1911. The 33rd fatality occurred one year ago to the day, when Jim Malloy hit the wall on the third turn during practice. He died four days later.

Pollard, of Medford, Ore., was pronounced dead of flame inhalation after being taken to hospital.

"Art had been driving the grooves at the same spot earlier and seemed to almost lose it, then catch it at the last sec, ond," said one witness.

"This time, it looked like he was going to go smoothly through the turn when the car suddenly turned right and went into the wall."

The impact against the outer retaining wall in the southwest turn tore the right wheels off his 1972 Eagle. The car bounced off the wall and cut a blazing trail across the track and into the grass of the short chute.

Witnesses there said the car was bouncing, airborne most of the time, before it suddenly began flipping as it came back on the track. It came to a stop right-side up, about halfway through the second turn, after strewing parts all along a 1,450-foot path.

He had been averaging more than 181 miles an hour before the crash.

No one on the crash scene could see any evidence of a part breaking to cause the sudden veer into the wall.

"It was really weird," said one driver. "It was just like Malloy's crash last year. There were no skid marks or anything like that. It just turned left, both of 'em suddenly lost control and their cars veered to the right and into the wall."

Brewers Giving Fans That Warm Feeling

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's something besides beer brewing in Milwaukee ... and it's giving the town's baseball fans that old gasmutticksnort feeling.

Freely translated, gemutlichkeit means jole de vivre. If you insist on English it's that warm feeling inside that comes from good companionship ... and the first-place baseball team.

The good burghers of Milwaukee know the feeling well when the Brewers were winning National League pennants back in the late 1950s before they marched to Atlanta.

Now it's the Milwaukee Brewers atop the American League East by one full game following Sunday's 6-5 victory over Detroit Tigers on Davy May's 10th-inning home run, his second of the game.

Elsewhere, Baltimore and New York inches into second place by splitting a double header, the Yankees taking the opener 4-0 and the Orioles rallying to pull out the nightcap 9-8. In other games, Boston Red Sox trounced Cleveland Indians 8-3, California Angels blanked Chicago White Sox 3-0, Minnesota Twins downed Kansas City Royals 5-0 and Texas Rangers turned back Oakland Athletics 7-2.

In Saturday's action, New York blanked Baltimore 8-0, Cleveland defeated Boston 10-2, Milwaukee beat Detroit 6-2, Oakland topped Texas 4-2, Kansas City defeated Minnesota 4-2 and California dropped Chicago 4-3.

The AL East is so tight that the Brewers could be in third place by tonight, but Manager Del Crandall thinks it's good that finishing last three times in its four-year existence is far real ... a new record for what the critics say.

"Let them be-fa," he snorted. "I think you have to go by what you see and not what's been in the past."

The Brewers trailed Detroit 3-1 but scored three times in the fifth on a single by Dave Duncan, Tim Johnson's pinch-hit single, Duncan's sacrifice fly and May's first home run, his eighth of the season. Detroit's Steve Brown led it with a homer and both teams scored in the ninth before May broke it up and also took over the AL home run lead.

Cleveland also played the game under protest after Dick Bosman's relief pitch out in a rundown between third and home in the bottom of the 10th. Manager Ray Martin said Milwaukee catcher Darrell Porter touched McAuliffe after Porter got the ball to third and claimed that constituted obstruction.

Umpire Joe Brinkman said Porter may have touched the runner, but since McAuliffe had fallen down before the contact the play was not considered involved.

"There's no way there's an umpire's judgment involved here," Martin said. "The rule is the rule."

The Yankees used home runs by Bobby Murcer, Roy White, Thurman Munson and Graig Nettles and the eight-hit pitching of Mel Stottlemyre and Sparky Lyle to win their opener from Baltimore. But the Orioles whipped on a 5-2 deficit with our runs in the fifth inning of the nightcap, highlighted by Larry Brown's two-run homer.

Boston's Tommy Harper capped a five-run sixth inning with the first grand slam of his 11-year career and Carl Yastrzemski smashed his 14th career homer with a three-hitter. Danny Oliva's single and double, Jerry Terrell's sacrifice fly and Rick Carew's homer accounted for the Twins' runs.

Sonny Siebert, who had pitched only 3 2-3 innings for Boston before being traded, hurled five shutout innings in Oliva's single and double, Jerry Burroughs slammed a two-run homer as the Rangers whipped Oakland.

Judy Rankin Wins by Four

BALTIMORE (AP) — Texan Judy Rankin scored a four-stroke victory Sunday in the $30,000 Lady Carling Open at Five Farms Golf Course, shooting an even-par 72.

Her 54-hole total was 215.

In picking up the $4,500 winner's cheque, Mrs. Rankin bettered the $20,000 mark in season's earnings. She also won last week at Raleigh, N.C.

Sandra Haynie birdied the 17th and 18th holes to take second place with a 73 for 219.

Smith Tops Ashe For Tennis Title

DALLAS (AP)—The World Championship of Tennis finals proved three things Sunday: Stan Smith is the No 1 player; Australian dominance in the sport may be taking a nosedive, and Arthur Ashe has to be the unluckiest person ever to lose a match.

Smith claimed the $50,000 first prize 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 8-4 from Ashe in a match that had to be settle for $30,000 and cheers from 8,500 fans who thought he was robbed in the 10th game of the deciding set.

Ashe double faulted to make the crucial game-deuce after a controversial call on first serve. Smith made it his advantage on a ball many thought had bounced twice. Then Ashe clubbed a forehand too long for the match winner.

Slow motion replays of the game winning point on the CBS network showed that Smith returned the winner.

"It was glad to find out I did get it on the first bounce," Smith said. "It would have been worse to have lost because of an incorrect call than to lose the match for $50,000."

Ashe only half - heartedly played the point because "I didn't think he had it on the first bounce. I just hit up a lob and asked the umpire (Mike Blanchard) if it was good. The television replay showed it was."

On the fault call, Smith said: "I thought the first serve was out. One linesman said he didn't see it and asked help from the other linesman, who called it out."

After the controversies were ironed out, Smith, who now had won $154,100 in his first year on the WCT tour, said "I feel completely in saying I might be the No. 1 player in the world now."

Ice Capades For Magnussen

VANCOUVER (CP)—Karen Magnussen of North Vancouver, winner of six world figure skating championships, has signed a two-year contract with Ice Capades, it was announced Sunday.

George Eloy of Los Angeles, president of Ice Capades, said the contract will earn Karen the highest amount ever paid to a female performer, or an to the 33-year history of Ice Capades."

He said the 21-year-old champ will perform in the two companies of Ice Capades, playing 30 American cities and a number of United States cities.

Details of the contract were not released, but Miss Magnussen s lawyer, Allan Eagleson of Toronto, said it is the best professional contract he has ever negotiated.

Miss Magnussen won gold medals in school figures, free skating and over-all at Bratislava, Czechoslovakia.

Weiskopf Does It On the Last Hole

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP—"It was," said Tom Weiskopf, after a heck of a way to win a golf tournament."

But he wasn't complaining.

"I don't want to be hypocritical. You got to feel happy. But it's a different kind of win."

Weiskopf plucked the $150,000 Colonial National Invitation title from Bruce Crampton's hip pocket on the 72nd and final hole Sunday.

It was more a gift than theft, actually.

But Weiskopf quoted his old friend Jack Nicklaus, in summation:

"A golf tournament is 72 holes. You have to play all of them. Your scores on the first hole is as important as your scores on the last."

And it was the last hole, where Crampton took a double-bogey six, that Weiskopf won the tournament, sitting on a fielding chair behind the tree.

Weiskopf collected the $30,0 top prize by a stroke, finishing with a one-under-par 69 for 278, which included a par on the last hole, some 15 minutes before Crampton showed up.

Crampton, the leader for three rounds, drifted to a 73 champion Jerry Heard, with a birdie at the 18th, to tie for second at 277. Each earned $13,875.

Nicklaus pushed Crampton's winnings, to $167,543 for the year, still tops on the PGA circuit.

Lee Elder took fourth at 278 for $7,500 and Julius Boros, at even par 280, was fifth for $6,150.

Only Elder and Weiskopf ruled as serious contenders as the golf gods played.

Then it was only Weiskopf and Crampton.

"I don't think I'm a choker," Crampton said. "I've won 13 tournaments and it's the best golfer who can play the last hole well enough to win."

George Knudson of Toronto, Canadian in the tourna ment, shot an 80 Sunday for a four-round total of 302. He finished out of the money.

'Cabin in Sky' Ready to Go To Site Aloft

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The first United States space station, Skylab, was ready for launching today into earth orbit to serve as a giant "cabin in the sky" for nine astronauts in the next eight months.

If the laboratory totals successfully, the first three-man crew will rocket into space Tuesday and link up with the station for a record 28-day mission.

The Skylab 1 crew, Charles Conrad, Dr. Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz were to watch from three miles today's planned 1:30 p.m. EDT liftoff of the 33-storey-tall Saturn rocket. It is to drill the station into a 270-mile-high orbit.

The astronauts then will prepare for their own journey aboard a smaller 22-storey Saturn 1-B rocket at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Also there are members of the Skylab 2 and 3 crews to be next in the year are to visit the same laboratory, each for 56 days.

The nine astronauts will con-

Skylab Figures And Facts

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Facts and figures on the first Skylab mission:

Launch times: Unmanned Skylab station on a Saturn V rocket at 1:30 p.m. EDT Monday. Skylab 1 astronauts on a Saturn 1-B at 1 p.m. Tuesday. Linkup at 8:40 p.m. Tuesday.

Flight duration: 28 days.

Astronauts: Navy Capt. Charles Conrad, 42; Navy Cmdr. Joseph P. Kerwin, a physician, 41.

Skylab size: With Apollo ferry craft attached, it is 118 feet long and solar panels extend to wingspan of 102 feet. It is the size of a three-bedroom house, with 12,300 cubic feet of living space, and weighs 198,750 pounds.

Purpose: Aboard the first American space station in earth orbit, the crew will evaluate whether man can live and work effectively in space for long periods.

Experiments: Medical, earth resources, astronomy, solar physics, materials processing.

Visibility: At dawn and dusk, over areas which it passes; Skylab will appear as a bright star.

Orbital path: 270 miles high, passing over 95 per cent of the world's land mass, that which lies between 50 degrees north and 50 degrees south latitude.

Mission cost: $564 million.

Subsequent flights: In August and November, the Skylab 2 and 3 crews are to rocket up to the same Skylab, each for 56 days.

duct extensive medical, scientific, earth resources and space manufacturing experiments to determine how well man can live and work in space for long periods.

What they learn will set guidelines for long-duration missions of the future, such as permanent space stations or journeys to other planets.

The information also may have far-reaching consequences in bringing benefits from space to mankind, especially in the study of earth's hidden natural resources.

Donald Slayton, director of flight crew operations, said Sunday that Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz are "fully trained, confident and looking forward to getting the big one off tomorrow and riding the little one on Tuesday."

Skylab is as large as a three-bedroom house and has 60 times more volume than Apollo. Flight crew quarters will have his own bedroom. There is a kitchen and a pantry packed with a ton of food ranging from filet mignon to ice cream.

There's a shower and a toilet, stereo sets, books, changes of clothing, playing cards, a dark board, exercise machines and a picture window for viewing earth. And every hour-and-a-half day will be a day of rest.

And the Skylab 1 crew will have a live-in doctor, Kerwin, a physician, will handle the medical experiments while keeping an eye on the first mission. He also will be specially equipped to monitor the health of the astronauts.

Skylab is the huge, water-720 gallons of it—and experiment gear that three Skylab crews were packed aboard the unmanned laboratory for today's launch.

Upon reaching orbit, Skylab will weigh 170,000 pounds. When the astronauts' spaceship hooks up with it, it will weigh a total of 199,750 pounds and will be 118 feet long.

With a total of six wing-like solar panels extended it will be like a gleaming space contraption. The panels convert the sun's rays to electrical energy.

Running as far north as the U.S.-Canadian border and as far south as the tip of Argentina, Skylab will fly over 75 per cent of the world's surface—more than any other manned spacecraft.

Several countries have asked the astronauts to conduct earth resources experiments as they pass overhead—including their coral survays, mapping water resources, studying agriculture potential and photographing forest air and water pollution sources.

The huge spacecraft will be visible in areas of the world that it streaks over at dawn and dusk. It will appear as a bright star.

The Skylab 1 astronauts are to return to earth June 12, setting up the laboratory for a visit by the Skylab 2 crew Aug. 8. The Skylab 3 team is to rocket up to the lab Nov. 9.

Human Cells in Space

Living human cells, stored in these tiny chambers displayed by Prof. Leonard Hayflick of Stanford University School of Medicine, will be orbited in a Skylab space to determine effects of prolonged weightlessness on cell growth. Cells will be placed aboard Skylab, the United States' first manned orbital space station scheduled for launching May 14. (AP Photo)

Dean Denies Making Report Exonerating White House Aides

WASHINGTON (CP) — Former White House counsel John Dean III has challenged President Nixon's version of the Watergate affair by saying that he never made any report, orally or in writing, exonerating White House officials from a cover-up.

In an interview with Newsweek magazine, Dean said he was "flabbergasted" when President Nixon said on television last Aug. 29 that the so-called Dean report had absolved all past and present White House aides of involvement in the scandal.

Dean's latest version of events seemed likely to increase congressional pressure to have him testify in public at the Senate select committee's Watergate hearings opening next Thursday.

The Senate committee, on the basis of such testimony from Dean, presumably would ask the president or White House to produce a Dean report on the Watergate investigation—if it exists.

Dean was reported by Time magazine to have been asked by Nixon two months ago to sign a virtual confession that he was the only White House aide to cover up facts in the Watergate case.

Time reported Dean was called into Nixon's office in March and asked to sign two papers. It said one was a virtual confession, accepting all blame for concealing facts in the case and, in effect, absolving others. It said the other was Dean's resignation.

Time said Dean refused to sign either paper and also refused to draft his own letter of resignation. Returning to Nixon's office later, Time said, Dean was told by the president he must "shoulder the burden" and that there would be no full "airing of the case." Dean was fired April 30.

The New York Times carries a report today alleging that Dean actively attempted to set up an undercover espionage and intelligence ring to infiltrate anti-war protest groups before last year's national political conventions.

The Times says Dean in May, 1972, summoned an official of the interior department, Kenneth Tapman, and offered him money to either participate in or direct an undercover network. The report says Tapman, in a telephone interview, confirmed Dean made such an offer.

The 34-year-old Dean told Newsweek he was never asked to produce a report on the bugging of Democratic national party headquarters in the Watergate office building in Washington last June.

"I have had no opportunity whatsoever to discuss this matter with the president," Dean said. "I had no phone conversations—nothing.

"I was flabbergasted . . . here was the president of the United States reassuring the American people on the basis of a report that didn't exist."

Quebec City Paper Strike Ends As Newsroom Control Guaranteed

QUEBEC (CP) — Le Soleil, resumed publication Saturday for the first time since a labor dispute shut down the newspaper last weekend and forced cancellation of Monday's editions.

Gabriel Gilbert, president and publisher, said in a front-page statement the labor conflict had been "peculiar" in that journalists had walked out to protect "press freedom" and not for monetary gain.

The walkout resulted from complaints by reporters and editors that introduction last week of a new 12 million production process had meant loss of newsroom control over final editorial content of the news.

Under an agreement reached Wednesday, however, a journalist-supervisor answerable to the news desk will be able to order corrections in news copy at any stage of the production process.

Mr. Gilbert said in the statement published today the walkout was unnecessary.

"We continue to believe that all the mechanisms of meetings, of negotiation, already in effect, through the labor contract provided a valid framework for these discussions," he said.

"That is why we find it unfortunate that the union decided otherwise."

But he praised the journalists and the Quebec City Journalists' Union for keeping the dispute in perspective.

Gilles Boivin, one of the union negotiators, said:

"Management has given us all the guarantees and the means needed to assure newsroom control of the quality of content which is very important from the professional point of view."

Ulster Prepares For Two Elections

BELFAST (AP) — While the bombs continue to explode and the bullets fly, Northern Ireland is turning its mind to the ballot box.

Cries of Betrayal and Boycott already are filling the air.

But if this exercise in democracy is a success, it could conceivably mean that peace has a chance of breaking out.

Two elections are scheduled in quick succession.

On May 30 the one-million voters, all citizens above the age of 18, will choose 26 district councils. On June 28 comes the more important election for a Northern Ireland assembly to supplant the former Protestant-dominated Stormont parliament.

Already it is clear that the party, the dominant voice in Northern Ireland affairs for 50 years, will no longer control Londonderry, focus of the four years of sectarian turmoil which has cost close to 800 lives since 1969.

For all but three years of the last 50 the Unionists had hosed Londonderry, a symbol of Protestant defiance against Roman Catholic Republicanism.

They achieved this despite being outnumbered 2 to 1 in the city's 56,000 population, with the cries of gerrymandering vote-rigging and anti-Catholic discrimination which gave rise to the 1968 Catholic-based civil rights campaign and its subsequent development into guerrilla war.

"This time the Unionists have no chance of winning a majority in Londonderry. They have not nominated enough candidates. The city may well fall to the Catholic-based Social Democrat and Labor party.

Much of the attraction of municipal power, however, has gone out the window along with the old local-government structure where power was vested in 78 councils.

District councils will no longer control allocation of municipal housing, formerly a sure source of votes. Public housing now is the domain of a national body. And job discrimination is barred by law, removing another source of local political power.

The forthcoming elections are dominated by "The Irish Question"—whether Northern Ireland should stay part of the United Kingdom or whether it should be merged with the Irish republic to the south, an end which Irish Republican Army guerrillas are trying to achieve by force.

The Unionists, led by former prime minister Brian Faulkner, M.P., are for the British link. Unionist dissidents led by William Craig, also a former prime minister, would prefer to go it alone.

Various brands of Catholic nationalism—Republican Labor, Social Democrat and the once-considerable National party—are at heart in favor of a united Ireland.

In between are the union-based Labor party and the recently formed Alliance party, both embracing middle-road Catholics and Protestants and both prepared to stick with the United Kingdom.

The Social Democratic and Labor party's decision to take whatever seats it can win in the new councils has brought charges of betrayal from hardline Republican Catholics. This is because the Social Democrats have pledged to abstain from the political process until IRA supporters were interned without trial. The party apparently now believes that British law has established an adequate system of judicial supervision of internment orders.

The Republican Clubs, political front of the Marxist Official IRA, are offering 14 candidates but say they will not take seats until internment is ended.

Troop Cut Talks Open New Phase

VIENNA (AP)—The East-West talks to arrange negotiations on a reduction of armed forces in Central Europe moved into a new phase today with the Russians for the first time publicly terming them of "great importance" and "great significance."

The 19 countries are still months away at least from getting down to talking about how many of which nation's troops in Europe be pulled back. There were hopes that such substantive negotiations can begin in the fall. But it has taken 14 weeks of wrangling to decide whether Hungary should participate in the conference as a full member or just as an observer.

The United States finally forced Britian and its other allies to yield to the Soviet demand that Hungary get observer status only. The British conceded that this is effect reduces the 20,000-man Soviet contribution in Hungary from the forces that would be subject to reduction.

The 19 countries now move on to such procedural matters as the agenda and rules of procedure for the future negotiations and a Soviet proposal for the inclusion of neutral countries.

The Vienna talks are a complement to similar exploratory talks in Helsinki, Finland, at which 34 nations are laying the groundwork for a conference on European security. The Russians have been seeking such a conference for several years, while the United States and its allies demanded the negotiations on reduction of forces as their price for participation in the security talks.

Youth Arrested

BUFFALO (AP) — Police said Sunday that a 17-year-old youth has been charged with the weekend murders of two men and a 14-year-old girl.

Police accused Cash of the beating deaths of Bernard Neely, 31, and Aaron Salief, 74, and of rape and strangulation of Natalie Henry, said to have been an acquaintance of the youth.

IRELAND DOES IT AGAIN

Once again Jack Ireland has picked up a special purchase of Canadian General Electric warehouse stock at incredibly low prices.

This stock, including ranges, refrigerators, dishwashers, air conditioners, dehumidifiers and automatic washers, is uncrated - but it's all brand new and fully guaranteed.

Explaining this special purchase, Jack Ireland stated, "Canadian General Electric happened to be having a warehouse sale, and our efficient delivery and pick-up service happened to qualify us to take advantage of their sale. We saved, and now we want our customers to save. It's as simple as that."

"And I'm happy that this opportunity came along just in time for spring selling, warm weather and June brides — when people are thinking of buying this kind of item. And I am happy to be able to offer these appliances at real savings."

And he is. Watch for Jack Ireland's advertisement in this Thursday's Intelligencer.

Rigged Grain Prices Alleged in States

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commodity Exchange Authority is expected to decide in the next month whether grain traders illegally collected millions in tax dollars by rigging prices on the Kansas City commodity market during last summer's U.S. wheat sales to the Soviet Union.

The government investigation came after wheat prices soared on the Kansas City Board of Trade, forcing the agriculture department to raise its subsidy to exporters.

The department originally estimated it would pay out $27 million in export subsidies during the summer. Instead, it paid out $300 million.

The Commodity Exchange Authority has declined to comment on its investigation so far, saying only that it is analysing information forwarded by its Kansas City office.

But authority administrator Alex Caldwell told a House of Representatives subcommittee in March that the results of investigations are not forwarded to Washington unless violations are uncovered.

The [illegible] Department Of [illegible] the butcher's shop."

The office also is investigating the allegations as part of an over-all investigation into the Russian wheat deal. The results of that [illegible]on are expected to be announced at the end of May or first of June.

Dealings on the Kansas City Board of Trade first attracted attention when the American Bakers Association alleged some grain-futures traders were trying to force up the closing price of wheat by placing large purchase orders minutes before the exchange closed.

Two Who Died in '62 Last to Be Hanged

OTTAWA (CP) — It was Dec. 11, 1962, at Toronto's Don Jail. Ron Turpin 29, and Arthur Lucas, 56, both convicted murderers, walked about 40 paces to the gallows, where their necks were snapped by the hangman's rope.

Turpin, who shot a policeman, and Lucas, who killed two doorbeddlers, were the last persons to be hanged in Canada. Since then, 23 death sentences have been commuted to life imprisonment.

Today MPs start searching their consciences in public again as Parliament resumes debate on whether to reinstate the death penalty for all murders after a five-year moratorium that ended Dec. 29.

It's anyone's guess how things will go. Four days of argument in February gave no indication whether the majority of MPs favor another five years in which only killers of policemen or prison guards could be sentenced to death.

The February debate was polarized up by the slaying of two Toronto policemen. Wives of 70 Toronto policemen collected more than 23,000 names on a petition calling for reinstatement of capital punishment.

Trying to determine how the MPs will vote has not been easy. A survey by The Canadian Press in February elicited replies from only 91 of 264 MPs.

Forty-four said they would support another five-year partial moratorium. Thirty-seven would oppose it and 10 were either undecided or did not reply directly, indicating they felt the government bill needs amending.

Assuming the bill does get into committee, two Liberals—Marcel Prud'homme of Montreal-St. Denis and Jim Fleming of York West, a Toronto riding—say they will attempt to have capital punishment outlawed.

They want a life sentence with no parole for at least 25 years. A lifer now is eligible for parole after 10 years.

The objective is to abolish hanging while appeasing those who fear the consequences of what they describe as a lack a deterrent.

This argument, however, is not been supported by statistics; the incidence of killings has not changed appreciably since the moratorium was introduced in 1967.

Fifteen convicted murderers at Drumheller penitentiary in Alberta said the 25-year, no-role proposal would turn a life sentence into an animal.

Anxiety Keeps Him Going, But--
Larry Solway Is Happy Man

TORONTO (CP) — "I'm happy. Sure I'm happy. I'm happy opening a good bottle of wine. I'm happy lying in the sun or sailing my boat. I'm happy talking to my daughter. I'm happy lying in front of the television set like a lump—or playing gin rummy with my wife—or reading a good book."

It was Larry Solway, the television broadcaster, newspaper beat and panelist, lecturer, former radio-talk-show host, master of all trades. He was writing editorial comment, something "close to my heart about our obsession with happiness," on Toronto Tonight, the night news show for which he is host.

But about work, to hear his commentary, you wonder whether he is happy at it.

"When I work it doesn't matter how happy I am. So please—don't ask me if I'm happy in my work—I don't go to work to be happy. I go to work—to work."

When he arrives at the Toronto CBC news offices during mid-morning, set to tackle another day at informing the public, he has his "edge on." It is anxiety keeping him going—"to express my view of my environment," the edge to accomplish something that day towards enlightening the viewing public as to what is going on in the world around them.

He has some definite ideas on what people are seeing and what they're not seeing. The proper role of his broadcaster is something he likes—and on many occasions—has talked about.

The Crisis of Middle Age is another pet of his. He also likes to talk about sex.

He lectures on the hype topics—communications, middle age and sex—when he can find the time.

"I've said these things so many times I'm beginning to feel I'm a bore. But what's so often missing in the media is a genuine interest on the part of broadcasters in what's going on around them.

"As a broadcaster, you're the filter through which everything goes, so you've got to be in tune with your audience."

For example, he begun to talk about the lumberjack crisis three or four months ago. "Most reporters just shied away from it, people didn't understand what was happening. Then the dollar devaluation came.

"News should be insight, information. Future newspaper men will be better informed, more subjective and patient with a broader brush.

"Journalism is not a man sitting outside like a visiting Martian—it's a guy right inside, enlarging, exposing."

The Crisis of Middle Age: "It can be devastating, especially for a man—you suddenly realize that you've had the same job, the same lifestyle, for 25 years, and that it might go on forever. You feel locked into something at 40 years of age. I know, I've been through it."

He was host of one of the best known open-talk shows in the country—Speak Your Mind—on Toronto radio station CHUM. But four years ago, he had to find himself. He left the show "to find out who I was."

"I was a competent, though not brilliant, administrator—but I didn't like it, and I knew there were lots of people around who could do it better than I could.

"And I wasn't happy with the way I had been treating the people who called in. I was often harsh and abrasive. During my retreat period, I began to realize that I was being destructive of human dignity; that even a 'pinhead' has complaints, and it wasn't my job to entertain by belittling him. It was my job to find out what was bothering him, and to really listen to him."

The harsh and abrasive Larry Solway was mellowing, attaining a new attitude on life.

Then late-in 1971, through a storm of controversy over his series of discussions on sex during his talk-show program, CHUM President Allan Waters cut short the series. Waters thought the series was "in bad taste and Solway and CHUM parted company.

He wrote a book called The Day I Invented Sex. It bombed.

John Vernon Says CBC Should Try U.S. Market

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian actor John Vernon, who now lives in Hollywood, has been back here working for the CBC again after a six-year absence, bringing with him some thoughts on how Canadian actors might make more money.

He'd like to see the CBC try to break into the United States theatre market with 35-millimetre films for movie houses.

Vernon, who rose to stardom with the Wojeck series about a crusading coroner, came back to Toronto to play the lead role in a new television adaptation of Morley Callaghan's How Joy to Heaven, which he says "should be one of the biggest things the CBC has done for years."

"It should be made into a two hour show and used as a springboard for other productions," Vernon said in an interview while waiting for a scene to be set up.

"I hope they'll go into 35mm film and the CBC will try to sell some of its stuff to the U.S. It's absurd to sell productions on 16mm for a nickel and a dime to England, Japan, and all that. But why don't we sell to a bigger market?

"There'll be more for all of us—more prestige, more room for development, better quality film, better quality for the whole lot.

"That's what I'm hoping for out of More Joy in Heaven, a three good film on 16mm so people will want more."

Production costs of More Joy in Heaven probably are about $200,000. It would cost half as much again to have shot the production in 35mm for movie house use, though 16mm film is standard fare for television networks.

"If people are really impressed with what we do in 16mm, they'll say, OK, we want to buy some of your product and are willing to pay for it.

"Then the money we get from it will be turned into another production."

Vernon spoke as the impatient Canadian actor who wants to do more—and earn more—in Canada, "whatever the impediments may be. The CBC isn't in the business of producing films for the theatre circuit; its business is radio and television, in two languages.

But, said Vernon:

"It's time they were in business. They could still be doing everything they've always done so well for us Canadians, and they could be making more money to give us more as a Canadian audience, and pay us more as actors.

Vernon, who has been doing theatre and television films in Hollywood, said that after shooting More Joy in Heaven he was going back to California, to take tennis lessons.

"Tennis at 40 Watch out? for the cardiac, but that's what I want to do."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Two years ago my husband developed a dry cough. After our family doctor could find no cause, we went to a throat specialist. No results.

Then we went for a chest x-ray which was negative. Now we wonder what to do next. It does not interfere with his sleep, so we figure it is not a bad pillow allergy. Mrs. M.J.H.

Don't rule out emphysema, even though those tests a couple of years ago showed nothing serious.

Emphysema can start out as a cough and not be apparent from x-rays or physical examinations in the early stages. A lung function test would be in order for your husband.

I don't want to alarm you or to send everyone who reads this and has a dry cough to go packing off to a doctor for a lung function test.

But if your husband's cough has lasted two years, as you say, then you should be getting concerned about what is causing it. Two years is not too long.

Allergy can't be ruled out, of course. This could cause a nasal drainage which could produce a cough that might sound "dry." An allergic cough of such a condition could cause a cough that might seem to be a lying cough down and be touched off when he stands up.

Finally (and here's something that is not often considered but can be a definite factor) has your husband put on an excessive amount of extra weight in the past few years? Such accumulation of fat in the neck area could cause such a condition. Wax or a hair touching the eardrum also can cause a dry cough.

Except in the case of an allergy, it shouldn't be all that difficult to find the cause of the cough.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am in the care of a podiatrist and have been for several years. I have bunions, spurs and bursitis. The podiatrist assures me that surgery would give me much relief.

However, friends tell me that I should not have surgery, could be serious results. I make less than a thousand dollars and knows perhaps more than a bone specialist. I would like an answer as soon as possible. Which is more capable? L.H.

I've long tried to take a position exactly in the middle on that matter that is capable of handling foot surgery. Most of the time I don't have been trained for it. In your case, I add this: your podiatrist, having been more familiar with your particular case than anyone else, so I'd stay with him.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My mother, now 91, has a problem. Not a problem, but a worry. Her children were born, at most three children in infancy. She believes the babies died because she had become afraid was pregnant again.

Recently, when she heard her granddaughter was nursing her baby she hoped she wouldn't get pregnant and kill it." I've tried to convince her that wasn't the cause of the baby being ill, she still believes it. N.H.

You are quite right, of course. Nature doesn't "poison the milk," and back when those babies were dying, infant mortality was vastly higher than it is today. (We can still stand some improvement, though!)

But I doubt that you can convince your mother at 91 if she has believed it all these years. Best aspect is that she has feelings of guilt and shouldn't.

There are, as can be seen around us, plenty of babies who were born up even though nursed by pregnant mothers.

Opening lead—king of diamonds.

Here is a neat hand played by Bruce Bell, New Zealand expert. It features a rare sequence of plays that led to an unusual and spectacular ending.

West led a diminished 2nd Bell had to choose between two methods of play. He could try to ruff his spades in dummy, which seemed likely to leave him far short of his goal or he could attempt a dummy reversal, which would require little more than a 3-3 trump division. Bell selected the latter method of play and made the slam as a result.

The principle underlying a dummy reversal is that declarer uses his own trumps to ruff dummy's losers. Instead of using dummy's trumps to ruff his own losers. Properly applied in the right type of hand, a dummy reversal produces more trump tricks than declarer would normally be able to make.

Bell ruffed the king of diamonds, played a heart to the queen, ruffed another diamond, led a heart to the king and ruffed a third diamond. Now out of trumps in his own hand. Bell led the jack of clubs to the queen. He then crashed the ace of trumps and the ace of clubs, and on these he discarded the 8 of clubs.

Having untangled the club suit with these ten atonal discards, Bell was able to cash the 10-9-8 to bring himself 11 eleven tricks, and the ace of spades accounted for the slam going trick.

It is all. Bell succeeded by scoring four clubs, the ace of diamonds, the ace of spades and six trump tricks to accomplish a resounding tour de force.

Tomorrow: Card reading.

Shah of Iran Clear Victor Over Oil Firms

By RALPH JOSEPH
CP Correspondent

TEHRAN (CP) — The end of a 20-year struggle between Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi of Iran and a group of Western companies exploiting his oil came with remarkable quietness. Unlike 1951, when Iran nationalized her oil industry, there were no calamities in March, 1973, when Iran took complete control of the industry, including exploration and production.

This quiet victory can be attributed to the adroitness in bargaining which the Shah has acquired in his long struggle with the companies. As one Iranian commentator pointed out: "Right from the start the Shah-shah seems to have decided never to enter an oil battle unless sure of winning."

After his first break with the companies, which caused so much turbulence within the country that he almost lost his throne, he also decided to make himself an expert in oil — so that when Iranians came to bargain with him they quickly realized he knew what he was talking about.

Just how close his attention to detail can be was illustrated by a minor occurrence in 1971, when the new Iranian Tehran talks were taking place. A local magazine was granted a 600-word-at-1 interview with one of the Shah's chief negotiators.

The interviewee asked the journalist if he could look at the published text before it published, to eliminate chances of misreporting. The reporter complied and the negotiator, playing doubly safe, decided to show it to the Shah. The monarch, though pressed for time amid the intense negotiations, is reported not only to have read the article through, but also to have done some editing before handing it back.

In 1954, before signing the now scrapped 25-year contract with the consortium that has made several visits to Khuzestan, where the country's main oil installations are located, to sound out the then small number of Iranian oil technicians for an on-the-spot assessment, on the basis of which future action could be planned.

Observers here are certain that even in 1954 the monarch had already made up his mind on his long-term objectives regarding oil. They see the 1954-73 period as one of relentless, if quiet, pressure against the companies to release more of their profits on Iran's oil rights. As 1951 had taught everyone, in Iran, militant nationalist action and sabre-rattling wouldn't do.

In 1954, when Iran nationalized her oil, the companies simply got together to cut off her markets. Without the expertise or experience needed for making refined, Iran had no means of fighting back. In 1973 things are different. When the Shah told the companies he would not renew the 1954 contract unless they doubled output to eight million barrels a day by 1979, the companies complained that there just wasn't a market for that much oil.

But they knew the Shah wasn't bluffing when he said he would sell the oil himself and that the companies would have to queue up behind a long line of other buyers, unless they signed a new contract. As they probably knew only too well, huge potential buyers within the next decade are North America, Western Europe and Japan—and Middle Eastern oil is still the cheapest of the alternative markets.

The alternative sources of energy, such as nuclear and solar, that Western industrial nations look to (and must) turn to, are still to be developed, and it may be another decade or two before they begin to be exploited on a large scale. By then Iran, for one, would shed no tears about losing its oil markets.

Because, as one Middle Eastern oil expert, Dr. Nicola Sarkis, said recently, Iran may not be willing to sell her oil, at any price, after the year 20 to 25 years. By then she hopes to become a fully industrialized nation herself and may want to reserve her oil for internal consumption, leaving the rest to maintain a tapped other revenue sources.

In fact, that is precisely why the Shah has been pressing the companies to double production. He needs the money for his development and defence plans.

Under the country's current fifth five-year development plan, Tehran will be spending $20,000 million on large-scale industrialization projects. But Iran's current annual income is only $2,500 million a year. At this rate it would earn only $12,500 million in the next five years—far short of its needs. Doubling oil revenues is about the only means of making up the bulk of the shortfall.

The details will still be worked out of the Shah's "agreement in principle" reached at Geneva with the companies at the end of February—under which they agreed to relinquish control of Iran's oil to the Iranians. This includes control of the levels of production, under dispute between the two sides for several years. "Extremely complicated" talks are still going on between the two sides for the final signing of the new deal. But two important questions under focus are:

—The method of ensuring the investment needed for raising Iran's oil production to eight million barrels a day within the next five years. The companies calculated they would have needed to invest another $500 million to achieve this target.

—Iran's right to boost its export of refined oil. This would entail another giant oil refinery to be built in the country and another big dose of investments.

Iran has already allocated some $4,000 million to new investments for the oil industry during the current five-year plan. This surely means that the Shah was already thinking of a take-over bid last year when the plan was being drawn up.

More Routes Sought

Canada and the United States are expected to meet late in May to continue negotiating new air route agreements, Transport Minister Jean Marchand told a press conference Ottawa wants more routes into the U.S. from Western Canada and a few more routes from Eastern Canada. "We have an agreement now that is working against the Canadian interest" he said of the present air agreement signed in 1966. Map shows cities in the United States and Canada connected by direct flights across the borders.

Knifeless Surgery

A brain tumor in a 70-year-old patient is treated successfully recently in this new painless, bloodless surgical technique developed at the University of California at Los Angeles School of Medicine. Powerful electromagnet (adjacent to patient's head) holds injected silicone - iron compound in place in the tumor's blood vessels until the compound sets, thus sealing off the blood supply to the tumor. Denied a blood supply, the tumor dissolves in time, doctors at the school reported. (AP Photo)

TV Network in Stockholm Keeping Watch for Police

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — Hidden eyes watch every movement in Stockholm's main squares and railway stations.

A network of 75 television cameras linked to police control centres in Sweden's newest way of fighting crime and violence in the streets.

The cameras, operated by remote control, are seen by the authorities as an effective new weapon and a means of cutting police costs.

But to some people here, the camera network has brought Sweden a step nearer the fictional "Big Brother" world of George Orwell's 1984.

The liberal newspaper Dagens Nyheter said recently that the $1 million television surveillance system was set up without the full knowledge of parliament.

The police bought the equipment out of funds routinely allocated for the purchase of vehicles, the paper said. "Parliament did not know the money was going to be used for TV surveillance."

In the basement of Stockholm's central station and two other centres, police monitor the small numbered screens day and night.

At any sign of a brawl or a gathering of crowd, police squads can immediately be dispatched by radio to the scene.

When Sweden's political activists were staging their big Vietnam rallies recently, the vestments for the Swedish main square was under surveillance from cameras perched on the new Parliament building.

Others are fated outside entrances to subway stations and similar favorite haunts of black marketers, petty criminals and dope-pushers.

From another control centre, the traffic police keep a close eye on Stockholm's 12 busiest intersections and danger spots.

Inspector Sten Grankvist, who is in charge of the underground station network, said: "We are not just sitting here, to find out what Mr and Mrs. Smith are doing. We don't have time. It's a full time job just monitoring all the screens."

The cameras had been put to good use. "If someone should fall on the track or try to break into one of the slot machines we can pick on to it quickly," he said.

Screen monitoring goes on about 18 hours a day. The controllers can switch the cameras and zoom in on possible troublemakers.

Macao's Relations With Reds Smooth

By ROLAND DALLAS

MACAO (Reuter) — An aggressive multi - million - dollar gambling and tourism syndicate and good relations with the giant Communist neighbor have combined to produce a flourishing economy in this dots Portuguese enclave on the south China coast.

Macao is an "overseas province" of Portugal and has relaxed in sleepy obscurity since it was discovered by Portuguese explorers in the 16th century.

But recently its relations with China, which slumped in 1967 when street demonstrations erupted into violence, have improved dramatically.

Although Lisbon and Peking have no diplomatic relations, the links between Macao and China's neighboring Kwangtung province are close.

Communists operate freely here and their newspapers openly denounce the local government and Lisbon for its policies in Africa. Such press freedom is unknown in Lisbon itself.

The atmosphere is one of easy-going collaboration. China's view appears to be that it does not want to take over Macao but intends to have a say in how it is governed.

After Portuguese Governor Gen. Francisco Nobre de Carvalho, the most important figure in Macao is Ho Yin, a wealthy businessman who represents Chinese Communist interests.

An indication of how the arrangement might work was in the construction of a 1.7-mile-long bridge to link Macao with one of its offshore islands at the end of this year. The bridge was designed by a Portuguese engineer and financed by Lisbon. But the contractor is Ho Yin.

Nobre de Carvalho hopes the new bridge will allow Macao, a 2.1-square-mile peninsula, to develop its economy on the islands of Taipa and Coloane, which are already linked by causeway.

Much of Macao's prosperity is due to the Sociedade de Turismo e Diversoes de Macao managed by businessman Stanley Ho.

The STDM controls all gambling in Macao and operates the ferries to Hong Kong, Hotel Lisboa, which boasts two floors of public casinos, six restaurants and three nightclubs.

Ho's syndicate controls another casino-hotel and a floating casino in Macao's inner harbor. It also operates one of the two hydrofoil lines and a ferry company which ply between Macao and Hong Kong, 40 miles across the Pearl River estuary.

During the week, Ho brings thousands of Japanese tourists to Macao on his shipping line. At the weekend, thousands of Hong Kong Chinese flood across to Macao to pack the gambling tables. Gambling is illegal in Hong Kong.

For gambling rights, the STDM pays the Macao government more than eight million patacas ($1.5 million) a year, more than 10 per cent of the government's revenue.

Macao recently held elections in accordance with the new "organic law" issued in Lisbon for Portugal's overseas provinces, aimed at giving them more autonomy.

But Nobre de Carvalho said in an interview that he thought there would be little change.

There was only one list of candidates and there were only 2,347 electors out of a population of 248,536. In the election, only 1,775 people bothered to vote.

Man Will Destroy Self Unless He Mends Way

By ED SIMON
CP Staff Writer

If man continues his systematic destruction of the environment, he will eventually destroy himself, says Toronto naturalist John A. Livingston.

In One Cosmic Instant, a book which carries the subtitle: A Natural History of Human Arrogance, Mr. Livingston says man have cherished the illusion for centuries that all other living things exist for his sole benefit.

He has overcome the natural predators, climate and limitations of food supply that keep the population of other species in balance. He has altered his habitat, driving out the other creatures that formerly shared it. And he has greatly increased his numbers by controlling disease.

Mr. Livingston, a member of the faculty of environmental studies at York University and president of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, says man succeeded in dominating the other animals because of his ability to reason. But he may be reasoning his way to self-destruction.

"Perhaps, with mindless and directionless technology, we have already passed the point of no return—the achievement of humility."

If necessary, an incident can be preserved on film and, if police officials decide, produced as evidence. Otherwise the film is destroyed. But it is understood no tape has been used so far in police proceedings.

The authorities reject suggestions that Sweden is moving towards a police state. The police say the system has made their work easier and cut down troublemaking.

One police officer agreed it was possible for such a system to be misused. "But it could only happen under quite another system of government," he said.

Plans Being Revised
Power-short Skylab Adds Heat Problem

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The crippled Skylab space station developed a new problem today when temperatures of 100 degrees were recorded inside the laboratory. The space agency called it a serious problem but still hoped to launch three astronauts to link up with the station on Sunday.

"It's too early to tell if we're in an unmanageable situation," reported flight director Neil Hutchinson. "But the Skylab cluster is hot and it's a problem that we'll have to be able to solve if the mission is to continue."

Hutchinson also reported a problem with a stabilizing gyroscope in the spaceship control system.

He said the gyroscope problem is not as serious as the electrical or heat problems.

Asked to assess the possibility of a launch Sunday, Hutchinson said: "I've not seen a show stopper yet."

Skylab project director William C. Schneider was optimistic at a Monday night news conference that all three planned Skylab missions could be salvaged. But that was before the latest problems erupted.

"We still have high hopes that they (the Skylab Astronauts) can stay on orbit ... but during the last few days their activity will have to be curtailed because of the power shortage," he said.

"Everybody seems to be holding a post-mortem on Skylab," he said. "But we think we can achieve a lot of our objectives."

And he said there is "still a possibility that the Skylab 2 and 3 flights, each scheduled for 56 days later in the year, might take place. He said that assessment probably can't be made until after the Skylab 1 voyage.

The laboratory, as large as a three-bedroom house, was lofted into a perfect 272-mile-high orbit Monday by a Saturn rocket.

Just 63 seconds after liftoff, a paper-thin aluminum overcoat designed to protect the lab from micrometeorite hits apparently was ripped from the side of the spacecraft, Schneider reported. This failure apparently damaged two wing-like solar panels that were to have extended from the sides of the spaceship to convert the sun's rays to electrical power.

The two 30-foot panels deployed only partially and are useless.

The mishap with the shield occurred 40,000 feet up while the 33-storey-tall Saturn rocket was subjected to maximum pressure, from high altitude wind shears.

"There are severe vibrations at this point in the flight, and they might have caused pressure to build up under the shield, tearing it off," Schneider said.

Loss of the two panels reduced the amount of power available on the $294-million spaceship to about half its average usage of 8,000 watts, he said. The other 50 per cent is being provided by four other solar panels that deployed on another section of the vehicle.

To help carry the load on the Skylab 1 flight, about 1,200 watts of power will be transferred from the Apollo command ship that will ferry the astronauts to the station, he said.

4-Year Low
Jobless Cut For April

OTTAWA (CP) — The country's unemployment continued to improve in April with a decrease in the number of estimated jobless to 570,000, Statistics Canada reported today.

The drop in the total of unemployed from March's figure of 608,000, coupled with an April seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate of 5.4 per cent and an actual unemployment rate of 6.3 per cent, highlighted a steady improvement apparent in jobless statistics since the outset of 1972.

The total of unemployed compares with last April's figure of 592,000. In January, there was an estimated 688,000 jobless.

The April unemployment rate taking into account seasonal factors of 5.4 per cent is the lowest for the month in at least four years.

March's adjusted rate was 5.9 per cent while that of April, 1972, was 5.9 per cent.

The real rate as estimated by Statistics Canada, based on its analysis nationally, was 6.3 per cent compared with 6.8 per cent in March and 6.8 per cent a year ago.

Unemployment still is highest in the Atlantic provinces, dropping by an estimated 1,000 to 80,000 for April but the improvement displayed nationally since the start of 1973 was evident there too.

Quebec improved sharply with 201,000 unemployed against 218,000 in March and 216,000 a year earlier. Ontario was less improved at 157,000 jobless, down 4,000, but the Prairies improved substantially.

Official awareness of the hazards of the economy's momentum, the force behind the improved employment picture, was signalled last Friday when the Bank of Canada made its biggest discount increase in the rate at which it lends money to the chartered banks. That rate was raised to 5¾ per cent from 5½ per cent.

More men were working and the numbers of jobless women increased.

The rise in the labor force to nearly 9,100,000 compares with 8,877,000 in the labor force a year ago, figures behind the government assertion that Canada has one of the fastest-growing labor forces of the world.

The percentage of persons in that force 14 years old or more rose to 56.7 in April, up from 56.2 in March.

The figures showed 5,597,000 males at work and 2,932,000 females. That was an improvement of 117,000 from March for males and of 24,000 for females.

Jobless males totalled 411,000 from 452,000 in March.

The actual unemployment rate for males in April stood at 6.8 per cent, while that for females was 5.1 per cent.

Labor Leaders To Get Leave

A statement issued last here soon said that at the present time" the three union chiefs "are reflecting on the conditions set by the department for granting the privilege of temporary absence."

Marcel Pepin, Yvon Charbonneau and Louis Laberge, presidents of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, the Quebec Teachers Corp. and the Quebec Federation of Labor respectively, are serving one-year sentences for contempt of court.

Gold Up $5, Crisis Feared

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold jumped more than $5 an ounce on European bullion markets today, and the U.S. dollar weakened sharply. Dealers said another international monetary crisis may be developing.

The dealers reported the rush to buy gold was depressing the dollar, and the sale of dollars was driving up the price of gold. Market sources cited a number of reasons for the wave of dollar selling and gold buying, among them:

—Belief that the Watergate scandals will weaken President Nixon's hand in fighting inflation, in liberalizing trade and in working to reform the international monetary system.

—International corporations are pressuring their funds by switching from dollars to safer gold.

—Speculative gold buying from the Middle East as a hedge against inflation, monetary turmoil and the threat of more trouble in Lebanon. Some reports said Middle East oil interests negotiating for compensation for effects of recent U.S. dollar devaluation are helping to drive gold up and the dollar down to reinforce their case.

The rise in the labor force to nearly 9,100,000 compares with 8,877,000 in the labor force a year ago, figures behind the government assertion that Canada has one of the fastest-growing labor forces of the world.

The percentage of persons in that force 14 years old or more rose to 56.7 in April, up from 56.2 in March.

The figures showed 5,597,000 males at work and 2,932,000 females. That was an improvement of 117,000 from March for males and of 24,000 for females.

Jobless males totalled 411,000 from 452,000 in March.

The actual unemployment rate for males in April stood at 6.8 per cent, while that for females was 5.1 per cent.

—Speculation that Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev and Nixon will discuss new gold price arrangements when Brezhnev visits Washington next month. The Soviet Union is a major producer of gold.

Gold opened in Zurich at $126 an ounce, up $3.50 from the closing price Monday, when the metal topped $100 an ounce for the first time in history.

In London, bectic market conditions delayed the five major gold dealers in their daily fixing of the price at the level they feel the market justifies. But trading before the opening was in the $126 range.

The price had been hovering around $95 an ounce for three months. Dealers said now that it has broken through the psychological barrier of $100, there is still more room on the up side. Demand for the metal is coming ahead of the supply and South Africa, which produces 70 per cent of the non Communist world's new gold, is holding supplies off the market.

Toronto Blast Takes 4 Lives

TORONTO (CP) — Firemen say a northwest wind may have prevented further catastrophe from explosion Monday which literally blew up a chemical plant, leaving at least one person dead, three missing and 15 injured.

A spokesman for the fire department said there was no wind when the first blast rocked Ashland Oil Canada Ltd.

"But the wind came from the northwest after that and blew flames and everything else into an open area away from the residential and industrial areas," said the spokesman. "Thank God for that."

Police and firemen sifting through the ruins of the chemical plant feared that the blasts were so severe the victims may never be accounted for. The known dead man is Ashland employee John Hersca, 23, of Toronto.

The first explosion—in a giant kettle used to mix paint—went off about 1 p.m. Before firemen were able to control the fire, drums of paints, oils, solvents and gasoline went off like firecrackers. Cause of the initial explosion was not known.

A pillar of black-grey smoke shot almost a mile in the air and could be seen easily over the top part of the city. As police evacuated about 60 families and all industrial workers in the area.

The explosions knocked out windows all around the seven-acre plant and blistered paint on buildings a half-mile away.

Damage was estimated to be "several million dollars" by a company official.

Mr. Martin and an assistant, working in a room near where the kettle exploded, were knocked down and when they ran out through the fire, he stumbled across the broken body of Mr. Hersca, a United States citizen.

"I didn't know it was a body at first," he said. "It just looked like rags. He was blown right out of the building and I covered him up with a rain coat."

White House Aides Accused Of Seeking CIA Aid in Coverup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The No. 2 man in the Central Intelligence Agency is reported to have accused former White House aides H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and John W. Dean III of trying to enlist CIA help in a Watergate cover up.

CIA Deputy Director Vernon A. Walters testified in secret Monday before the Senate armed services committee. Later Senator Stuart Symington (Dem-Mo.) said Walters testified that Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Dean were "heavily involved" in efforts to misuse the CIA: Another source said one effort was a Watergate cover up.

The account dovetails with statements by former acting FBI chief L. Patrick Gray III. He testified before the Senate Watergate investigators last week, and The Associated Press has obtained an official written digest of his remarks.

Gray said Walters got the FBI to postpone interviews with two Watergate witnesses last year on grounds the CIA had "some interest" in them.

Walters later conceded under pressure that the CIA actually had no interest whatsoever in the two. Gray said, but not before Ehrlichman personally ordered Gray to cancel a meeting set up in straighten out the matter between the CIA and FBI.

Gray said he and Walters agreed this "confusion" was "not normal," and the two agreed that Gray should tell President Nixon.

The fresh reports of the White House misuse of the CIA came after a day of rapid fire developments Monday.

Missing FBI records of wire taps on 17 government officials and four reporters were found in Ehrlichman's White House safe, ending FBI Director William Ruckelshaus announced. Ehrlichman said he hadn't known in detail what the documents contained.

Dean, meanwhile, turned over a batch of classified documents to federal court officials after Chief Judge John J. Sirica of U.S. district court agreed to accept custody.

Big Apple

SAIGON (CP) — The International truce observer force has declined a request to investigate Communist charges of renewed United States bombing in South Vietnam but the agreement was overshadowed by a new round of accusations within the group.

The four-country International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) quickly agreed Monday to respond to a Viet Cong request for an examination of their bombing claims.

The Canadians and Indonesians on the ICCS have stated policy of agreeing to all such requests, whether they come from the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) or the South Vietnamese government.

The Poles and Hungarians on the ICCS, always anxious to protect the interests of the PRG, were certain to press for an investigation in this case.

But the issue which dominated a four-hour meeting of the ICCS Monday was a long argument over a Saigon government request for an ICCS investigation of alleged infiltration of North Vietnamese forces into South Vietnam since the last military peace agreement.

Some of the evidence on which the allegation is based seemed somewhat flimsy to observers but the Canadians and Indonesians argued strongly that the request was a routine one and that the ICCS was bound by the Paris agreement to respond.

The Poles and Hungarians were completely opposed, sources said later, and in the end, the matter was referred back to the Joint Military Commission (JMC), composed of representatives of the PRG and the South Vietnamese government.

Hasty Pees Selected To Represent Militia

Much of the future role planned for militiamen across Canada could depend on the performance of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment platoon taking part in Exercise New Viking near Resolute Bay June 27 to July 16.

For the first time since the Korean War, a militia unit is to be included in a regular forces exercise without being seconded under regular force officers and non-commissioned officers. Rather, the Hasty Pees platoon will be commanded by Captain Wayne Gilroy, B Company Commander, Peterborough, and Warrant Officer Dave Nichols of A Company, Belleville.

Colonel Reginald W. Lewis, Toronto Militia District commanding officer, made his first visit to the regiment last night since it was transferred to his district from the Ottawa Militia District, May 1.

"Operation New Viking is a pilot project," he said. "The Hasty Pees were selected to take on the task and their performance will result in evaluations for the militia as a whole."

He said the regiment was selected because it was an effective unit "at the present strength — "at the lower ranks at least."

Col. Lewis did not see the move as an indication that militia units would now be specially re-equipped. "To the best of my knowledge the government is re-equipping the regular forces and won't dispell over to the militia as well," he said.

On exercises, militia will have access to regular force equipment," said Col. Lewis. "In the reserves we use pretty basic equipment — the training value is there and this is as it should be. It needs a full - time soldier to master all the equipment now in use.

"We can teach the basic techniques on the basic equipment we have," he said.

Col. Lewis did say new uniforms were in the offing. "Hopefully by the end of the year, most, if not all the militia will be in the green uniforms," he said. Regimental dress uniforms, however, would be retained "for the immediate future."

He said he had been told there would be no reorganization of the militia "in the foreseeable future. "There is no tendency now to amalgamate of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment," Col. Lewis" he said.

Referring to the transfer of the unit to the Toronto District, Col. Lewis said it made staffing easier. "That's one interesting aspect," he said.

"The Hasty Pees are now in the same area as the 48th with whom they have strong connections as they were brigaded together during the war."

Col. Lewis is immediate past chairman of the Confederation of Universities and prior to his move to Canada 19 years ago, was a national serviceman with the British Army, seeing service in Egypt, Greece, Italy and Eritrea. In civilian life he is secretary - treasurer of the Toronto Parking Authority.

Co-operation Needed In Settling Cases

Job discrimination has become more subtle, but still exists, representatives of management and labor were cautioned Saturday.

Yet both unions and employers often react indifferently or even with pride when discrimination is charged, said Ian A. Hunter, special adviser to the Ontario Human Rights Commission.

There are instances of "blatantly obvious" discriminatory employment practices — if not through a company or its officials, then in worker descriptions given employment agencies, he told a seminar sponsored by the Quinte Area Labor - Management Institute.

Most charges can be resolved informally — but the big problem is not proving discrimination.

"The problem is making people aware of their rights, the existence of the commission and the remedies that are available," said Mr. Hunter.

"It is here that labor and management can perform enormous service in making people aware of the remedies provided.

"Yet when the commission seeks the co-operation of labor — and particularly management — we are often met with either hostility or more often indifference.

"We understand 'grudging acceptance' of the province's Human Rights Code by management and labor and "minimum compliance with the letter of the law is no longer sufficient."

The challenge to both is to demonstrate in "very concrete terms" a full commitment to the spirit of human rights legislation.

Frequently said Mr. Hunter, when an employer is informed there is a commission investigation, he, tends to polarize the issue, referring it to a lawyer instead of discussing it.

This can lead to protracted proceedings, perhaps even a public inquiry.

Nonetheless, the commission seeks to resolve complaints "informally, quietly and cooperatively".

Since its inception in 1962, 7,000 formal charges have resulted in 100 boards of inquiry and five court prosecutions.

The Canadian Labor Congress representative, said much discrimination stems from full employment, since industry would need every worker.

"As long as there's a lack of jobs there will be discrimination in employment," he warned.

Mr. Kerwin said he was also concerned that he Human Rights Code does not govern private club organizations.

Jack Adams, personnel manager of Nashua Canada Ltd., Peterborough, said in his personal opinion many companies should take a more active interest in the welfare of their employees.

They should establish an open-door policy for employees and management should follow up any complaints. Otherwise workers tend to lose confidence in management.

"In a lot of cases these complaints can be resolved before they go anywhere. Company or are filed with the Human Rights Commission."

PC Turnout Is Small To Hear Local Members

BRIGHTON — The Prince Edward - Hastings Progressive Conservative Association held its 6th annual meeting here Saturday night, to a disappointing turnout of the party faithful.

As re - elected association president Donald Walker pointed out, several members of an election have cooled off and there's a certain amount of "general apathy" among workers."

The prospects of an upcoming election were firmly stated by the Hon. George Hees, MP for Prince Edward-Hastings. He told the less than 40 gathered at the Scotty Broughton Youth Centre he'd feel sure he'll have an election by this fall.

"Nobody really knows when the next election is going to be. Pierre (Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau) is a pretty slick article, and he'll call it when he feels he can win."

Mr. Hees mentioned several issues he'll campaign in in recent weeks, speaking of the "ignorations of the NDP and Liberals" in failing to recognize the problems in their promises on by agreeing with election promises.

"People are simply staggered by Trudeau's costs." he said recalling PC demands for a 90 - day freeze on wages and prices that governments, management and labor leaders would be forced to negotiate contracts which, he said, should remain at the annual three per cent level of the past 76 years.

Mr. Hees attacked both the Liberals and NDP on the issues of unemployment insurance. He said the government was all set to introduce what he described as a "remedy" but, when the NDP said they would fight it even though the conservatives supported it, "they backed down."

The unemployment insurance situation," he added "goes on in the same haphazard and lackadaisical fashion as always."

Russell Rowe, MPP for Northumberland, also alluded to a federal election.

"I don't want you to be hilled into complacency," he said. "Pierre seems to be doing a lot of travelling around these days."

Keynote speaker, Dr. Richard Potter, MPP for Quinte and provincial health minister, spoke briefly on recent government tax increases and rebates to communities, providing a complete list of grants.

He said "the government of the province didn't have to raise taxes one nickel, if we wanted to remain at a standstill.

"We realized there had to be maximum constraints on spending and we wanted to ensure that property taxes decrive the most benefits."

Dr. Potter spoke of reductions in the ministry's budget to small businesses, family farms, and various grants to municipalities in the ministry's budget, including a total of "three million dollars" to municipal governments.

Concerning his health ministry, Dr. Potter said, "We're beginning to see a little light at the end of the tunnel and as the result of work done in the ministry over the past 12 months, the ministry's budget is in excess of $2 billion and that's a lot of money.

"We found it necessary to introduce constraints," he said, explaining that the Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons is directing full support for both hospital operations and medical salaries.

At the annual meeting, Saturday, Don Walker was re-elected president. Mrs. Whitley, vice - president, Carl Weese, treasurer, and Shirley Bird, secretary.

Delegation To Ottawa Optimistic

The city delegation that's went to Ottawa yesterday regarding the acquisition of East Zwick's Island for park development purposes has returned with a feeling of optimism.

No immediate decision on the city's request was given but Mayor Robin Jeffrey said the delegation returned to Belleville convinced of "favorable reply.

The delegation called the deligation was received warmly, and was assured of a decision in two to three weeks. It could be done about East Zwick's Island.

Accompanying Mayor Jeffrey on the Ottawa visit were Aldermen Jack Marshall, Robert Phillips, board members Peter Terguilman, Douglas Burley, representing the Harbor Commission and Parks superintendent Lorne Bell.

Alderman Paul Russell, chairman of the parks board, was originally expected to be part of the delegation, but by the time the meeting date was determined had left on an overseas holiday.

The delegation placed four proposals regarding value as a marshland; that the city enter into a long term (99-year) reversible lease agreement; and lastly that the federal department develop East Zwick's as a park.

Mayor Jeffrey said Mr. Guay showed little enthusiasm for the development proposal but the federal government he was sympathetic toward the city's over all request.

She felt certain that the department decision would mean good news for the city.

Wooler Road Residents Get What They Pay For

TRENTON — Wooler Road resident William Larcombe feels his taxes for water services from town council last night, but there was a monetary catch to it he didn't appear to appreciate.

Council voted to extend both water and sewer services to the Wooler Road area but that the job be done under local improvements — a fact Mr. Larcombe claimed when the decision was rendered, the 105 Wooler Road resident deemed his hat and walked out of the meeting.

He originally appeared before council April 30 demanding water to his home and those of his neighbors. Mr. Larcombe claimed when the area was annexed by Trenton 18 years ago from Murray Township, inferences that full services would be available were made.

This, he repeated last night, was not done. "We've only got street lights. No water. No sewers and inadequate fire protection because of the lack of water," he said.

He said tax rates in his neighborhood have increased 300 per cent since annexation.

Mr. Larcombe's well has gone dry. It will cost him $700 to redrill and connect the fresh supply to his house. . . a water supply he claims is still not fit for human consumption without boiling.

Despite Mayor Duncan McDonald's repeated statements that it is the town's policy to charge for services under local improvements, Mr. Larcombe remained adamant that "residents on the Wooler Road can't bear the cost. Some other way has to be found to do this," he said last night.

"There was no desire of those residents of Wooler Road for annexation," he said, then commenting on the "unfulfilled promises" for services.

Councillor Ronald Price called for a resolution that services be extended under local improvements, the motion passing unanimously.

Town clerk O. W. Larry informed council no water service could be extended to the Wooler Road area until at least August. The mayor said if there is no inclusion in the 1973 capital works budget for such work and funds must be found somewhere.

Mr. Larcombe said he was also concerned that under local improvement costs, averaging at least $10 per foot in a survey made in the mid-1960s, his 200-foot frontage would result in a substantial bill. "I don't mind paying a portion but local improvement costs are too much," he said.

Councillor Ed Todd said it was regrettable, but cited a recent Court of Revision case where a man was not allowed a discount for installation of sewers simply because he had a lot of similar frontage.
